VESUVIUS AGAIN ACTIVE, SHOCKS SCARING TOWNS

Breaks Two-Years' Sleep With Quakes and Eruption.

ASHES ARE SPOUTED AND LAVA IS FEARED

Numerous Interior Explosions Are Heard as 200 Tremors Are Felt.

Naples, Italy, Feb. 4 (U.P.).—Mount Vesuvius, fiery ancient volcano, after slumbering two years, resumed intense activity today. Deep rumblings and earth shocks caused panic among the people of the countryside and nearby villages.

More than 200 quakes had been registered since early yesterday morning, Prof. Alessandro Malladra, director of the Vesuvius Observatory, announced. The most severe came at 3:30 p. m. today, shaking the observatory for fifteen seconds.

It was felt in nearby towns of Torre del Greco, Resila and Portici.

Peasants Terrorized.

Vesuvius spouted ashes and numerous explosions deep within the mountain caused peasants to fear an eruption of the dreaded boiling lava, which has snuffed out countless lives and flooded over villages and towns for centuries.

"The new activity of Vesuvius has manifested itself in explosions, rumblings and spouting of incandescent ashes," Prof. Malladra reported. "The glowing, rosy sky around the top, over the crater, is due to the boiling lava inside.

"The phenomenon is easily visible at night from Naples. The present activity must be ascribed to obstructions in the eruptive conduit caused by small landslides in the interior of the volcano, which reduced the actual opening for the outflow to small proportions."

Spring Eruption Forecast.

The observatory director said an eruption of some magnitude might be expected any time, adding:

"It is presumable that Vesuvius is threatening a new eruptive phase, which may happen in the spring, as often has been the case. It is hoped the eruption will not be of catastrophic character, like the one in 1929, when lava poured into the homes of people in Terzigno."

Malladra said some of the quakes were of "fourth and fifth degree of severity," registered by the observatory at the base of the volcano.

Roosevelt Tells How He Shot Shrink and Shook Newspaperdom.

Warm Springs, Ga., Feb. 3 (U.P.).—Have you a great Haitian shrink bird in your home? No, well, neither has anyone else. If you don't believe it, ask President-elect Roosevelt.

Mr. Roosevelt, who enjoys a joke, told today how he made the front pages twelve years ago by relating to a youthful New York reporter the hair-raising story of combing the dark and dank Haitian jungles for the elusive shrink bird.

The last specimen, he said, had been seen flying in a southerly direction in the year 1840. He told the reporter he went to find the grandchildren, or maybe the great-grandchildren of that bird.

"We came upon him," the President-elect said to the reporter. "There was the whirring of wings. I fired and missed. My, but he was a big fellow. As big as an eagle. My companion blazed away and hit. We went to find the great shrink bird. But, lo, when we came upon his carcass he had shrunk to the size of a chicken. And before we could get him into the pot to cook him, believe it or not, he was a dainty morsel, the size of a humming bird.

"And that," Mr. Roosevelt added, "made page 1."

This story was told in connection with his plans for a ten-day deep-sea fishing trip; so look out.

LEAS ARE REPORTED IN ARMED HILL CAMP

Special to The Washington Post.

Asheville, N. C., Feb. 3.—Col. Luke Lea and his son are hiding in the mountains of east Tennessee surrounded by gunmen and political henchmen, Solicitor Z. V. Nettles said tonight upon his return from Nashville, where he was accompanied by Sheriff Laurence Brown, to present requisition papers for the return of the Leas here to begin serving terms in the penitentiary. The two are under sentence on charges of defrauding the Central Bank & Trust Co. here of $1,000,000. Solicitor Nettles said:

"We are advised that Col. Lea and his son have hired several gunmen from Nashville and other points in Tennessee and have armed themselves with pistols, shotguns and rifles and have surrounded themselves with some 15 or 20 gunmen and political henchmen and are entrenched in the vicinity of Cricket Creek in east Tennessee, where they maintain their lookouts and are in constant communication with the battle front in Nashville by telephone and messenger service.

"They are entrenched behind this wall of guns, defying the constituted authorities of the States of Tennessee and North Carolina. This retreat is more than 200 miles from the home habitation and place of business of the said Leas, who, I am informed, lived in Nashville, Davidson County, for practically all their lives.

"If they are so innocent and have constitutional rights, why have they fled from the courts nearest their homes into the hills and sought shelter like rats? If they are going to fight, they ought to stand out in the open like men, and not run when the battle gets intensive."

Moonshiners Are Sought In Slaying of 2 Agents

Stevenson, Ala., Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Armed with warrants for the arrest of two alleged moonshiners, posses today searched the mountain fastnesses of Jackson County for the slayers of two deputy sheriffs yesterday.

The two officers, Fred Jackson, 47, veteran deputy sheriff, and J. H. Holland, special deputy, were killed from ambush as they drove along Sand Mountain a few hours after raiding a still.

5 Men Wounded In Milk Outbreak

Shot After Pickets Station Themselves Near Iowa-South Dakota Line.

Sioux City, Iowa, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Four South Dakota farmers and an Iowa milk picket were wounded late today in a shooting affray, which climaxed strife between organized milk producers of the Sioux City area and outside dairy farms.

The men were wounded in a burst of gunfire after about 100 pickets stationed near Stevens, S. Dak., across the Sioux River from here, stopped H. H. Markell, Elk Point, S. Dak., farmer, and his three sons, who were hauling a truckload of milk.

The wounded are R. D. Markell, 68; Harry Markell, 32; Keath Markell, 20. Nile Cochran, 39, and an unidentified farmer. The eldest Markell suffered a gunshot wound in the abdomen and was taken to a hospital in a critical condition. The others suffered less serious wounds.

PAINTERS CLAIM FAILURE TO GET SCHOOL JOB PAY

FINAL OUSTER ACTION IS EXPECTED MONDAY

Fist Fight Follows Session Attended by 2,000 Men at Carpenters' Hall.

While the wage battle between carpenters and contractors on new Government projects remained at an impasse last night, announcement came that the corporation counsel's office is investigating complaints of eleven painters, who charge that subcontractors on the Harrison School addition failed to pay them earned wages and left the city. They claim to have been defrauded of approximately $1,300.

Although the inquiry has not been completed, it is likely that the corporation counsel will find that the District government is not involved and that it concerns only the general contractor, Culbertson & Kelly Co., of Detroit; the subcontractors, Brown & Overcash Co., and the complainants.

Each Filed Affidavits.

Each of the workmen filed affidavits with the District collector of claims setting forth the amounts due them, and most of them admitted that they had signed statements declaring they had received wages in full. Officials of the general contracting company contend they saw these statements and thought the workmen were getting paid regularly.

District officials stated that there have been frequent complaints of a similar nature, largely against subcontractors. The District Government does not lose anything, however, as the general contractor is responsible for completion of the construction project and is bonded to the District.

No bond is required of subcontractors by the District Government, although the municipal architect must approve all subcontractors who are given contracts by the general contractor.

Powerful Disabled "Yacht" Is Seized

Coast Guard Frees Crew of Mysterious Boat at Baltimore.

Baltimore, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—The Phantom, a powerfully engined boat registered at Providence, R. I., as a "yacht," was seized in Baltimore Harbor today by a crew from the Coast Guard cutter Apache and held for alleged violations of the navigation laws.

The boat's crew of three men was released by Lieut. Comdr. G. E. McCabe, commander of the Apache, after they had been questioned about the boat's business. They identified themselves as Joseph Murray, captain and engineer, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; J. W. Matson, of New York, and Daniel Jones, of Irvington, Va.

Commander McCabe said the Phantom evidently had struck a buoy, damaging her bow, before the seizure and was believed to have been proceeding to a local shipyard at the time. He said the boat is valued at approximately $20,000 and will be ordered forfeited to the Government.

Film Stars Flee Storm

Beverly Hills, Calif., Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Suffering from exposure and partial snow blindness, George Brent, screen actor, and his actress wife, Ruth Chatterton, returned home heretoday and told of having been snowbound three days in their isolated cabin near Lake Arrowhead, mountain resort, 80 miles east of here.

They said they traveled 5 miles on snowshoes to a place where they could get a motor car to return home.

Brent said he left the cabin and waded snow for 3 miles to get a Mexican to help him break a trail to the cabin, and that he and Miss Chatterton then donned snowshoes and returned the 3 miles, plus 2 more, to the car.

The actress expects to be confined at home several days, but Brent suffered only slightly from a touch of snow blindness.

Miss Chatterton was due to begin a picture next Monday.

Brent said he and Miss Chatterton went to the cabin alone last Tuesday for a few days of rest.

CHAMBER APPROVES DALADIER PROGRAM

Deputies Vote Confidence in Promise to Quell Unrest and Balance Budget.

Paris, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—By a large majority, the Chamber of Deputies tonight approved Premier Daladier's promise to quiet France's unrest, balance the budget and participate in the proposed world economic conference.

Socialists at the last minute decided to support the cabinet and were instrumental in making emphatic a 370-to-200 vote of confidence in the premier's proposal to proceed with a program of "slow but sure" financial restoration.

The Socialists' move brought back the solidarity in the chamber which was the basis of the governments of former Premiers Herriot and Paul-Boncour. One factor leading to their decision was the rumor that the chamber would be dissolved if a stable government were not formed.

Balancing of the budget, a delicate point also in the preceding government, must not proceed with a "too rigorous policy," the premier said, since the problem is international in scope.

In a declaration read in the Chamber, M. Daladier pledged himself energetically to quiet the country's unrest. France, he said, faces "material and moral difficulty, but no present peril justifies alarm now." It is necessary to face conditions "with energy and with speed and strength," he declared.

Substantial economies in the budget were promised. Regarding foreign policy, France wishes "the security of all peoples who, if they are to have equal rights, must have equal duties," his declaration maintained. There also must be economic peace, he added.

Mattern-Griffin World Flight Planned in June

New York, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—James Mattern, of Fort Worth, Tex., and Bennett Griffin, of Oklahoma City, plan to start their second round-the-world effort in their newly rebuilt plane, Century of Progress, some time in June, Mattern said tonight.

CATHOLICS SUMMON DEFENDER OF HITLER

Father Schachleiter Has His Second Rift With Church; Rule Violation Charged.

Munich, Germany, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Father Alban Schachleiter, a Benedictine monk and a former abbot, was summoned by the Roman Catholic Church officials of his diocese today to explain his defense of the principles of Adolf Hitler's National Socialist party in the face of a pastoral letter of the Bishop of Linz advising Catholics to withdraw from that party.

Father Schachleiter wrote for Chancellor Hitler's Voelkischer Beobachter an article in which he said that Nazis adhered stanchly to the principles of Christiantity.

Archbishoprie officials here, in the Bavarian Courier, an official paper, said Father Schachleiter was setting himself against the church authorities as well as the entire German hierarchy.

"His article means open insurrection against a church order and violates the rule prohibiting a member of the clergy from printing articles without the approval of the regional bishop," the officials said.

According to the Bavarian Courier, this is the second brush the monk has had with the church authorities. A year ago the privilege of saying mass in the archdioceses of Munich and Freising was withdrawn, the paper said. No date has been set for his appearance before church officials.

Berlin, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—The death of three anti-Fascists in various clashes with Nazis last night raised the death toll since the accession of Chancellor Hitler on Monday to 20. A Communist was clubbed to death in a fight in Duisburg, where many were injured in the course of several conflicts.

In Berlin an 18-year-old Communist died not far from the Charlottenburg district. Police arrested four Nazis.

One man who wore an anti-Fascist pin was slain and another was seriously injured in an exchange of shots between Nazis and Communists in the Neukoelln section.

BINGHAM SEEKS NEW BALLOT ON ECONOMY PLAN

Would Have Senate Reconsider Five Per Cent Slash.

SEA MAIL CONTRACT FIGHT GROWS BITTER

Senators Condemn McKellar Proposal to Cut Funds as Blow to Shipping.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

A motion to reconsider the entire Bratton amendment to the Treasury-Postoffice bill, authorizing 5 per cent cuts in expenditures by heads of the two departments, was filed in the Senate last night by Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, chairman of the Senate economy committee.

Earlier he moved to reconsider only the Costigan amendment, prohibiting reduction in wages or further payless furloughs in carrying out the Bratton slash. He said the amendment would operate only to force out of work employes whose jobs could be saved by imposition of additional furloughs.

Advised by parliamentarians that this motion is not in order, the Connecticut senator last night moved that the revised Bratton provision, which contains the Costigan wage exemption, be reconsidered. He said he would not press for action today.

Ocean Mail Contracts.

Meantime the Senate, forced into a night session by senators anxious to clear the short session docket of appropriation bills, was involved in a bitter fight over the McKellar proposal to cut in half the $35,500,000 appropriation in the bill for ocean mail contracts.

Many members from inland States joined with senators from seaboard territory in condemning the proposal as a repudiation of contract and a mortal blow to the American merchant marine. A vote will be taken on the amendment today.

Concluding the attack, Senator Bankhead (Democrat), Alabama, declared it would justify a charge that the Government has not been faithful in the performance of its contracts.

"I am obliged to go on record in this case as casting my first vote since I have been in the Senate against the proposed reduction in appropriations," he said.

Wholesale Discharges.

Joining the assault on the amendment were Senators Fletcher (Democrat), Florida; White (Republican), Maine; Walsh (Democrat), Massachusetts; Copeland (Democrat), New Eighteen men were arrested, charged with inciting to riot. They are alleged to have defied police.

Constables had gone to the houses to sell the furniture of one family and evict another family. A crowd gathered and the constables fled.

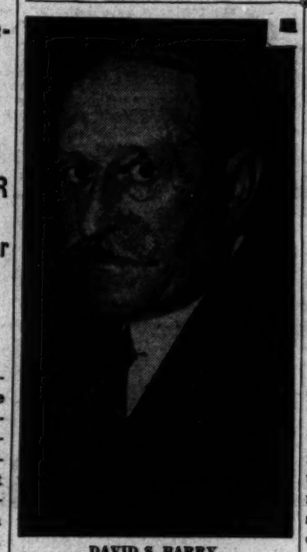
DAVID BARRY IS SUSPENDED BY SENATORS



DAVID S. BARRY.

REPORT DUE ON TUESDAY

Reed Motion to Refer Matter to Committee Wins Approval.

By J. BERNARD McDONNELL.

The United States Senate, which prides itself on being the most august and dignified legislative body of the modern world, rose in its wrath yesterday and suspended David S. Barry, its veteran sergeant at arms, because he had charged in a story published in the New Outlook magazine that there weren't many members of the House and Senate whose votes could be bought for cold cash.

The Senate probably wouldn't have noticed the article at all if it hadn't been for Representative Fiorella H. LaGuardia (Republican), of New York, who made a speech on the floor of the House and demanded that Mr. Barry apologize for his temerity.

The LaGuardia speech set off the fireworks. The dignified Senate forthwith summoned the elderly Mr. Barry before its bar and proceeded to lambast him. It would have been a merry party had Mr. Barry not sought refuge in the contention that he hadn't realized just how his article would look in print and had not also contended that his purpose was to defend the members of Congress against the common assumption that there were those among them whose votes could be bought for so many dollars.

Declines to Have Counsel.

Mr. Barry, who was a newspaper correspondent of long years of experience before he took the job of sergeant at arms of the Senate, waived various proposals to supply him with counsel and to delay consideration of his act. He stood before the Senate alone and didn't make a very good showing.

Between the time that it became apparent his magazine article was going to be made the subject of Senate action looking to giving him an official castigation and the time the castigatory machinery got going there had been many conferences behind closed doors and much discussion among senators and many whispers.

Prominent in these conferences and whispering gatherings in offices and cloakrooms were some of those senators who, it was thought by the observers in the press galleries, might be among the group Mr. Barry inferred as liable to give their votes for cold cash.

Reed Makes Proposal.

Senator David A. Reed (Republican), of Pennsylvania, who is regarded as such a tory, even among senators, that no vested interest ever would waste time offering him money for his vote, proposed that the matter should be referred to the Judiciary Committee with a decision next Friday.

Senator George W. Norris (Republican), of Nebraska, said the Reed

BROWN MAKES PLEA FOR AIR MAIL FUNDS

States Elimination Would Nearly Ruin Industry; Award Now Seen.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Postmaster General Brown presented an urgent appeal to Democratic leaders in the Senate yesterday to restore the $19,000,000 air mail appropriation stricken from the Post-office-Treasury supply bill Thursday.

After an extended conference with Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, Mr. Brown made public a letter declaring that elimination of the contract pay would "practically destroy the aeronautical industry in the United States" and wipe out tremendous investments in aviation from coast to coast.

He also challenged the legality of the move, on the ground that the Government is under contractual obligations to continue the air mail service over certified routes until April, 1936. Under the circumstances, he suggested, Congress is obligated to provide the necessary funds.

The $19,000,000 item was struck from the supply bill Thursday by a coalition of Senate Democrats and insurgent Republicans. The original resolution was offered by Senator Kenneth D. McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee, but later was modified and presented as a motion of Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader.

In debate on the Robinson motion Democratic spokesmen suggested the entire policy of air mail operations should be held open for reconsideration by the new administration in the special session of Congress.

Republican senators charged the item was stricken as a mere gesture in the economy hurly-burly, to force the administration to appeal publicly for its restoration.

"Eliminating or crippling the air mail at the present time will practically destroy the aeronautical industry, with a gross annual turnover of $50,000,000, taking into account the $25,000,000 disbursed by the air-mail operators, and will wipe out investments of the Federal Government, municipalities and private enterprises

The verdict in the case of Sam Waller was a compromise arrangement arrived at after they came in with the 30-year sentence for William Waller. Sam was sentenced to 20 years for alleged participation in the killing of Constable Sheppard and the serious wounding of Town Sergeant Joseph Francis, and an additional five years for his part in the theft of an automobile which was being held by the county as a suspected liquor-running machine.

HOUSE TOLD REVOLT SIGNS ARE GROWING

(Associated Press.)

A cry of impending danger to the Nation, with signs of revolt already plain, was raised yesterday in the House by Representative LaGuardia, of New York, pleading urgently for action to cut down the interest rates of mortgages on homes and farms.

"When the history of this period is written from the proper perspective, the farmers of Iowa who resisted to protect their homes will take their place in history with the Boston tea party," he shouted. "If you are going to save the country, and the country is worth saving, we have to act, and act promptly.

"When you are having rope parties on the doorsteps of your courts it is time that we look the situation in the face and act accordingly. The interest rates will have to be brought down to 3 per cent if we are going to save the Republic. Capital has got to reduce its profit and will have to get accustomed to lesser income."

Witnesses From West.

As he spoke, witnesses from West and South were telling Senate committees that aid must be extended to agriculutre if serious consequences are to be avoided.

Former Gov. Angus W. McLean of North Carolina and William H. Settle, of Indianapolis, vice president of the Farmers National Grain Corporation, minced no words in portraying critical conditions.

A very different warning on the same topic was issued by Franklin W. Fort, chairman of the Home Loan Board, who told newspapermen that if Legislatures disturb the legal process by which unpaid mortgages are foreclosed the founts of money lending are going to be closed up.

Schools May Close.

Laguardia said several big insurance companies have suspended foreclosures and more must follow, but that is not the solution.

"This is a question that requires action this session," he said. "If we can bring down interest rates we can save the homes of thousands of home owners and the farms of thousands and thousands of farmers."

In serious tones, former Gov. McLean told the Senate Banking Subcommittee considering farm mortgage relief measures that "schools are on the verge of closing" because taxes can not be collected. He predicted that "practically all the services of the Government in the agricultural districts will break down in the next six months unless something is done."

Approves Hull Bill.

"We will not have any strikes or disregard of the law like they have in the West," he said of his Southeastern region, "but the people are in great distress and are disheartened.

"Something's got to be done, gentlemen."

As an emergency measure until a comprehensive program of farm mortgage relief can be worked out, he expressed approval of the Hull bill, which is intended to stop mortgage foreclosures for two years.

It would authorize the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to lend $1,000,000,000 to farmers to be used in paying mortgage installments and taxes, the mortgagee agreeing not to foreclose for two years in return for these payments.

Protests Cancel Loan to Boulder

(Associated Press.)

Vigorous protests on the part of rooming house keepers at Boulder have cussed the Reconstruction Corporation to rescind its appproval of a loan for construction of a women's dormitory and dining room at the University of Colorado.

Although corporation officials declined to discuss the situation, it was leraned yesterday that the $550,000 authorization granted several weeks ago had been withdrawn with the understanding that should Gov. Johnson and university officials wish to go into the matter further another application would be considered. There are at present no dormitories for either men or women on the campus.

Many vigorous protests were filed with the corporation by citizens of Boulder, it was learned, especially by rooming house keepers. Former Senator Thomas, of Colorado, was one of those protesting.

B.&O. May Borrow $5,000,000 of R. F. C.

I. C. C. Authorizes Fourth Loan Which Will Meet Trust Maturities.

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co. was authorized yesterday by the Interstate Commerce Commission to borrow $5,000,000 from the Reconstruction Corporation to meet equipment trust maturities during the first six months of this year.

This is the fourth loan the company has received from the corporation $7,000,000 having been approved on March 30, 1982, by the commission; $25,500,000 on May 16, 1932, and $31,625,000 on August 19, 1932.

The $31,625,000 loan was for the purpose of enabling the railroad to pay half of a bond issue of $63,250,000, which will mature on March 1 of this year. The commission report yesterday said the company has been successful in developing its plan for refinancing, reaching a point where it may be expected to become operative in the near future.

Congress Pay Cut Plan Of Tennessee Member

(Associated Press)

Representative Mitchell, of Tennessee, is going to give Congress a chance to vote itself out of a lot of privileges and a lot of pay.

He told newspapermen yesterday he would propose, as amendments to the appropriation bill for the legislative establishment, the reduction of pay of Congress members from $8,000 to $5,000; elimination of members' relatives from the payrolls and a measure to eliminate "such things as free barber shop privileges and to cut out some of the army of hangers-on about the Capitol who perform no real service."

Chinese Commander Says Jehol Will Be Defended Against Foe.

(Copyright, 1933, by the United Press.)

Peiping, Feb. 3.—Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang, young commander in chief of China's armies in the northern area, sternly warned Japan today that his forces, numbering upward of 200,000 men, were mobilized and ready to defend Jehol Province against the next Japanese advance.

The generalissimo declared that if Japan renewed the Jehol offensive, as threatened, "It will be impossible to predict where the hostilities will end."

"We are ready to fight," the marshal said. "We hope the offensive will not come—but it appears to be developing.

"If they invade Jehol, it will mean the most serious warfare yet to come in this fighting. Our men are better equipped and we are ordered to resist any attempted advance. We are ready."

"I can't say whether the Japanese will try to invade Peiping or Tientsin," he continued. "There are reports, of course, but we can't tell what will happen now. We'll have to see what happens when the fighting starts."

"Will Gov. Tang Yu-Lin (of Jehol), remain loyal to you?" he was asked.

He shrugged and replied: "That can best be answered when the fighting is over."

The marshal emphasized that he "means business" when he said the Chinese would fight.

"We're not merely making a gesture at defending Jehol," he said. "I'm confident of our ability to defend the province, and we mean to do it. If the Japanese try to invade Jehol, it will mean very serious warfare."

GARNER TURNS DOWN HIGH TARIFF ACTION

Speaker Asserts Democrats Will Block Depreciated Currency Program.

(Associated Press.)

Republican plans for higher tariffs against depreciated currency countries last night appeared lost in the blind alley walled in by March 4 and the end of the congressional session. The blockade was designated pointedly yesterday by Speaker Garner, who said:

"There will be no foreign depreciated currency legislation enacted at this session of Congress. It is unnecessary if not foolish to undertake such a large problem as this with the Senate in the condition it is."

Then he predicted that a majority of the House would not support the Republican motion, which comes to a vote February 13, to force consideration of the Crowther bill for automatic tariff boosts against countries whose currencies have depreciated.

If necessary, Garner added, the Democrats will caucus to block the effort.

The Speaker's statement to newspapermen reduced to a formality any action which may be taken today by the ways and means subcommittee which has been considering the issue. Further, Representative Rainey, the Democratic leader, has stated definitely that such legislation had no chance of receiving the full committee's approval.

The subcommittee did not rule its hearings formally closed until yesterday when advised that Secertary Mills did not desire to testify on the subject. Previously, his special assistant, John J. Hopkins, opopsed the Crowther plan.

(Associated Press.)

Housewives made up a large percentage of Americans who traveled abroad last year and much of the travel was on account of "family affairs."

Of the 153,218 passports issued or renewed by the State Department in 1932, only 61,625 applicants gave travel for "pleasure" as their reason for obtaining passports, while "family affairs" was the reason given by 65,455 persons.

Keaton's Contract Off, He Plans Health Cruise

Hollywood, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Buster Keaton's contract with the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Motion Picture Studios was canceled by mutual consent today and the "dead pan" film comedian prepared to leave for Hawaii in search of health. He siad he would sail in a few days with Lew Cody, film actor.

It was explained at the studios that Keaton has been in ill health for several months and that he contracted influenza during the filming of his latest picture. He spent today at home in bed.

NEW VOTE IS SOUGHT ON 5 PER CENT CUT

York; Oddie (Republican), Nevada, and Bingham.

Justifying his move to throw out the Bratton 5 per cent cut with the Costigan limitation on wage cuts, Senator Bingham said off the floor last night he is convinced after a study of the matter that it would result in wholesale discharges.

Senator Costigan (Democrat), Colorado, disagreed with him, insisting he saw no reason why his amendment would result in further dismissals. In a letter to Costigan, the American Federation of Labor supported the Colorado senator's position.

Industry's Plan Cited.

Senator Bingham said he thought the federation was making a mistake in taking this stand. He said industrialists in New England and other sections of the country are moving to spread employment through furloughs, to avoid throwing a large number of workers out of jobs, and the Costigan provision is counter to this movement.

Senator Bingham, Senator Hale (Republican), Maine, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, and others, will oppose another Bratton amendment, to make the 5 per cent cut applicable to all departments, when the economy section of the Treasury-Postoffice bill is reached.

ARREST OF BULLITT SOUGHT BY SENATOR

(Associated Press.)

Senator Robinson (Republican), Indiana, last night formally requested the State Department to investigate the activities abroad of William C. Bullitt and to have him arrested if he is found to be negotiating on debts, as reported. He asked that this action be taken under the Logan act, which provides heavy penalties for persons dealing with foreign governments without authorization.

Robinson made the same demand in the Senate Thursday and drew from the Democratic leader, Robinson, of Arkansas, a reiteration of a denial by President-elect Roosevelt that Bullitt was representing him in Europe.

Robinson's Charges.

The Indiana senator sent the following letter yesterday to Secretary Stimson:

"According to press dispatches, one William C. Bullitt is in Europe going from capital to capital, claiming to be a representative of the Hon. Franklin D. Roosevelt, President-elect of the United States.

"He is reported to have held conversations with prominent officials of the French and British governments, looking to revision, reduction or cancellation of the indebtedness due from those countries to the United States, notwithstanding the fact that the American Congress has decided definitely that said indebtedness shall not be reduced or canceled.

Roosevelt's Repudiation.

"Mr. Roosevelt has stated that Mr. Bullitt does not represent him in this capacity and I assume he holds no credentials from the Government of the United States.

"Under these circumstances I respectfully urge that his activities be investigated and if the alleged facts be corroborated that he be apprehended and prosecuted under section 5 of the Logan act. (This provides a penalty of $5,000 or three years' imprisonment for having intercourse with a foreign government, without express permission, on measures affecting the United States.)

"The activities of this man, as reported, are extremely harmful to the best interests of the people of the United States and in utter defiance of the Congress and its enactments."

President's Action Due on Crop Loans

Wednesday Is Deadline for Approval or Veto of Relief Bill.

(Associated Press.)

Indication was given at the White House last night that President Hoover would act shortly upon the $90,000,000 crop loan production bill now resting upon his desk for final approval or veto.

The Chief Executive has had the measure under consideration for more than a week, and has received reports upon it from Secretary Hyde and J. Clawson Roop, director of the budget, but has given no hint of the reason for thus far delaying his action.

From Capitol Hill and other sources in official Washington have come conflicting reports as to Mr. Hoover's action upon the measure. The intervening of nonlegislative days give the President until next Wednesday to act upon the bill or allow it to become a law without his signature.

Treasury Note Bid 'Padding' Charged

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Mills announced yesterday the Treasury had accepted $277,516,600 of the $7,802,643,600 subscriptions for the February 1, offering of 2½ per cent Treasury notes which mature in five years.

These subscriptions were so large, the Secretary said, that they apparently were heavily padded and the Treasury would have to take action to prevent repetition of such occurences.

Bidders asked for much more of the securities than they actually wanted in the hope of getting their requirements on the division.

BILL TO LIBERALIZE R. F. C. PROGRESSES

(Associated Press.)

Urgent pleas for more Federal help in caring for mounting millions of unemployed yesterday won such support in a Senate banking subcommittee that quick approval was in sight for Senator Wagner's bill to open up all resources of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for relief.

The bright prospect in committee developed as yesterday's final hearings on the bill brought forward witness after witness in earnest, poignant urging for help. Action is expected early next week. The ultimate outlook for passage, however, was dimmed by the jam of legislation waiting action in the Senate.

Labor men, welfare workers, economists and spokesmen for the unemployed, followed one another on the stand to urge approval of the New York senator's bill. It not only would remove the present small limit on relief loans but also would make it easier for the corporation to make loans for job-providing construction work.

Huge Jobless Figures.

While the hearing was in progress the Reconstruction Corporation announced that during the last three months of 1932 it made loans for relief and self-liquidating construction totaling $173,902,957. During the same time it made 1,882 loans to railroads, banks, trust companies and other institutions, aggregating $214,843,326.

Edward F. McGrady, legislative representative for the Federation of Labor, told the committee that unemployment has passed the 12,000,000 mark; that 9,000,000 others are on part time; that 45,000,000 Americans are living "in poverty" and that 15,000,000 of them are existing "only with the help of charity, without which they would perish."

Almost as black a picture was painted by Miss Grace Abbott, chief of Federal Children's Bureau, who said that relief demands have "passed all experience" and are not being met anywhere.

Warns of "Revolution."

Harvey Couch, director of the Reconstruction Corporation, recommended liberalization of the law under which the relief organization can make construction loans from its fund of $1,500,000,000 for self-liquidating projects.

David Cushman, New York engineer and economist, testified that the situation is so serious the Federal Government should throw every resource into the battle. He recommended that loans be made by the Government for any useful projects, regardless of their economic soundness.

P. J. Horne, who said he was one of the transient unemployed, told the senators "revolution is hanging over your heads." He advised opening Army camps for the migratory labor "before you have a revolution."

Warning on Mortgage Holiday Made by Fort

(Associated Press)

Franklin W. Fort, chairman of the Federal Loan Board, yesterday warned States Legislatures not to tamper with the terms and conditions of collecting mortgages, saying that such action carried too far would stop new lending by institutions.

Fort, just returned from a trip to Topeka, Little Rock and Des Moines, said lending institutions were pursuing a liberal policy toward persons on whose property they held mortgages, even though payments had not been made for as much as 12 months.

House Restaurant To Continue Loss

(Associated Press.)

The Appropriations Committee voted yesterday to let the House continue operating a losing business—the restaurant where members, employes, their friends and newspapermen eat daily.

In the legislative appropriation bill reported for action there was allocated $65,000 to pay waiters, chef, manager and other employes in the restaurant.

By a special resolution, the House several years ago voted to operate the restaurant itself, instead of letting it go to somebody else as a concession. The restaurant charges for its meals, but these charges usually are only about enough to pay for the food, the silverware and the equipment. A special appropriation is necessray for the employes.

DODGES TRIAL

C. C. JULIAN.

CANADIAN, IN BIG OIL FRAUD, TO SKIP BAIL

States Soviet Courts Fairer Than American; Promoted Vast Stock Sales.

Oklahoma City, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—C. C. Julian, debonair Irish-Canadian, who has promoted oil ventures in the United States running into millions of dollars, has given notice he intends to jump his $25,000 bail here and take refuge in Canada to escape trial on mail fraud charges.

His decision was stated in a letter received today by Walter M. Harrison, managing editor of the Oklahoma City Times and the Oklahoman. Although postmarked from Chicago, the letter was dated Vancouver, B. C.

Trial to Open Monday.

The trial of Julian and more than 50 other defendants accused of using the mails to defraud in the sale of about $3,500,000 worth of stock in the Julian Oil & Royalties Co., now in receivership, is set for next Monday in Federal court.

Federal officials said Julian probably would be safe as long as he remains in Canada, his native land, as the extradition treaty between the United States and Canada does not cover mail fraud cases.

The promoter's letter bitterly attacked methods used by Federal investigators in gathering evidence against him and declared his belief that he could "get a fairer trial in Russia than in the United States of America."

Several Sent to Prison.

Herbert K. Hyde, United States district attorney, said the trial would get under way Monday regardless of whether Julian appears.

Julian's career has been one of spectacular climbs to financial heights and sudden drops to virtual insolvency.

His most spectacular promotion was the organization of the Julian Petroleum Co. in California some years ago. The company grew into a $40,000,000 producing and marketing corporation but Julian stepped out before the bubble burst. S. G. Lewis was left in charge. Thousands of investors lost money and several of the officials were sent to prison when it was discovered that there had been an overissue of stock amounting to millions.

President Signs Act For Credit Extension

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover yesterday signed an act extending to March 3, 1934, an existing credit extension measure under which Federal Reserve banks are authorized to make advances to member banks of $5,000,000 capitalization or under on demand or promissory notes.

The existing act would expire on March 3, 1933. It was designed officially to improve the "facilities of the Federal Reserve system to meet the needs of member banks in exceptional circumstance."

Bennett Clark Takes Oath Succeeding Senator Hawes

Lower Tariff Is Declared Immediate Aim as Son of Champ Clark Is Sworn in; Tribute Is Paid to Predecessor.

(Associated Press.)

Champ Clark's boy began a senatoral career yesterday with lower tariffs his principal and immediate aim.

Bennett Clark, son of the late distinguished Speaker of the House, took the oath upon the retirement of another St. Louisan and, like himself, a soldier-lawyer-politician—Harry B. Hawes.

Senator Hawes' term would not have expired until March 3. But he resigned to give Clark—who was elected to the full six-year term beginning March 4—the jump on the other new Democratic senators in both experience and committee assignments. He was appointed to round out Hawes' unexpired term by Gov. Park.

Clark, big, broad-shouldered, with a brisk step and a cheery smile, told newspapermen after he had been inducted into office that he greatly appreciated the opportunity of becoming a senator before his regular term begins.

He said he would devote his attention to the general business before Congress, but would give special consideration to lowering tariffs. His first vote, he said, would be against the Johnson proposal to force Government departments to buy, as far as practicable, American-made goods.

"Why try to expand our trade and then raise the barrier still higher by such a principle?" he asked, and, answering himself, continued: "It's all wrong."

Attired in morning coat, striped trousers and gray spats, Clark was escorted to the Vice President's platform by Democratic Leader Robinson as Hawes sat in his accustomed place in the rear row on the Democratic side. Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, president pro tem, administered the oath.

There followed one of the warmest tributes ever paid a man leaving the Senate. Senator after senator, Republican and Democratic, praised Hawes for his distinguished public service in House and Senate and particularly for his untiring efforts to gain freedom for the Filipinos.

Hawes served as a member of the House in the Sixty-seventh, Sixty-eighth and Sixty-ninth Congresses, was elected November 2, 1926, to the unexpired term of the late Senator Selden P. Spencer, expiring March 3, 1927, and to the full term ending next month. He did not stand for reelection.

SOMERS FORECASTS SILVER PLAN GAINS

Says House Coinage Group Will Indorse Currency Expansion Project.

(Associated Press.)

Early completion of one or more essential steps toward remonetization of silver—committee indorsement—was predicted last night by Chairman Somers of the House Coinage Committee.

The New York Democrat said he was certain there were enough votes in his committee to approve by the first of next week a bill to make silver a monetary reserve for legal tender and to permit a currency expansion of $1,500,000,000.

"We're going to vote out a bill," Somers said, "and I feel fairly certain as to what it will contain."

Pay With Certificates.

It will provide, Somers forecast, that the Secretary of the Treasury may purchase silver offered to him and pay for it with silver certificates. Under the plan Somers contemplates the silver the first three months would command 40 cents an ounce, against the present market price of 24 and a fraction.

The next three months, he believes, it would be 50 cents, the next three 60 cents, and from that time on the price would increase one-half of 1 cent a month until it reached $1.29.

"There are only about 12,000,000,000 ounces of silver in the world available for monetary use," Somers said. "We can't possibly figure on more than two-thirds of that being offered to our Treasury.

Will Hear Economists.

"That would give us, roughly and over a space of eleven and a half years, a possible currency expansion of $1,500,000,000—and remember, that is provided that we, the United States, get two-thirds of the monetary silver in the world."

The completed bill, he said, likely would contain restrictions to forbid the purchase of silver that previously had been coined, thus preventing dumping, and give the Treasury power to suspend purchases if it appeared a "corner" on silver was about to give the metal a fictitious price.

Somers said that after the bill was agreed upon, he probably would go ahead with his original plan to give hearings to leading economists and bankers of the country.

PERU'S PEACE ENVOY MAY GO TO HAVANA

Dr. Maurtua Also Engaged Here on Pan-American Conference.

(Associated Press.)

Departure soon for Havana of Dr. Victor Maurtua, of Peru, was predicted yesterday by his associates.

The Peruvian diplomat, who came here several months ago to seek conciliation with Colombia of the Leticia dispute, is understood to consider his work terminated by the negotiations at Rio de Janeiro.

Dr. Maurtua, who is an outstanding member of the inter-American Institute of International Law, has told friends he would go to Havana on private business.

Preparations of Institute.

Besides occupying himself with the Leticia dispute, Dr. Maurtua has been engaged in preparations of the institute for the Pan-American conference at Montevideo. The institute was slated to meet at Buenos Aires a few days before the Montevideo meeting last September. The meeting was postponed after the Montevideo conference was postponed.

Dr. Maurtua made various efforts in different directions here to settle the Colombia quarrel, all apparently futile. He talked informally with Dr. Pomponio Guzman, of Colombia, seeking a formula for retirement of Peru from Leticia and simultaneous negotiations for revision of the Salomon-Lozano treaty of 1922, by which Colombia acquired the Leticia corridor Cruchaga sailed to become fortions ended when Chilean Ambassador Cruchaga sailed to become foreign minister. Cruchaga had been the link between Maurtua and Guzman.

"Commission of Persuasion."

Maurtua also drafted a lengthy memorandum which was presented to the permanent commission of Washington, arguing that Colombia should be urged by the commission to name members of a conciliatory commission called for in the Gondra Treaty. This Colombia refused to do.

A third step taken by Maurtua was to hand the commission a plan for sending to Leticia a "commission of persuasion," which would endeavor to return Leticia to Colombian control peacefully. Meanwhile negotiations for revision of the treaty were to be initiated. This plan was finally forwarded to Brazil as a suggestion by the permanent commission, headed by Minister J. Varela, of Uruguary, but Brazil has not adopted it. Maurtua's plan also encompassed a nonaggression pact between Peru and Colombia.

Cruiser Indianapolis Is Damaged in Tests

(Associated Press.)

The Navy Department said yesterday the principal damage suffered by the U. S. S. Indianapolis in recent firing tests off Hampton Roads was to the searchlight platform bases.

The vessel, the Navy's newest cruiser, will return soon to the Philadelphia Navy Yard for repairs, following her first trip to sea. The Navy described the repairs as of a minor nature. It was said at the department that a new vessel almost always needs minor repairs after the first tests.

Georgian Explains Budget Balancing

State Didn't Have Any Big Bond Issues to Meet, One Reason Given.

(Associated Press.)

Roy Harris, representing the Governor of Georgia, at the double taxation conference here yesterday, explained how Georgia balanced its budget.

Mr. Harris said, in opening a brief address, that Georgia was not greatly interested in the general tax problem for three reasons.

First, he said, the localities had been delegated much of the tax collecting power; second, the State had no big bond issues to meet, and third, "the State balanced its budget by overlooking the deficit."

When the laughter at his third point had subsided, Mr. Harris continued: "When President-elect Roosevelt spoke in Georgia a while ago some one told him Georgia had balanced its budget without raising taxes. Well, in a speech that was broadcast all over the country, Mr. Roosevelt said he was going to balance the National budget the way Georgia did."

Modified Foreign Goods Ban Voted

(Associated Press.)

The Senate last night voted a modified restriction on imports by confining all Government Departments to the purchase of American-made materials and supplies wherever practicable. The vote was 41 to 12.

The issue split the Democrats widely despite a modification which would permit use of foreign materials if similar products were not produced in the United States "in sufficiently and reasonably available commercial quantities and satisfactory quality."

The proposal, sponsored by Senator Johnson (Republican), California, was offered as an amendment to the Treasury-Postoffice appropriation bill.

LINDSAY RECEPTION IN LONDON AWAITED

British Envoy Faces Task of Getting Government to Alter Debt View.

(Associated Press.)

Whether Sir Ronald Lindsay will be able upon his arrival in London next Monday to modify the British view that American war debts must be scaled down unconditionally in the interest of the creditor and debtor alike is the question of the hour in Washington diplomatic circles.

Premier Ramsay MacDonald's decision to accept the chairmanship of the World Economic Conference on condition that it be held in London created an impression in official Washington that there is no disposition in Europe to abandon plans for the general discussion of world economic problems in an effort to better commodity prices.

There have been rumors in many of the European capitals that this conference would not be held if some agreement is not reached with the Washington Government for revision in intergovernmental debt settlements.

British View Is Blind.

Restatements of Great Britain's apparent belief that American public opinion can be won over to the British position are surprising to American officials who have been dealing with war debts. These statements are believed generally in official circles to be of such a character that they will handicap the Roosevelt discussions with British representatives.

However, Great Britain asked for a debt conference, and as conferences are seldom arranged for the purpose of disagreement, many officials regard the Chamberlain speeches and other statements as efforts to build up a position for more advantageous trading.

Congress Is Hostile.

The effect of these efforts apparently has made the irreconciliables in Congress even firmer in their stand. The cancellation or radical reduction of debts without some concessions in exchange apparently is no more popular than it was when the European powers agreed to a 90 per cent reduction in reparations at Lausanne last summer, on condition that the United States revise its intergovernmental debt settlements.

President Hoover resented the mass movement for debt reductions, and the President-elect's decision to have individual discussions with the debtors, in which both war debts and economic problems will be considered, made clear the determination of the incoming government to refuse reductions unless concessions are made which will benefit American industries and agriculture.

Bill Hits Funeral Costs of Congress

(Associated Press.)

For the first time, steps were taken yesterday to reduce the number of Representatives who attend funerals of members at Government expense.

Instead of a dozen, who ordinarily attend from the House, the $16,500,000 legislative offices bill reported yesterday said that only two might go unless they paid their own way. A representative of the sergeant at arms is allowed to go in addition, but the custom of paying the way of relatives is prohibited.

If the House adopts the provision, it will also pay the expenses of only two Senators, should the funeral be that of a House member.

Lieut. (junior grade) Frank M. Nichols, of Nashville, Tenn., pilot of the plane, was slightly injured. He was rescued by a patrol plane and taken to a hospital. The body of Walwork had not been recovered.

NINE WOMEN PERISH IN SANITARIUM FIRE

Patients Led to Safety Rush Back Into Flames; Man Is Arrested and Freed.

Cleveland, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Nine frenzied women patients raced into a blazing cottage on the Ridgecliff Sanitarium grounds and perished today—after they had once been led to safety.

Nurses and attendants fought a pitched battle with 14 others who lived in the cottage, and succeeded in keeping them outside until help came.

Incendiarism Is Doubted.

State Fire Marshal Val Haffner, who at first suspected incendiarism, tonight said the blaze probably was caused by defective wiring or an overheated furnace. He said there was no evidence of incendiarism.

A man who, hospital authorities said, had threatened them because of a dispute over money, was arrested at the request of the management, but was released when he proved he was at home all last night.

Attendant Millard L Smith discovered the fire in the cottage basement just after 1 a. m. He said he used a garden hose to extinguish the fire in the furnace, but additional flames appeared to be coming from another part of the basement.

Insist on Returning.

With three women nurses he started to lead the 23 women patients from the two upper floors, but as fast as the scantily attired inmates were exposed to the cold, most of them insisted on returning to the warmth inside.

By this time attendants from the main sanitarium building had gone into action with a step ladder, dragging the struggling women through windows and doorways. It was necessary to use force in most cases.

Found Woman Under Bed.

"The smoke was about to get me," said Brady, "when I looked under a bed and found an elderly lady crouched against the wall. I dragged her to the window and handed her out. It was all I could do to follow down the ladder."

Within five hours all of the patients had been accounted for with one exception. Her body was found in the ruins of the cottage late today.

The dead: Mrs. Lottie Roback, 32; Miss Helen Kovack, 49; Mrs. Agnes Dorrington, 78; Mrs. Loraine Dean, 76; Mrs. Fannie Laundon, 54; Miss Ethel R. Zipp, 24; Mrs. Mary Bennett, 73, and Miss Gladys Fraser, 30, all of Cleveland or its suburbs, and Mrs. Isabel McBride, of New Castle, Pa.

DEATH ENDS HECTIC LIFE OF STEEL SCION

Family of J. C. Davis, Jr., Fails to Prevent Autopsy in Chicago.

Chicago, Feb 3 (A.P.).—The tangled marital affairs of James C. Davis, jr., son of the late wealthy steel executive, ended today with his death in a hotel room.

Relatives sought to prevent an autopsy over his body but the examination went ahead, predicated on the opinion of the chief deputy coroner that Davis had died of an overdose of sedatives.

The 35-year-old son of the late vice president of the American Steel Foundries lost consciousness while talking over the telephone at 3 a. m. to his first wife, Mrs. Ruth Henderson Davis, here.

Sued for Alienation.

Recently he filed suit for divorce in Las Vegas, N. M., from his second wife, the former Betty King, who lives on the Davis ranch, near Vista, Calif.

Last Wednesday he was made defendant in a $100,000 damage suit, alleging alienation of the affections of Mrs. Louise Schramm, 19, who said today that Davis had promised to marry her later. Her husband, Chester Schramm, a druggist clerk, filed the action.

The first Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Frederick Cortis, of Detroit, sister of the dead man, and an attorney for his mother asked the coroner's office to make no autopsy, but officials decided to go ahead.

Wife Sues Mother.

San Diego, Calif., Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Before she had learned of the death of her husband, J. C. Davis, jr., in Chicago, Mrs. Betty King Davis, of Vista, Calif., filed suit in superior court here today against his mother asking $200,000 damages and alleging alienation of his affections.

Mrs. Davis could not be reached tonight, but her attorney, Clifford Fitzgerald, said he believed that she might not press the suit since her husband had died.

"Mrs. Davis loved her husband very much," Fitzgerald said, "and I believe her motive in filing the suit was to attempt to remove the cause of their separation."

Ford Plants Open On Part Schedule

Other Workers Are to Be Recalled as Needed, Factory Reports.

Detroit, Feb. 3 (U.P.).—Work was resumed today on a curtailed basis in the Ford factories, which were forced to shut down last week because of a strike at the Briggs plant, where Ford bodies were produced.

The Ford company recalled 100 tool and die makers this morning, then others during the day. It was understood all would be recalled when enough bodies were on hand to warrant such action. About 40,000 men in local factories and about 150,000 throughout the country were forced into idleness by the strike.

A Ford official said there would be no announcement of the Ford plants reopening and that workers would be recalled as needed. At the Briggs plant work was reported nearing capacity, with rehired strikers and new employes running the machines.

Fight Seen on New Steamer Mail Line

Shipping Board Postpones Action Pending Hearing of Other Interests.

(Associated Press.)

The prediction that Hampton Roads and Baltimore shipping interests would oppose establishment of the proposed Philadelphia mail steamship line was made yesterday at a Shipping Board hearing by Rear Admiral H. I. Cone, board member.

Promoters of the Philadelphia line asked authority to purchase four ships from the United States Lines to establish mail, freight and passenger service from Baltimore, Hampton Roads and Philadelphia, to Manchester and Liverpool, England. They asked the board to act quickly so they might bid on a mail contract.

The board refused to act without hearing from Southern interests after Cone and Chairman T. V. O'Connor had pointed out Baltimore and Hampton Roads interests would be affected. Nothing should be done, they said, to affect seriously present services.

Former Wife of Washingtonian Who Died on Titanic Pneumonia Victim.

Mrs. Mabelle Swift De Wichfeld, former wife of Clarence Moore, prominent Washington capitalist, who lost his life on the Titanic in 1912, died Wednesday in London, according to the Associated Press. Mrs. De Wichfeld, heiress to the Swift millions, and her first husband, built a mansion on Sixteenth street, near Massachusetts avenue northwest, soon after their marriage. It was later sold to the Canadian government for its legation. She was recently divorced from Mr. De Wichfeld, who married Josephine (Fifi) Widener Holden.

Mrs. De Wichfeld was last in Washington about a year ago. She also maintained a residence in Prides Crossing, Mass. She leaves another son, Jasper Moore.

Irish Rail Walkout May Affect Britain

Effort to Move Goods by Ships Likely to Cause Sympathy Strike.

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—The Labor Society's Herald tonight said there was a possibility the rail strike in Northern Ireland might have an early repercussion in England if there was any attempt to use outside labor.

The paper said that if other workers were employed in loading ships here or if there was an attempt to ship goods usually transported by truck or rail a call would be sent to transport workers in the English union to instruct members to boycott ships when they arrived in Liverpool and other ports.

The strike entered its fourth day today with far-reaching effects on business. Travel by rail was almost completely crippled and services still operating have been poorly patronized.

Raskob and duPont Appeal Tax Ruling

(Associated Press.)

John J. Raskob, former chairman of the Democratic national committee, and Pierre S. du Pont, wealthy Wilmington, Del., manufacturer, yesterday asked the United States Board of Tax Appeals to reverse one of its rulings—in seeking to escape additional income tax of $15,977 and $164,477 levied against them.

The ruling in question was that a taxpayer, in making out his return, must deduct any contributions that he has made from his computation of "ordinary income" and that such contributions could not be deducted from "capital net gains."

Raskob deducted $127,820 in 1929 as contributions, but as his ordinary income showed a loss he took it from his capital net gains. Du Pont followed the same procedure.

Bonus Is Opposed By Veterans' Unit

Joint Congressional Group Hears Association Ask for Payments Cut.

(Associated Press.)

The joint congressional committee on veterans' affairs yesterday heard a veterans' organization oppose payment of the bonus and recommend extensive cuts in present payments to former soldiers.

Donald A. Hobart, national vice commander of the American Veterans Association, told the committee, which is studying possible economies in veteran payments, prepayment of the bonus would "impose a staggering burden on the Treasury, with a consequent burden" of taxation.

"We believe that there is no just or sound reason for allowances of any kind being paid to veterans, or dependents of veterans, who suffered no war-incurred physical disability," he said, in recommending repeal of present acts giving such benefits. He said his organization had 6,000 members.

MRS. WANDERWELL TESTIFIES AT TRIAL

Says Document Guy Wrote Against Husband Was Mysteriously Stolen.

Long Beach, Calif., Feb. 3 (A.P.).—A document written in Spanish, purportedly stolen from the wallet of the slain Walter Wanderwell, was described to a jury here today by his widow in her testimony against William James Guy, 23-year-old adventurer on trial for the killing.

Wearing a trimly tailored semi-military uniform which added further color to a case of fascinating mystery, Aloha Wanderwell testified that in South America in the summer of 1931, while Guy was a member of an expedition, he tendered Wanderwell a paper which stated that Guy and other members of the party would no longer accept Wanderwell's leadership.

She said her husband always carried the paper in his wallet, but that it has been missing since he was shot in the back on his yacht Carma by a man who boarded the craft here the night of December 5.

Prosecution questioning of the pretty young widow, who accompanied Wanderwell on his travels from the time they met in southern France when she was 17 years old, stressed the theory that Guy killed Wanderwell to obtain the document so that it could not be used to combat his alleged attempts to collect money from the professional rover.

Just before Mrs. Wanderwell took the stand, the defense lost a motion to take the jury at night on a third trip to the dock and the Carma, in order that it might be determined how dark it was when a voice spoke through a porthole on the night of the killing, inquiring of members of the crew as to Wanderwell's whereabouts.

BRITISH LET DOWN FRENCH ARMS PLAN

Will Not Give Additional Pledges for European Security Demanded.

Geneva, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—The French disarmament plan, which was attacked yesterday by Germany and Italy, met further serious opposition today when the British spokesman announced his country would not give the additional pledges for European security which the French proposal demands.

Capt. Anthony Eden British undersecretary of state, emphasized the value of existing security pacts, such as the League of Nations covenant, the pact of Paris and the Locarno treaties, and asserted it was high time to do some genuine disarming. His statement paralleled the viewpoint expressed yesterday by Count Rudolf Nadolny for Germany.

Czechoslovakia and Belgium, traditional supporters of France's postwar policy, advocated and defended the French scheme which, in addition to calling for security pacts, would eradicate professional armies, replacing them by conscript troops.

The discussion was adjourned until Monday when Hugh Gibson, American delegate to the disarmament conference, and Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar for foreign affairs, are scheduled to speak.

STRONG PLEA MADE BY BROWN FOR AIR-MAIL APPROPRIATION

aggregating more than $300,000,000," Mr. Brown said in his letter to Senator Robinson.

Although neither Senator Robinson nor Mr. Brown indicated a definite agreement had been reached in their personal conference, Senate leaders expressed the opinion last night that the $19,000,000 would be restored to the bill in conference.

Points Out Clause.

"I rest the case of the air-mail service squarely upon the legal and moral obligations of the United States Government," the Postmaster General said in concluding his apeal for restoration of the item. He pointed out that operators flying mail under Government route certificates are vested with a legal right "to carry the air mail over their respective routes and receive just compensation therefor until the fifth day of April, 1936."

These route certificates were issued under the authority of the McNary-Watres act of 1930 and can be terminated by the Postmaster General only for cause. Until so rescinded they constitute an unassailable legal obligation of the Federal Government.

"The Bureau of the Budget, the Postoffice Department and the Appropriations Committees of the House and Senate made a thorough survey of the air-mail requirements for 1934," Mr. Brown's letter emphasized. "In my judgment, due to present business conditions, the sum appropriated is the minimum which will suffice for this important service if the extraordinary progress it has thus far made is not to be sacrificed."

Let-up in Contracts.

He informed Senator Robinson, also, "that no further contracts, route certificates or route extensions will be made by this administration."

More than $22,000,000 has been invested by air-mail operators in facilities comprising a Nation-wide network of 28,000 miles of commercial routes, the letter continued. Another $10,000,000 has been invested through the Department of Commerce in establishing and maintaining airways. Finally municipalities and private interests from coast to coast have invested not less than $125,000,000 in airports. "All of this vast industry," Mr. Brown added, "is wholly dependent upon the continuance of the air-mail services."

The industry rapidly is approaching a volume of business which eventually will make itself sustaining, principally on the basis of increased passenger and express income. Whereas average mail compensation from the Government was 82 cents per mile for 1930, the figure for 1932 was only 45 cents a mile.

Increased Revenue Seen.

"With general business recovery I am confident," Mr. Brown said, "the increased postal and other revenues that may reasonably be anticipated will justify further cuts to a level approximating the actual value of the service rendered, exclusive of any subsidy."

Air-mail miles flown have increased from 14,939,000 in the fiscal year 1930 to an estimated 34,500,000 for 1933. The total appropriation for 1933 is $19,640,000, which will be offset by approximately $7,000,000 in direct revenue from air-mail postage. Under normal business conditions, this direct revenue probably would run in the neighborhood of $10,000,000 a year, Mr. Brown said.

His letter also emphasized the value of the air-mail routes and the training of pilots as a tremendous free benefit to national defense.

ROOSEVELT STUDIES OHIO AND ARKANSAS

2 Watersheds Seen as Ideal for Experiment After Tennessee Valley.

Warm Springs, Ga., Feb. 3 (A.P.).—President-elect Roosevelt cast his eyes at the Ohio and Arkansas watersheds today as the next step in his new Americanization ideal he will try out in the Tennessee River area.

He told newspapermen that if his plans for spreading population and employment for reforestation, flood control and agricultural development in the Tennessee section prove up, he will be ready to go ahead on other projects.

The President-elect believes it will be three or five years before a good test can be measured on the Tennessee proposal, but if it "proves" he is willing to go ahead on others without waiting for full completion of the whole proposition. Ten or twelve years for completion are believed necessary.

Arkansas Next.

Without committing himself to the future, Mr. Roosevelt said the Arkansas watershed looked like a logical next step in the program. He believed it offered opportunities because of the vital Mississippi River flood control problem in that area.

Pointing to the Ohio Valley, he also looked favorably upon it. He said the flood control work on the Miami in Ohio constituted an ideal for such undertakings.

However, with a big job ahead in the Tennessee sector, he is going into no details on other propositions, nor will he be able to do so for some time to come.

En Route with President-Elect Roosevelt to Jacksonville, Fla., Feb. 3 (A.P.). — President-elect Roosevelt concluded his intensive pre-Presidential preparation tonight and set out in a carefree mood for his last private vacation—a 10 days' fishing cruise in Southern waters.

Tomorrow morning in Jacksonville he boards the yacht of Vincent Astor, a distant relative, with a group of intimate personal friends on a cruise that is not destined to touch shore again until February 15.

Democratic party chieftains accompanying Mr. Roosevelt from the Warm Springs conference tables transfer their headquarters for the period to Miami, Fla., and can contact the next President only by radio.

Police Push Hunt For Victim's $1,650

Convinced Man Hit by Car at 14th and Euclid May Have Had Money.

Convinced that Eugene E. Houghton, 40, of 1203 Clifton street northwest, probably did have $1,650 on his person when he was struck by an automobile at Fourteenth and Euclid streets northwest, last week, Tenth Precinct police were continuing their search last night for the money.

When he was taken to Garfield Hospital he had only 55 cents in his pockets, and he was believed to have been intoxicated. Becoming obstreperous, he was removed to Gallinger Hospital, where it was later found he had suffered a fractured skull.

Reports that policemen involved were to be suspended pending solution of the case were denied at the Tenth Precinct station. It was declared two veteran policemen with unblemished records handled the case.

YOUR INCOME TAX

PERSONAL EXEMPTION.

In addition to the personal exemption of $1,000 for single persons and $2,500 for married persons living together and for heads of families, a taxpayer is entitled to a credit of $400 for each dependent, defined by income tax law and regulations as a person under 18 years of age or incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective. The term "mentally or physically defective" means not only cripples and those mentally defective but persons in ill health and the aged.

In order to be entitled to the $400 credit, the taxpayer must furnish the dependent his or her chief support. The credit is based upon actual financial dependency and not mere legal dependency. For example, a father whose children receive half or more of their support from a trust fund or other separate source is not entitled to the credit.

Neither relationship nor residence are factors in the allowance of the $400 credit for a dependent. The taxpayer and the dependent may be residents of different cities. If husband and wife both contribute to the support of a dependent, the $400 credit may be taken by the one contributing the chief support, and may not be divided between them.

A single person who supports in his home an aged mother is entitled not only to the $400 credit for a dependent, but also to the personal exemption of $2,500 as the head of a family. A widower supporting under similar circumstances a dependent child under 18 years of age also is entitled to the personal exemption of $2,500 as the head of a family, plus the $400 credit for a dependent.

Under the revenue act of 1932 both the personal exemption and the credit for dependents are required to be prorated where the status of the taxpayer changed during the year.

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

Thos. G. Clemson.

IT was Agriculture's birthday anniversary yesterday, but Agriculture continued at work as usual in celebration.

Just 73 years ago, February 3, 1860, Agriculture began to be recognized as one of the Nation's most important lines of endeavor. Not that Agriculture hadn't been regarded as such before, but official cognizance was given it on that date as an up-and-going workaday calling.

Thomas G. Clemson was appointed by J. Thompson, Secretary of the Interior, as the first superintendent of the Agricultural Division at a salary of $2,000 a year. He continued in office until March 4, 1861. War clouds were gathering. Lincoln was taking over the Presidency. Mr. Clemson, former slaveholder and still strongly Southern in sympathies, threw his lot with the Confederates.

AGRICULTURE, until 1860, was something of a football, to be kicked around from one bureau and department to another. Agriculture has been included as part of the State Department, the Interior Department and even part of the Patent Office, for some reason or other.

For 10 years, Agriculture was just another division of the State Department. For another 40 years, it was in Interior. In 1889 Agriculture was given a place in the Cabinet and a Secretary took his place at the council table. Agriculture has grown to be the second largest department in the Government and the functions and services are many and varied.

It is said of Mr. Clemson, who founded Clemson College, in South Carolina, that he was in fact a giant, yet well proportioned and he stood 6 feet 4 inches and wore number 13 shoes, we learn by reference to information in the department's library, Miss C. R. Barnett, librarian.

ANOTHER switch in date of sale of the forthcoming Oglethorpe commemorative postage stamp. Instead of February 14, the stamps will go on sale in Savannah, Ga., February 12 (Sunday), and here the following day.

The reason for this change is that the true anniversary of the founding of the Georgia Colony by Gen. Oglethorpe falling on February 12, 1733, when he landed at Savannah on that date has outweighed consideration of that day this year falling on Sunday.

Stamp collectors and others interested who have sent first-day covers to the postmaster at Savannah are advised that any covers received before midnight of February 13 will be canceled as of February 12. Special arrangements are being made by the department to offer for sale the Oglethorpe commemorative stamps at all Georgia postoffices on Monday, February 13, so far as practicable to do so, and also at the Philatelic Agency, Washington, the same date. The Atlanta postmaster will receive an advance shipment of the Oglethorpe stamps in order to effect a small distribution to all third and fourth class postoffices. The demand for the Oglethorpe stamps on requisitions received from postmasters to date has required the department to authorize an additional printing of 25,000,000, making 50,000,000 thus far authorized.

These commemorative stamps will be issued to other postoffices throughout the country as fast as production facilities will permit.

It was several minutes before Swarmi Fedd's lieutenants could select candidates as Government employe entries in The Washington Post Queen Competition. You see, Mr. Fedd's able aids were dazzled by the brilliance and beauty of the young women who honored the ball and party with their presence and grace. But after careful survey the three above-pictured young women were introduced as candidates. Left to right, they are Miss Gertrude Oakes, Bureau of Mines; Miss Grace A. 22 Governors Plan Inauguration Visit

Mrs. Ferguson Is Among Six State Executives to Accept Bids.

The acceptance of six governors to attend the inauguration yesterday brought to 22 the grand total of State chief executives who will be in Washington on March 4.

Those who signified their intentions yesterday of attending the ceremonies were Clyde L. Herring, of Iowa; Oscar K. Allen, of Louisiana; Joseph B. Ely, of Massachusetts; Floyd B. Olsen, of Minnesota; George White, of Ohio, and Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, of Texas.

Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes of the United States Supreme Court will be the ninth Chief Justice to administer the oath of office. Although 30 men have occupied the Presidency, the long tenure of office of some of the officers of the highest court has extended over a number of inaugurals.

Mayor's Fiat Cash Plan Defeated in Milwaukee

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Mayor Daniel W. Hoan's plan to issue between $5,000,000 and $7,000,000 in fiat money was rejected by the Common Council late today, plunging the city into a financial tangle with prospects of payless pay days for all employes in another month.

The scrip plan, heatedly argued for several weeks, was given its crucial test at a special council session. The mayor's twelve Socialist supporters voted solidly against the coalition of thirteen partisans.

Police Hunt for Burglar Shot by Owner of Store

Police last night were still searching for a possibly wounded colored man who early yesterday broke into a cigar store at 201 Fifteenth street southeast and was met by bullets from a gun in the hands of the proprietor, Brodie H. Coakley.

Coakley, it seems, has been keeping watch at intervals for more than a month since a man tried to break into his store before. Coakley told detectives that he was sitting in the rear of the store, just on the chance that some one would break in, when he heard a man smash the glass in a door and crawl in. He said he waited until the burglar was well inside and then fired five shots. The man disappeared.

Dollar Refuses Transport To 206 Barred Chinese

Liner's World Cruise Canceled as Labor Department Rejects Appeal Against Exclusion; Decision Is Victory for Seamen's Association.

Simultaneously with the announcement by the Labor Department yesterday that a board of inquiry had rejected the appeal of the James Boring Co., a tourist agency, from an Ellis Island ruling excluding from this country 206 Chinese brought here to man two American ships, a statement was issued by R. Stanley Dollar, president of the Dollar Steamship Lines, saying that he had canceled the charter of the liner President Johnson to the Boring Company. This latter news came from San Francisco via the Associated Press.

These Chinese, who have been held at Ellis Island since their arrival from Hongkong 10 days ago, will have to be shipped back to China in the same status as they came, as passengers, it was said at the Labor Department yesterday. They were brought here to work on the Grace liner Santa Elisa, as well as the President Johnson.

R. Stanley Dollar said yesterday that his company's vessel was chartered to the tourist agency with the understanding that the captain and chief engineer would be selected by the line and that the charterers would man, store and equip the ship.

"But despite the arrangements," he said, "made by the charterers, we will not permit them to violate public policy."

The Labor Department decision was a victory for the International Seamen's Association, which protested the bringing of Chinese to this country to man an American vessel.

HARRISON DEMANDS POLITICS ARMISTICE

Senator, Fighting Obstruction, Proposes 10 Legislative Projects for Session.

Providence, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—An "armistice in politics, criticism and obstruction" was demanded tonight by Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, in proposing a series of ten legislative projects for the coming extra session of Congress.

The Mississippian, who stands high in the councils of the Democratic party, said he hoped President-elect Roosevelt would "call the Congress into extraordinary session just as soon as he shall have worked out his legislative program."

Addressing the annual banquet of the Rhode Island Textile Association, the man who will head the powerful Senate Finance Committee in the Roosevelt administration listed the ten points for prompt consideration as follows:

Balancing the budget, prohibition repeal, beer, reciprocal tariff agreements, two farm relief projects, lowering income tax exemptions if necessary, but no sales tax, stabilization of foreign exchanges, bankruptcy and transportation relief.

As author of the resolution for a far-reaching inquiry into the economic situation by the Finance Committee, Harrison cited that more than 50 leading American citizens had been called to give their views at hearings starting February 13.

Declaring the Nation's fiscal structure was "not impaired," the Mississippian nevertheless said the credit of no government "can be sustained for any length of time on an unbalanced budget."

He called for strict economies through reduced appropriations and departmental reorganization and said "if it becomes necessary to increase taxes in order to balance the budget" he would vote to impose them "promptly and courageously."

Wife Slays Doctor Because of Taunts

Confession by Mother of 3 Says He Accused Her of Unfaithfulness.

Enraged when her husband, a physician, accused her of unfaithfulness, Anna Elizabeth Stultz, 24, colored, shot and killed him late Thursday night, she told police yesterday.

The dead man, Dr. Christopher C. Stultz, 35, colored, was found dead in bed at his apartment at 637 Third street northeast, yesterday afternoon. A pistol lay nearby. He was shot five times through the head and body.

Police arrested his wife when she returned to the apartment with his three children by a former marriage. Under questioning she admitted the slaying and told police a story of brutal mistreatment by him. An inquest will be held at the Morgue at noon today.

Blaze Hunt

Firemen See Smoke But Fail to Find Flames in 3-Hour Search.

Being unable to find the fire or a semblance of a fire is a common occurrence with those loyal and heroic laddies who man the city's fire extinguishing equipment. That is merely a false alarm. But it is seldom that they answer an alarm, see the smoke and are unable to find the fire.

Such was their experience yesterday afternoon when they answered an alarm at 7410 Georgia avenue northwest. Smoke was found arising from the rear of a radiator in the apartment of Herbert Eck. They set to work ripping up the flooring, only to find the smoke was coming up the wall. That complicated matters, since the fire could be in the adjoining building. Then the search for the fire began in earnest, and for three hours they worked, being ever led on by finding smoke here and there along the wall.

Finally, the firemen, led by Capt. C. C. McKay, acting battalion chief, decided the smoke was from a flue in a rear corner of the building, and had been driven through crevices and crannies by the wind, hence coursed through the building.

VIRGINIA HUNTS TWO MEN IN GIRL'S TYING

Queries on Neighbors Who Got $5,000 May Hold Key to Mystery.

Fredericksburg, Va., Feb. 3 (A.P.).—State and local police today joined in the hunt for two unidentified white men for the alleged abduction of Caroline Musante, 14, who was found tied to a tree in the woods near here.

A "kidnap note," which spoke of plans to kidnap the 3-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Porter, relatives and neighbors of the Musantes, was regarded by police as an important clew.

The note, addressed to "United States Kidnaping Gang," was signed "Harry."

The girl said she was seized by two men on her way to school yesterday and dragged into the woods and tied to a tree. She said she was questioned closely about the home habits of the Porters.

She said she found the kidnaping note Monday and showed it to her uncle, who regarded it as a joke.

Investigators are searching for the men on the assumption that the abductors were natives of this vicinity and knew the Porters recently were awarded $5,000 in a suit in connection with the death of another child in an automobile accident.

PAINTERS CHARGE SCHOOL PAY FRAUD

night, final decision as to eligibility of carpenters accepting an $8 a day wage was referred to a meeting of the District Council of the men Monday.

Immediately after the gathering two of the members of the union engaged in a short but brisk fist fight. The affray was halted by other members before any damage had been incurred by either party. The encounter arose out of the heated debate of the meeting, it was learned.

Reports were noised about, unconfirmed, at the carpenters' meeting that President-elect Roosevelt had sent an answer to a telegram sent to him asking intervention in the wage dispute.

2,000 Are Present.

About 2,000 members of the union and affiliated groups were present at the meeting which was closed to reporters. The meeting lasted four hours.

General condemnation of the men who have accepted a lower rate than the $11 a day union scale was understood to have been voiced, but whether the men were recommended for ejection from the union or otherwise penalized could not be learned.

Under the Bacon-Davis act, before the Secretary of Labor can act one way or the other, the matter must be referred to the contracting officer of the Government, who is Maj. Ferry K. Heath, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury in charge of public buildings, and he is out of town until Monday.

The prevailing union wage for carpenters is $11 a day. Contractors on the Government projects have posted notice to the effect that after next Thursday the carpenter scale would be $8. The Bacon-Davis act specifies that the union rate should be paid when Government funds have been appropriated for the projects.

Some Have Accepted Cut.

A number of carpenters, it was pointed out, have accepted the wage cut and possible action may be taken to eject them from the union.

New Government buildings in which notices of the cut were posted include the Congressional Library, the Department of Agriculture, the Archives Building, the Department of Justice, the Postoffice Department, the Department of Labor and the Interstate Commerce Commission.

A statement, issued by subcontractors on the jobs concerned, read in part:

"It has been established beyond any doubt that the carpenters are being paid at the rate of $1 an hour or $8 a day on work throughout the city. It has been further established that this wage has been accepted by members of the locals mentioned above inasmuch as notices have been publicly posted on the job, stating that $1 an hour, $8 a day wage is in effect and being paid.

"We are posting a notice on all jobs to the effect that the undersigned contractors, on and after February 9, 1933, will put into effect the $1 an hour, $8 a day, scale of wages, which is the prevailing scale of wages for carpenters in the District of Columbia."

Roosevelt May Visit Cuba on Yacht Cruise

Havana, Cuba, Feb. 3 (U.P.).—Reports that President-elect Roosevelt might visit Cuba during his present fishing trip off southern Florida were current today, following a visit of Ambassador Harry F. Guggenheim at the foreign office.

Foreign Minister Ferrara said after the conference, he and Guggenheim had discussed "international politics."

PROMINENT WOMAN IS ACCUSED OF THEFT

Widow of Former Boston U. Trustee Charged With Odd Fraud Scheme.

Boston, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Mrs. Florence Hascall, widow of a former business manager and trustee of Boston University, surrendered today to police on a warrant charging her with larceny in an alleged fraud which, police said, might have victimized prominent women to the aggregate extent of $1,000,000.

Mrs. Hascall was accompanied to police headquarters by her counsel, David Greer, and was released in $15,000 bail supplied by a professional bondsman.

Greer told Judge Michael J. Murray in municipal court that Mrs. Hascall had been a victim of the fraud, but at the request of Police Lieut. Thomas Traynor, the warrant was issued specifically charging her with larceny of $5,000.

Mysterious Philanthropist.

Mrs. Hascall was accused of having stolen that sum from Mrs. Laura Bradstreet, prominent Brookline woman.

Police investigation was said to have revealed a strange story of a "gift family," in which women investors were allowed to become participating members. Members of the "family" were to participate in a fund directed by a mysterious philanthropist with a flair for financial management that was to net investors as high as 50 per cent profit.

In some vague manner investors were given to understand, police said, that the poor and needy were to be aided through the operations of the plan.

Doubts Existence of Contract.

Attorney Greer pleaded for delay in issuing the warrant in order to produce a contract, which, he said, would show that Mrs. Hascall had acted innocently, but Lieut. Traynor told the court he doubted the existence of either the mysterious philanthropist or the contract itself.

Police were said to have discovered that a number of women had put sums running as high as $10,000 into the plan, but until the past day or two had been reluctant to have their names involved in the case.

Statement Is Issued.

Mrs. Hascall is the widow of Lee Claflin Hascall, who died in 1926 after long connection with Boston University. In her behalf Attorney Greer issued the following statement after the court proceedings:

"I am absolutely innocent. The only wrong I have done was to try to help my friends. I welcome this opportunity of clearing my name before the world to the satisfaction of everyone."

Coalition Stems Attack On Cabinet at Madrid

Madrid, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—A coalition of Republicans and Socialists stubbornly resisted tonight the efforts of nearly all other groups in Congress who sought the resignation of the cabinet.

Premier Azana said that the ministers were working in "perfect accord" and that any talk of a crisis would be "farcical." The session was adjourned until Tuesday, when Alejandro Lerroux, radical leader, is scheduled to continue his debate on whether the cabinet should disband.

KILLER'S SKIN CLEW IN MURDER OF GIRL

Mineola, N. Y., Feb. 3 (A.P.).—With two ransom notes, bits of human skin, a man's handkerchief and a scarred fingerprint as their chief clews, police of two counties tonight were carrying on an intensive hunt for the slayer of 15-year-old Mary Helen O'Connor, high school honor student and beauty contest winner.

Indications that the girl had been the victim of a maniac, and also that she may have fallen into the hands of a white slave ring spurred on the investigation of Long Island's latest murder mystery.

Some of the same detectives who had worked on the Collins yacht case, the bizarre Starr Faithful death and other Long Island crime enigmas were set to the task of trying to trap the schoolgirl's slayer.

They were joined by the grief-stricken father of the dead girl, James J. O'Connor, an unemployed contractor, who expressed a belief his daughter had been "kidnapped and held prisoner against her will." O'Connor said he would participate actively in the man hunt.

After chemists had bent for hours over test tubes and microscopes examining blood and strips of human skin lodged under the dead girl's fingernails, the order went out:

"Find a man with a scratched face."

In reconstructing the killing detectives agreed there had been a terrific struggle during which the girl's clothes had been torn and she had clawed the face of her attacker.

Examination of the body also disclosed that the girl's head had been bashed in with terrific blows; an attempt had been made at criminal assault, and there were indications acid may have been thrown on her in an effort to frustrate immediate identification.

From dawn until dusk 50 detectives and uniformed police beat through the underbrush over a radius of 2 miles from the lonely section where the body was found yesterday, but they discovered no new clews.

Prohibition Agents Visit Pumpkintown

Man Who Was Beaten Is Seized and "Pig-Pen" Resort Raided.

Jack Blackwell, who complained several weeks ago that he had been beaten and robbed at his home in Pumpkintown, Md., was arrested at his home yesterday by Federal agents who accused him of sale and possession of liquor. Raiding the Pig-Pen, a resort nearby, the agents also arrested James G. Gray on similar charges.

Six persons were held on Federal liquor charges yesterday after they had been given hearings before United States Commissioner J. Frank Parran in Marlboro, a seventh captive, was released. Ray W. Merritt, Arthur M. August and Sidney J. Warshaw, arrested in a raid on the Two-Bit Club in Brentwood, were among those held for action of the Federal grand jury.

The others held were: George Mater, of Landover; George E. Creek, of Bladensburg, and Horace J. Norwood, of Annapolis. Theodore Parkinson, who was arrested with Norwood, was released when Commissioner Parran decided there was not sufficient evidence to connect him with the alleged sale.

Prince Georges Auction For Unpaid Tax Larger

The number of lots of land to be sold for taxes in Prince Georges County this year has increased 22 per cent, according to Thomas N. Magruder, county treasurer, who pointed to a figure of 1,817 for last year and about 2,250 this year.

The total amount of tax delinquency this year is not as high as might be expected, because many of the lots are small, he said. Many will not be sold as taxes will be paid between the date they are advertised and March 6, the date of the sale. Between the time the treasurer's office started work on the list and the time it was sent to the county papers to be advertised, taxes were paid on more than 800 parcels of land, he said.

100-Foot Road Favored For Arlington Cemetery

(Associated Press.)

A House committee yesterday reported favorably the bill to transfer a 100-foot right of way through the Fort Myer-Arlington Cemetery Government reservation to Virginia for completing Lee highway. The bill was offered by Representative Smith, of Alexandria.

The right of way desired is about 1,200 feet long. The committee was informed the Virginia highway department had available funds with which to start work on the road project immediately.

Four Men at Marlboro Fined on Liquor Counts

Four men arrested by County Policeman G. William Gray were fined on liquor charges in Marlboro, Md., Police Court yesterday, while a fifth charge was dismissed because of a defective search warrant.

Those fined, each of whom paid $50, were Robert W. Smith, of Clinton, Sam Brown, of Piscataway; Lewis E. Jones, of Silver Spring, and Henry Johnson, of Accokeek. James Munson, of Piscataway, was freed when the warrant was found to be erroneous. Gray arrested Smith, Jones and Munson by himself, and accompanied Policeman Elon A. Turner when the other two were arrested.

$12,809 Bond Default Won by Takoma Park

The town of Takoma Park, Md., was awarded a default of $12,809.66 yesterday by Associate Justice Joseph W. Cox, of the District Supreme Court, in its suit against the Detroit Fidelity & Surety Co., for recovery on the bond of Bryan Davis, former town clerk and treasurer, who is under indictment for embezzlement.

Davis probably will be placed on trial in the March term of Montgomery County District Court.

10 Queen Contest Photos Appear in Post Tomorrow

$5 Again Will Be Paid to Each Girl Whose Picture Runs in Rotogravure Section in $10,500 Fair Competition.

The pictures of ten more charming girls whose photographs have been submitted in The Washington Post's $10,500 queen competition will grace the front page of tomorrow's Post rotogravure section. To each of the girls represented, a check for $5 will be mailed and a similar amount to each of 80 girls whose pictures are yet to be selected for similar publication.

Publication of pictures has no effect, however, upon the final judging of every photograph submitted for the selection of 51 girls who will become the queen and court of honor to inaugurate the Century of Progress International Exposition at Chicago next June. This entire group will be the guests of The Washington Post and the Chicago Tribune at the exposition for a period of two weeks. Their transportation to and from their homes, in any part of the world, will be paid by these newspapers as will every other expense including that of an elaborate program of entertainment and exquisite apparel.

In Chicago three girls will be selected from the group to bear the titles of queen and first and second ladies in waiting, and they also will receive cash awards of $5,000, $3,000 and $2,000, respectively.

Any unmarried girl, with the exception of professionals such as stage girls and artists' models, employes of The Washington Post and members of their families, is privileged to enter this unique contest with positively no cost or obligation. All that is necessary is to send a photograph to the Queen Contest Editor, The Washington Post, accompanied by the information outlined on the transmittal coupon printed elsewhere in this paper today. The coupon may be used for this purpose, or the same information written upon a separate sheet of paper and pasted on the back of the photograph.

The contest is now in progress and will continue until Saturday, April 15. The few simple rules that outline the honors and financial rewards to be received and the purpose of the search for 51 of the most charming girls in the world will be published in full in tomorrow's Sunday Post.

SHARP CLASH MARKS LOUISIANA VOTE QUIZ

Huey Long Defends Overton on Hint of Salary Gifts in Campaign.

New Orleans, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—A recess was called late today by the Senate Campaign Committee inquiring into the last Louisiana senatorial election when counsel clashed sharply over questioning of Representative John H. Overton, whose election to the Senate over Senator Edwin S. Broussard brought charges of fraud from Broussard and his supporters.

A row broke when Gen. Samuel T. Ansell, committee counsel, asked Overton what he would have to say if he were shown that employes of the State of Louisiana "had their salaries reduced to make contributions to your campaign."

Overton said he regarded that as an unfair question and started to discuss it.

Gen. Ansell objected that the witness was making a legal argument.

"Will you sit down and keep quiet?" said Overton.

"No, I will not," retorted Ansell. "I want you to answer questions and not argue."

Chairman Howell told Mr. Overton that he could not understand his reluctance to answer his questions and the committee was not bound by court procedure as it was an investigation.

Senator Huey P. Long, acting as Overton counsel, interjected, "I refuse to permit my client to answer. It is a point of law. I take the full responsibility."

"If you want your client to stand on his present answer it is all right with the committee counsel," Ansell said.

The committee then called a recess.

Buffet Owner Sues Deputy Dry Chief

Police Lieutenant Also Is Named in Hammel Case Based on Raid.

Louis J. Hammel, proprietor of Hammel's Buffet, 416 Tenth street northwest, yesterday in the District Supreme Court filed suit against William R. Blandford, deputy prohibition administrator for the District, and Police Lieut. George Little for $20,000.

Mr. Hammel, through Attorney Alfred M. Schwartz, seeks that amount because of a raid the officers made upon his lunchroom last August. The place was forced to close when its entire equipment was carted away, and when the case against the restaurant was decided in favor of Mr. Hammel and three codefendants, it cost several hundred dollars to have the equipment reinstalled.

The raid on Hammel's was based on a warrant sworn out by an informer to the effect that he drank a glass of "beer" in the place and got a "glow" from it. However, a jury in Police Court returned a verdict freeing Hammel from the charge of violating the prohibition laws. The buffet was closed for several months while the case was threshed out in the courts.

Archbishop Curley Clears Red Cross

Accepts Apology of Payne for Magazine Picture That Offended.

Peace over the story and drawing, "A Blessing for Juanita," which appeared in the Junior Red Cross News for January and which was deemed offensive to the Catholics, apparently has been reached.

Archbishop Michael J. Curley, of the Baltimore Diocese, issued a statement Thursday asking Catholics not to interpret the affair as evidence of anti-Catholic bias on the part of the Red Cross.

The archbishop also made public a letter from John Barton Payne, chairman of the executive board of the Red Cross, regretting the publication, saying that the story and drawing had been rushed through in getting the magazine to press and that it had not been seen by the editor until after publication.

3 Pay-Roll Robbers Flee As Street Holdup Fails

Pittsburgh, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Three bandits who attempted to hold up C. M. Tracy, 28, who was carrying $2,500 in bank notes to pay employes of the John B. Kelly Co., Philadelphia brick contractors on Pittsburgh's new post-office building, escaped in traffic today without the money.

While one remained in a large sedan which pulled up alongside Tracy, two men alighted, cursed Tracy and grabbed for his pocket. Tracy ran to the postoffice building and escaped. The trio fled.

SANDINO QUITS WAR FOR PEACE OF FARM

Guerrilla Chief Signs Pact With Sacasa to Disarm Within 20 Days.

Managua, Nicaragua, Feb. 3 (A.P.). The expert guerrilla fighters led by Gen. Augusto Sandino, who fought numerous battles with government forces and United States Marines in the course of their five-year revolt, will become peaceful farmers in north Nicaragua.

This was revealed today in an unofficial summary of the peace pact signed last night by Gen. Sandino and President Juan Bautista Sacasa. The agreement provided for immediate cessation of hostilities.

Pledging himself to disarm his men, Gen. Sandino agreed that they would lay down their arms within 20 days in the town of San Rafeal del Norte. One hundred of his followers will be permitted to retain their arms. They will supervise a public land zone, which the government will set aside to provide farming rights for all of the picturesque rebel general's soldiers.

For a period of one year the 100 armed Sandinistas will be selected jointly by the general and the president. At the conclusion of the year the president alone will appoint them. The pact guarantees constitutional protection for all of the general's followers.

"It is a great satisfaction to be able to announce that with the cooperation of the two Nicaraguan parties, aided by the good will of Gen. Augusto Cesar Sandino and his delegates, my government has been able to effect the pacification of the country," President Sacasa said.

The peace pact was signed by the president, Gen. Sandino and his supporters, and representatives of the Liberal and Conservative parties.

ARLINGTON CHAMBER NAMES VARNEY HEAD

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Walter U. Varney was unanimously elected president of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce at its annual meeting at Clarendon last night. Other officers are: A. L. Kelley, first vice president; F. S. Loos, second vice president; John A. Deuterman, treasurer, and Mrs. Eugene M. Moreland, secretary.

Members of the board of directors elected for a term of three years are Ashton C. Jones, Charles W. Smith, William E. Robey, Hugh Reid, Guy N. Church, William P. Ames, William S. Hoge, jr., and David R. Collins.

More than 100 citizens of Arlington County attending the mass meeting last night at Lyon Park under auspices of the Taxpayers League of Arlington County unanimously adopted resolutions demanding immediate investigation of public utility rates and a reduction in taxes. Preceding adoption of the resolutions, members of the Arlington County Bar Association's special committee who are making a study of county expenditures scored the county board for salaries paid and charged the Virginia Public Service Co. with gross profits on electric current.

One resolution offered by Col. J. G. Pepper asks the county board to reduce the tax rate this year and to take such steps as necessary for reassessment of real estate values next year.

The resolution calling for a lower electric light rate asks that the county institute proceedings before the State Corporation Commission at Richmond and that the matter be referred to the next General Assembly for a legislative investigation of rates throughout the State.

W. W. Wright declared there were too many unnecessary offices in all local governments, pointing to the office of sanitary inspector in Arlington County. He also advocates a 50 per cent reduction in all salaries of all high paid county officials.

The following special committees were appointed:

Col. J. G. Pepper, W. W. Wright and L. C. MacPherson to work with the special committee from the Bar Association, and W. Thomas French, Harry C. Saffell and Colvin MacPherson to make an investigation into State taxes.

Judge B. M. Hedrick, in Arlington County Court, has ruled that R. Blakeley James will not be recognized in that court in the future as an assistant to Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas.

Judge Hedrick in his ruling said he could find no law which permits the Commonwealth's attorney to delegate his duties to any one else, nor any law which gives the county board the authority to employ an assistant Commonwealth attorney.

James has been employed at a salary of $150 a month. At the time he was appointed it was understood he was to assist Douglas while he was engaged in preparing the alleged shortages cases in the offices of former County Treasurer E. Wade Ball and County Clerk William H. Duncan.

The issue was raised by Capt. Crandal Mackey in a case in which he was interested.

proposal wasn't satisfactory. Mr. Barry should be accepted and continued in the bosom of the Senate or he should be ousted forthwith for impugning the honesty and the integrity of that body, Senator Norris contended.

Senator Couzens (Republican), of Michigan, proposed a compromise which never got anywhere and, after several hours of debate, to the most crowded Senate floor in years, the Reed proposal was adopted with modifications after the Norris dismissal proposal had been beaten by a roll call vote of 40 to 31.

The Reed proposal, as amended, suspended the elderly and dignified sergeant at arms and referred the matter to the judiciary committee, of which Senator Norris is chairman, with instructions to the committee to make a report and recommendation on Tuesday.

Questions Fired at Him.

Mr. Barry alternately sat in a swivel chair on the dais, just below and to the right of the Vice President's chair, and stood to answer questions which were fired at him from the floor, which was crowded with a larger number of senators than usually accord the Senate floor the dignity of their presence even on the occasion of the passage of most important legislation.

His purpose was, Mr. Barry said, to defend senators and members of Congress from the common assumption that there were many among them who were out-and-out grafters. On the other hand, he said, he believed every word in his magazine article was true, although he didn't realize just how it would look in print.

Some senators, including John J. Blaine (Republican), of Wisconsin, tried to have a thorough investigation of the Barry suggestions about the venality of senators, but that proposal didn't get to first base. Senator Blaine and others who believed as he did were called out on strikes with their bats on their shoulders by the majority.

Tide Is Turned.

Senator James E. Watson (Republican), of Indiana, majority leader, who was defeated for reelection after many years in the Senate, was one of those who sought to aid in seeing that Mr. Barry was given a fair trial and was not made the victim of hasty action.

Senator Robinson (Republican), of Indiana, probably turned the tide against the Norris dismissal proposal. Senator Robinson said the Senate had assaulted Mr. Barry with serious charges without warning, and had brought a timid man, who never before had had a chance to speak on the Senate floor, to answer to the verbal thrusts of men familiar with the floor and familiar with the tricks of verbal exchange.

The Senate, Senator Robinson said, was getting ready to act as a mob, to tear Mr. Barry apart, and the worst criminal in the land would have been given a greater chance than had been given to Mr. Barry, who had come before the bar of the Senate and waived right of counsel and questions of delay and had made admissions. Senator Robinson was talking against the Norris summary dismissal resolution, which was beaten.

Speculation on Capitol Hill now revolves about the possible outcome of the action. Not much is expected of the Judiciary Committee consideration of the matter, inasmuch as Senator Norris, committee chairman, said on the floor that he couldn't conceive of any additional inquiry the committee could make, in view of the fact that Mr. Barry had admitted authorship of the magazine article. On the other hand, there are those who would like to make of the case a broad stage across which could be paraded many things which are whispered about the Capitol but which are not and probably never could be proved. It is doubtful if the dirty linen washers will prevail.

Medical Society Meets in Fairfax

Committee Is Appointed to Revise Constitution and By-Laws.

The Fairfax County (Va.) Medical Society met yesterday at the courthouse at Fairfax for a quarterly discussion of medical problems in the county. Dr. William P. Caton, president of the society, read a paper on "Problems Due to Allurgy" and Dr. Robert E. Feagans gave a case report.

Dr. F. M. Brooks, of Fairfax; Dr. Caton, of Accotink, and Dr. C. A. Ransom, of Falls Church, were appointed a committee to draft a revision of the society's constitution and by-laws.

Mrs. Eleanor W. Aud, county superintendent of public welfare, appeared before the society for a discussion of welfare problems relative to the indigent and the county physicians, outlining the tentative plans of the County Board of Supervisors for compensation for treatment and hospitalization. Dr. Ransom gave a report of the meeting of the State Medical Society last month.

Socialist Guns Seized As Leaders Protest

Vienna, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Embittered by the Government's confiscation of hidden Socialist machine guns at Wiener Neustadt today, Socialist leaders in Parliament this evening accused the Dollfuss cabinet of fostering Italian arm shipments to Hungary, while at the same time robbing workers of weapons "with which to defend the republic."

Police aided by troops confiscated machine guns, ammunition, rifles and explosives in raids today at Wiener Neustadt on Socialist headquarters and a printing plant.

DELEGATE DETAILS BILL FOR HELPLESS

Measure Would Provide for Posting of Bond to Insure Care.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 3.—Details of the bill to protect Maryland counties against claims for support by helpless or crippled persons from other jurisdictions have been disclosed by Delegate Lavinia Engle, who is drafting the bill for presentation to the Legislature.

The proposed measure would provide that all private sanitoria shall be licensed by the State, and require further that when any helpless person is brought to one of these institutions a bond shall be posted to insure his being cared for. The bond, of course, will be required only when the patient is brought in from another county or State.

Such a law would care for a case which was recently brought to her attention, Miss Engle said. In this case an elderly crippled man turned over his life's savings to a woman who agreed to care for him as long as he lived. Later she sold the home which she kept in Montgomery County, and he was turned over to the new managers. In time these closed the home and moved out of the county, leaving the man uncared for. The District refused to care for him, although he had lived in Washington for years. He is now a charge on Montgomery County.

Under Miss Engle's bill the original owner of the home would have to post bond when she brought the crippled man out from Washington. If she failed to care for him or have him cared for by other authorities, the county could sue on the bond for money to support him.

Chaco and Leticia Studied at Geneva

League Council, in Appeal to Bolivia, Paraguay and Peru, Urges Peace.

Geneva, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—The League of Nations Council today discussed both the Gran Chaco and the Leticia conflicts, sending a pressing appeal to Bolivia and Paraguay to halt hostilities and admonishing Peru again against employing armed force against Colombia's legitimate police action.

Anxiety over the intensification of the fighting between Bolivia and Paraguay in the Chaco was voiced by the council, which postponed a suggestion for a commission of inquiry in order to permit American neutral nations additional time to arrange a cessation of hostilities.

Asking Peru to notify the league of the result of Brazil's peace proposals in the conflict between Peru and Colombia over the border town of Leticia, the council took occasion to repeat a warning sent last week.

Was Chamber Official and Led in Fight for Lower Utility Rates.

Funeral services for Morton T. May, leader of a series of successful fights for lower public utility rates in and around Hyattsville, will be held at 11 a. m., Monday at Gasch's funeral parlor in Hyattsville. Mount Hermon Masonic lodge will be in charge of the services. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery. Mr. May died at his Hyattsville home early yesterday at the age of 60.

As chairman of the public utilities committee of the Hyattsville Chamber of Commerce, Mr. May was largely responsible for lower gas and telephone rates in the community. He was chairman of the committee at the time of his death, and had recently been elected national councilor of the chamber. He was employed as examiner in charge of the accounting and statistical section of the Bureau of Finance of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Mr. May, a native of Kentucky, came to Maryland in 1909. He had lived in Hyattsville for seven years. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Beulah L. May; three daughters, Mrs. Grace Lardner, of Riverdale; Mrs. Ruth Miller, of Chesterton, Ind., and Miss Marion May, of Hyattsville, and a son, Andrew May, of Chicago.

REORGANIZATION POWERS.

If the latest proposal for reorganization of the Government service is accepted, President-elect Roosevelt will have full authority to make any changes that he may consider advisable, except the merging of departments. Senator Byrnes has worked out a substitute for his previous reorganization scheme, virtually depriving Congress of veto power over the President's executive orders. Apparently Senator Byrnes and his colleagues dare not trust Congress to remain silent while the new President lops off jobs for which deserving Democrats are scrambling.

Another reason for proposing this extensive grant of authority to the President is the conviction of many senators that the arrangement under which the House upset President Hoover's reorganization was unconstitutional. The economy act of 1932 gave the President authority to effect a reorganization, but provided that it could be set aside by a resolution passed by either house of Congress. Attorney General Mitchell contends that the power conferred upon the President was executive in nature. The attempt to give one branch of Congress power to revoke administrative acts appears to be an infraction of the Constitution, because one house can not legislate. Approval of both houses and the signature of the President is necessary to enact legislation, and only by this procedure can administrative acts be set aside, according to this view.

At any rate, Democratic leaders have decided to avoid this constitutional question by providing that the President's reorganization plan can not be nullified, except by act of Congress. If both houses should disapprove the reorganization, under this arrangement, the President could veto their disapproving act, and Congress would be able to upset the program only by repassing the measure by a two-thirds majority in both houses. It would be virtually impossible to secure action on both the measure itself and the veto within 60 days. Hence, the Byrnes substitute would give the President almost absolute authority over the Government service.

As a matter of fact, however, it is not conceivable that the President would disregard the advice of Democratic leaders in Congress. In most cases when Congress overrides an executive plan for retrenchment the underlying motive is politics. When the test comes many congressmen vote against their own convictions to retain the jobs of their political friends. They may give secret approval to a drastic reorganization measure which they would feel compelled to oppose on the floors of Congress. If the Byrnes amendment is passed, therefore, Mr. Roosevelt may work in cooperation with congressional leaders, while seeming to take full responsibility upon himself. Apparently that is the only way in which a reorganization along the lines of efficiency and economy can be effected. Leaders in Congress can't trust themselves to do a job which they all recognize should be done. They can't even trust themselves to remain silent so long as the power to uphold bureaucracy remains in their hands.

TRADE WITH MANCHUKUO.

Japanese spokesmen love to dwell upon the "commercial advantages" that will accrue to the United States from the independence of Manchukuo. At every opportunity this alleged American premium resulting from Japan's policy is emphasized, with the implication that the Government's refusal to recognize the puppet state is inimical to the interests of American business men.

A few weeks ago Kensuke Horinouchi, Japanese consul general in New York, announced that a new market for American manufactured goods had been opened up as a result of the establishment of Manchukuo. He tried to be enthusiastic about the opportunities for trade between the United States and Manchuria, but his fragmentary figures showed that American exports to the new state had fallen off 22 per cent since the puppet government was set up, while Japanese exports to that region had increased 140 per cent.

Ambassador Katsuji Debuchi took up this thesis in an address on Thursday before the New York Chamber of Commerce. "Judging from the signal progress achieved by America in her trade with China and also from the fact that the United States and Japan have already demonstrated the practicability of their economic cooperation," he said, "I am of the opinion that, of all Western nations, America will derive the greatest benefit from the economic regeneration of Manchuria." To this Mr. Debuchi might have added that the benefits to all the western nations will be inconsequential, because Manchuria is now regarded as a special province for Japanese exploitation.

Theoretically Manchukuo maintains the open door policy. At present, however, virtually all American trade with Manchuria has been cut off by the depreciation of the Japanese yen. Silver is the basis of money in Manchuria. A year and a half ago a $1 article from this country or Japan cost about $4.55 in Chinese money, because of the low price of silver. Now the same article from the United States costs about $4.90, but the corresponding Japanese article may be sold for $2.10 because the yen has fallen in value from nearly 50 to about 21 cents.

That is not the only handicap that American business interests encounter in trying to deal with Manchuria. Reports from Mukden indicate that the Japanese are making every effort to monopolize Manchurian trade. The Japanese chamber of commerce at Mukden has gone so far as to deny trade statistics to the American trade commissioner and the American consulate. Feeling against all non-Japanese enterprises is cultivated. American firms are restricting their activities, fearing there is no future for them, so long as Manchuria remains within the grip of Japan. The open door remains open, of course, but of what use is it, if only Japanese interests are permitted to enter on a favorable basis?

INFLATION ILLUSIONS.

It is fortunate that the rising wave of inflationary sentiment, an inevitable accompaniment of every depression, should be offset at this time by so many able writers on economics and finance who expose the fallacies of adulterated money. It is not as though the promise of higher prices and general prosperity as a result of inflation were being promised for the first time, or that the experiment had not been tried repeatedly. The history of the United States and many other nations affords records to disprove such claims.

It is not necessary to delve into the distant past in order to know what inflation does to national finances, to business and to all the responsible elements of society. Many members of Congress have knowledge of the experiences of Germany, France and Mexico. They can testify that a sudden increase in the volume of currency of uncertain value, as it must be, does result in a sudden increase of business—but at what a price! When the value of money becomes uncertain there quickly follows a mad scramble to convert the money into something more stable than the money itself.

Such a hectic interchange of bad money for goods or property is not beneficial to either party to the transaction. The buyer is forced to acquire something he does not need, and the seller receives money that he must immediately invest in something else, since he knows that every day its value will be less. But the inflationists say they will control inflation and not permit it to run wild. Every inflationary movement on record has started with such good intentions, but it has never been accomplished. Inflation that starts with the desire to relieve a fraction of the population ends by ruining the great majority. There is no reason to believe that present American advocates of inflation are so much smarter than their antecedents in this country or the advocates of cheap money in other lands.

It is curious that in the United States, particularly, there should continue to be any delusion about the influence of a minor increase in the volume of money, when currency plays such a relatively small part in American business. This is not India or China, where the great bulk of the population never saw bank checks. Here money is exchanged in less than 10 per cent of all transactions. More than 90 per cent is done by checks. No one complained of a lack of currency when many times as much business was being done as there is today, and yet there is actually more money in circulation now than in 1929.

NAVAL STRENGTH.

In the disturbed condition of the world nothing would appear so short-sighted as the failure of the United States to maintain its Navy at treaty strength. Today it is short in ships of every category, with those in commission undermanned and a building program that falls far short of restoring American parity.

The last annual report of the Secretary of the Navy presents the exact condition of the American fleet and its relation to the navies of Great Britain and Japan. They are figures which should be studied by every citizen, and particularly by members of Congress. This report shows that of fifteen United States battleships, eleven are in full commission, one in reduced commission and three being modernized. Of fifteen British battleships fourteen are in full commission, with one in reserve under refit. Of ten Japanese capital ships, all are fully manned.

The United States has but three aircraft carriers, all of which are in commission. Great Britain has three such carriers in commission and three in reserve. Four Japanese carriers are fully manned. The United States has nine heavy cruisers in full commission. In this class Great Britain has nineteen and Japan twelve, fully manned. With regard to light cruisers the United States makes even poorer showing, with ten in full commission against twenty-five British, with eight more in reserve, and twenty for Japan, all fully manned.

The United States has one second class cruiser, while Japan has seven. The United States has no ship of the destroyer leader class, though the British have sixteen and Japan twenty-four. Of the 101 American destroyers, seventy-two are in full commission against seventy-four out of 121 in the same British class, while eighty Japanese destroyers are fully manned. The submarine figures are even less reassuring. The United States has forty-two under-sea craft in full commission, with twelve in reserve. Great Britain has forty-four in commission with eight in reserve, while Japan's sixty-two are fully manned.

Even this showing does not tell the whole story, since all of the American ships in full commission, with the exception of submarines, are operating with only about 85 per cent of their enlisted complements. The present building program, furthermore, as Secretary Adams shows, does not provide for building up to the strength of a treaty Navy, for replacement of overage vessels, nor rectification of the impaired position of the United States with regard to the other signatories of the naval treaties, or avoidance of further impairment of the American position. In addition to the weakening of the national defense the suspension of construction threatens permanent injury to the shipbuilding industry, which is suffering from the scarcity of both commercial and governmental work.

That Japan is about to supersede the United States in second place in naval strength is all too evident. It is incredible that the American people will submit to seeing the nation's first line of defense deteriorating to this extent. The demand for economy in Federal expenditures is universal and insistent, but this rich country has not sunk to the level where national security must be sacrificed. Congress has no more important duty than that of providing adequate national defense, and that can not be considered anything short of a Navy of full treaty strength.

NEW RAILROAD CAR.

A development that bids fair to secure wide acceptance is the use by the railroads of the new rail car which makes it possible to provide a fast and frequent service able to compete with bus and truck transportation.

This new railroad vehicle was developed in France. The Michelin car was described in these columns when it was first inaugurated. The first rail car of this type has now been introduced to America by the Reading Company. It is rubber tired, like the French original, and is equipped with a Diesel-electric engine. It is of stainless steel construction throughout. The outside is of a lustrous satin finish, requiring no paint, and the entire weight is only about one-third of that of an ordinary passenger car of equal capacity.

The new car is radically different in every feature of construction. It is built to exclude noise and dirt, and the smooth-riding quality provided by the rubber tires on rails makes it more comfortable than an ordinary train. The first model is designed to carry 47 passengers. It is equipped with a 125-horsepower engine and a 250-volt generator of special light-weight construction. The total weight is about 22,000 pounds and it has a speed of 55 miles an hour. It is believed that the Reading's innovation will lead to wide utilization of this car. Far more economical to operate than regular trains, this self-propelled car can be used to develop high-speed service, which has some advantages over any similar means of transportation now employed.

MIGHTY "IF" OF HISTORY

From the Minneapolis Journal.

Fascinating are the "ifs" of history. A magazine, a time ago, carried a series of articles by well-known writers, speculating as to what might have happened had Booth missed Lincoln, or had Lee won at Gettysburg, or had any one of a score of other past decisions of fate been reversed. The collected articles have since appeared in book form.

These speculations are all interesting, and all are based on some rather big "ifs;" on incidents obviously of major importance.

But more interesting still is an exploration among the smaller "ifs" of the past—"ifs" small in themselves, but of profound importance in their effect upon subsequent history. For instance, the conclusion is readily tenable that there might have been no American Revolution, no French Revolution, no British Empire, and no World War, if Maria Theresa had not decided that 1756 was a good time for the recovery of Silesia from Prussia.

Silesia does not bulk large on the map. The identity of its overlord has never been of much importance to the world at large. Yet the Austrian empress' determination to take it back from Frederick the Great 176 years ago sparked a powder trail that is still burning.

Maria Theresa, for her Silesian enterprise, won the support of France and Russia. Frederick got the help of England. Thus started the Seven Years' War, the American ramifications of which are commonly called the French and Indian Wars. In the end, neither Austria nor Prussia gained anything. But England gained plenty and France lost plenty. For the adroit Pitt had his own purpose in supporting Frederick. War in Europe kept France from reinforcing Montcalm in Canada or the French commanders in India. Thus Canada became British, and India fell under British domination.

POST HASTE

The R. F. C. has spent only about half its appropriation. No wonder it is under congressional fire.

Governmental, corporate and individual fixed charges that amount to more than $20,000,000,000 a year explain why we are in this fix.

Of course Congress will see to it that no one in the Tennessee project is permitted to raise cotton, wheat, cows, tobacco, hogs or guber peas, to be added to the bounty list.

Like the Virginian, we would like to be sure that when Mr. Chamberlain talks "swap" to America he smiles.

No matter what your politics or other convictions, the next six months will be a mighty interesting period if it puts a stop to the present coma.

How many Pacific reasons are there that may lead to trouble? Well, there are 7,000 Philippine islands.

At Pat Harrison's demand the Senate has invited 60 economists, etc., to appear and explain what's the matter. The Senate will soon have five dozen conflicting plans to end the depression.

Since our President is going to handle the debt negotiations in person it looks a bit odd that George V does not come over as the British negotiator.

Late reports from Warm Springs indicate that the Tennessee Valley is virtually unanimous in favor of the expenditure of a few hundred millions in the Tennessee Valley.

So far as the Senate is concerned the mysterious unofficial debt negotiator can now be considered a spent Bullitt.

"Fifty per cent content list announced by Britain." But it does not relate to beverages, so it's of little interest.

European bloc aid for debt cancellation will provide the surest blockade.

If reforestation is done with maple trees that ought to help make it self-liquidating.

From the number of things that are being shoved off on the next Congress it will be lucky if it doesn't overlap itself next January and be subject to executive elimination.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

STRUGGLE.

Why ask from life such tender care
As to escape its every blow?
Who has not had a grief to bear
The beauty of it doesn't know,
Who has been ever safe and warm,
Has missed the grandeur of a storm.

A foolish man is he, indeed,
Who takes not comfort when he can,
But every page of life we read
Proclaims that struggle makes the man.
Nations stamp medals just to tell
The fame of those who battle well.

I would not try to feed with words
The hungry, nor with speech to cure
Men's agonies, but beasts and birds
Have no such sorrows to endure.
They live and die and never seem
To battle for a broken dream.

'Tis man alone who copes with fate,
Who questions life; has doubts and fears,
Losses and gains, and soon or late,
Must suffer sorrow and its tears.
Only to man, who should be proud,
Is the high gift of strife allowed.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY dear Louise: As the twig is bent, so the tree inclines; and this is an effort to do a little frank twig-bending before anything happens.

Some day—some far-distant day, I hope—you will get married. Perhaps you will think it your own affair and ask no advice of me, but I shall make one suggestion. Begin your adventure with the understanding that marriage is a lifetime job, and resolve that no disaster shall come as a result of your unfairness.

There are no dependable statistics on the subject, but my guess is that most of the quarrels settled in divorce courts begin in discussions of money.

That kind of situation will test your soul, young fellow.

Suppose you pick a young man who is the sole support of his widowed mother. It's a hazardous thing to do, but suppose you do it.

You think he belongs to you and you assume, quite logically, that his spare change belongs to you. You can not remain silent while he gives away money that you need for a new fur coat. And you fume with jealous rage when another woman, mother or no mother, "comes between you."

But there is another side to the quarrel, as usual. You knew, when you married him, that he supported his mother. Did you expect to take that support from her?

Suppose he had debts and obligations before he married you. Did you expect your marriage to cancel them?

A man worth having feels a great obligation to his mother. It began years ago when she kissed his bumped head to make it stop hurting. He grew away from her in his teens and felt a resentful shame when she called him pet names in public, but with maturity came undersatnding of her true value and now she is his chief treasure whose place no other woman can take.

Don't try to supplant her, my dear. You can't share other things with him unless you share his duties. And remember that a man mean enough to neglect his old mother will some day be mean enough to neglect his wife.

POLITICAL COMMENT

If Senator Hull Should Win.
Detroit News.

Senator Hull is credited with having sponsored the brevity in last June's Democratic national platform which demands "a competitive tariff for revenue." All told, while saturated with tariff detail also, Hull stands forth as more nearly the "old-fashioned" exponent of Democratic tariff doctrine than any other conspicuous Democrat in Congress.

A Hull appointment would serve White House notice upon the Democrats at Washington, who have rivaled Republicans in voting for high tariffs, stating clearly where their President stands. It might mean a long and bitter internal Democratic fight. All right; but it would prove Roosevelt meant what he said when he took the Hull side on tariffs and related trade questions.

If No Courage Now, When?
Kansas City Times.

In spite of the importance of radical reductions in Government expenditures, there is a disposition on the part of many members of Congress to temporize on economy. Lack of courage has been charged by Democratic as well as Republican leaders. If the old Congress fails, the country certainly hopes that the new Congress, elected on the depression issue, will appreciate its responsibility and fulfill the successful party's pledges to cut expenditures. The people well may ask: If Congress lacks the courage now to eliminate every expenditure not justified under existing conditions, then when and under what conditions could sufficient courage be shown?

Thrills Coming.
Toledo Blade.

If he says he has nothing to live for he lacks curiosity. It's worth hanging on to life to see what the Democrats are going to do.

Another Angle.
Boston Herald.

The lame duck amendment, you know, will shorten the interval between the time we pick the President and the time we pick on him.

Political Weather.
Brooklyn Eagle.

Scientists assure the world that the charge of staggering made against the Gulf stream is wholly unfounded. Clearly our mild winter is a shameless attempt of the weather department head for retention in office under a Democratic administration.

Cut Out Useless Jobs.
Memphis Commercial Appeal.

It is all right for the Democrats to claim the legitimate patronage accruing to them as the result of their unprecedented victory on November 8 last. That is the accepted custom. While many Federal positions are protected by civil service, there are plenty of jobs that come to the victors in national election as the fruits of victory. Nor is the procedure altogether a revival of the spoils system. It can be defended on the grounds that Republican or Democratic Presidents want men who are sympathetic with Republican or Democratic policies to do their work.

But changing the political complexion of 100,000 or more Federal job holders right now is far less important than many other matters facing the Nation. The first and all important duty of the incoming administration is to balance the national budget through cutting the cost of Government, if it be possible to do so. If it be found impossible to make such a reduction in governmental expenditures as will make them square with income, then it will be incumbent upon the incoming national administration to find the least harmful method of increasing revenues through taxation.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Real Test of Determination to Economize Will Come on Veterans' Legislation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If there has heretofore existed any doubt as to the intention or real desire on the part of the present Congress to economize, that doubt was removed Wednesday, at least so far as the Senate is concerned, when the $19,000,000 of Federal Air Mail appropriations was entirely eliminated from the Treasury-Postoffice bill. Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, who offered this amendment, stated he wanted to "test" the chamber on whether it intends to economize, and the vote that followed proved that that chamber intends to "economize" so long as the cutting down of absolutely essential funds only are involved and where there are no well-organized lobbies to protest such actions.

The real "test" of whether Congress intends to economize is already well known. It intends to do nothing of the kind, and the country will know this fact in a few days—just as soon as the veterans appropriation bill is reached and disposed of. That bill carries nearly $400,000,000 for retirement pay, pensions and allowances to former soldiers who suffered no disability from the war. It is a dole pure and simple, and there is no more justification for paying out one penny of this vast sum than there would be to the making of a similar gift to any other person.

The Congress well realizes that this appropriation is indefensible and that its payment is a heavy burden on the taxpayers. It further knows that the great majority of the American people are bitterly opposed to it, but when the "test"—a real test—comes up on this bill it will be found that many of those on the Hill who are now most outspoken for "economy" will take a back seat and vote for the payment of this dole.

No, the vote Wednesday which eliminated the provisions for the air-mail service was not even intended as a "test." The test as to the Senate's intention to economize will come up when the Veterans' appropriation bill is reached. A DEMOCRAT.

John Galsworthy's Realism Not That of Pessimism and Indecency—Young Writers, Take Note.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As one who puts a high value on good literature, I am glad to believe that I had the company of thousands in Washington who were pleased with your sympathetic obituary editorial on John Galsworthy. Since the effect of works of fiction on the character of the young men and, in greater number, the young women, who read them must be very great, perhaps a comparison of Galsworthy's work with that of George Moore, the brilliant stylist who passed away January 21 last, may be profitable.

Admirers of Moore praise a background of what they choose to consider realism in novels of the school to which he belonged. But the realism is not, as they claim, in fact true to life. It is too narrowly restricted to a display of unessential abnormalities.

Galsworthy was of those whom it may be proper to call the real realists to distinguish them from the pessimist realists typified in the genius of Moore.

No careful historian would trust Moore for authentic coloring in a survey of the days in which he wrote. The Post says truly: "It is quite probable that when the future student wishes a picture of English life in the period which has just passed he will be sent to Galsworthy for the most faithful portrayal."

On Galsworthy's canvas, indicative of a compassionate conception of good and bad in the social warp and woof, there was the serene blending of lights and shades which has a lasting appeal.

Healthy-minded young writers with a story-telling knack make a mistake when they follow the pessimistic "fashion" set by so-called modernism. As novelists of the Galsworthy school their material rewards would be greater in addition to the satisfaction of having made a little brighter the spiritual and esthetic uplook of their brother men. W. T. T.

Sees Ways for Congress to Economize in Its Own Expenses and Veterans' Allowances.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Senator Tydings says Congress' failure to enact economy measures is due to "political fear." Practical economy, as well as charity, begins at home, and there are a number of unwarranted congressional extravagances that should be abolished. For example: Reduce the mileage allowance of senators and representatives to the fully adequate rate of 8 cents per mile for actual travel between Washington and their homes; abolish the luxurious barber shops and Roman baths in the Capitol. These gentlemen are amply able to pay for their own haircuts and shaves, and it is fair to presume that most of them have bathing facilities at home. Reduce senatorial and congressional pay by some 50 per cent. There is a very general public suspicion that so far as their value to the country is concerned, a majority—not all—of them are grossly overpaid.

Having made a beginning on the economies at home, let Congress start in on veterans' disability allowances, which should be so limited as to cover only actual wartime disabilities. When these and kindred economies have been effected, members of Congress need have no fear regarding reelection, and they may be assured of the heartfelt thanks of many.

German to Lead Gospel Revival

Rev. Otto J. Klink Has Had Unusual Experiences in His Life.

The Rev. Otto J. Klink, who comes to the National Gospel Tabernacle, North Capitol and K streets, to open a "forward revival movement," has a life story which is unusual.

Mr. Klink was born in Germany and studied in the University of Berlin. He was at one time an undersecretary to the German emperor. He studied theology in Berlin, but because of his socialistic ideas, was imprisoned for two months for "insulting remarks" about the crown prince, made at a socialistic meeting.

After traveling around the world he became a reporter on the Staats Zeitung, German newspaper in New York City. Later he became an athelst and Communist and was made president of the Society of the Red Mask, a Communistic organization. Then, hearing a message on the gospel at a street meeting where he had gone with the intention of opposing Christianity, he became thoroughly converted.

Christian Science Churches

"Spirit" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The golden text is from John iv:24: "God is a Spirit: and they that worship Him must worship Him in spirit and truth." Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "How great are His signs! and how mighty are His wonders! His kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and His dominion is from generation to generation." (Daniel iv:3.)

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science Text Book, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The three great verities of Spirit, omnipotence, omnipresence, omniscience — Spirit possessing all power, filling all space, constituting all Science—contradict forever the belief that matter can be actual.

"These eternal verities reveal primeval existence as the radiant reality of God's creation, in which all that He has made is pronounced by His wisdom good." (Page 109.)

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

Now it's her own rancho, whether it be a dream castle in Spain or a real one, embroidered on her table linen! (Says Dah-ray.)

HANDWORK is becoming more and more the mode among elegants! It's a feminine atavism—something like Marie Antoinette's buttermaking—and it has only very indirectly to do with the depression.

Because there is nothing economical in being the proud possessor of beautiful, handmade things. In fact, their market value alone indexes the owner as a person of means and luxurious taste—any Rue de la Paix shop will confirm that statement! In a more devious way, then, is the depression responsible for the revival of the art of busy fingers—and that is via the leisure route. It seems that miladi does not attend quite as many afternoon teas, bridge parties and matinees as she used to. Also that radio-entertained evenings at home have become far more interesting with the increasing quality and art of radio programs. And miladi is quite, quite happy at home these days, seeing what she can do with her fingers while her tongue or ears are busy, and taking an interest that she never had before in beautifying her home!

This is the month of remnant bargains, too, and the most gorlicious hunks of 'spensive materials, big enough to use for ever so many things, can be picked up for so few pennies. It's a splendid idea to do a little remnant shopping, even if the pretty pieces are to be put away for a later day's making. No remnant is too small for a collar, most are large enough for hankies, many large enough for lingeries, and some even for dresses—watch for a leaflet telling you how to make several dresses from remnants, in a few weeks. Today our interest is in table prettles, which need a special sort of consideration as to the washableness and wearability of color and fabrics, &c.

"My Village" or "Mi Rancho Bonito" is the latest table set fad! Instead of flowers or conventional designs, a goofy-cute semblance of your childhood home, as nearly and as simply as you can remember it, is in order for the breakfast or tea table! The lady I sketched for you today proves it—she's holding one in her hands, and the design proper is below—which you can take out and follow in making a set for yourself. The nicest part of this design is that it doesn't have to be followed exactly—the trees can take on any outline that happens to fit the fabric pieces or your mood.

And for the amateur, cross stitch is so easy to do—and so very decorative! Table sets and bedspreads trimmed with this type of embroidery are adorable—just look at some in a specialty shop if you don't believe it!

A new leaflet which tells you how to make three different and very smart table sets is yours for a stamped, self-addressed envelope. My Village is one of them, of course. And what with remnant sales, and spare finger time and that newly revived desire to surround yourself with charming things, don't you think you should send for this? Some day you'll want it, if not today. And be sure and cut out the sketch of today and save it, because My Village is not designed in the leaflet—even though the directions for making it are there. Send your envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post, of course.

And That's the Pin That!

Now our pin is in his tin—and contents of the pan, pin and grained tin, are sprinkled with argol. After being boiled for six hours, friend pin is covered with a thin coat of tin—and who wouldn't be, I ask you! Washed again, dried and polished in a barrel containing bran, pin is ready for miladi's pin money, her pin cushion, and any false step which results in the parting of the ways. 'Sall!

FIGURING THE DISTRIBUTION.

EXPERT Bridge players as, soon as an opening lead is made, are in the habit of determining, so far as possible, the distribution of the cards in a suit held in each hand around the table. The opening lead usually sheds light on this question. The play of the suits as the hand is developed tends to turn promises into conclusions. But there are many situations in which the distribution of a suit must be assumed, and the play of the hand based upon the assumptions reached. If the assumptions are faulty, the result is bound to be disastrous, as occurred in a recent match, for possession of the City of Asbury Park Challenge Trophy, played by the team representing Crockford's Club, the members of which were Messrs. Theodore A. Lightner, Michael T. Gottlieb, Louis H. Watson and Oswald Jacoby, against a challenge team representing the Cavendish Club, made up of Messrs. Waldemar von Zedtwitz, Sherman Stearns, Walter Malowan and John P. Mattheys.

South—Dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

	Mr. Mattheys
	♠ Q 9 5 4 ♡ — ◇ 9 8 4 2 ♣ A Q 10 8 5
Mr. Gottlieb		Mr. Lightner
♠ 6 3 2 ♡ A 7 6 3 2 ◇ 5 ♣ 9 4 3 2	N W E S	♠ J 8 7 ♡ K 9 5 ◇ K Q J ♣ 10 6
	♣ J 6
	♠ A K 10 ♡ Q J 10 8 4 ◇ A 7 3 ♣ K 7
	Mr. Malowan

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♡	Pass	2♣	2◇
2NT	Pass	3NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

North's three notrump bid, in spite of the freakish distribution of his hand, was justified by his diamond holding, as he thought that his four diamond to the 9-spot would give South another diamond stopper.

West opened the singleton diamond, which South won with the Ace. He then played the Ace and King of spades to get some additional information on the hands. When East followed suit on both leads, South knew 7 of his cards—that is to say, five diamonds and two spades. South knew that West had held a singleton diamond, and had followed twice to the spades. Therefore ten of West's cards and six of East's cards were unknown to him.

He thought it improbable that the club suit would break, because of the freakish distribution of the Dummy hand and the singleton diamond in the West hand. Hence, the odds were 10 to 6 that the Knave of clubs was held by West. Because of these mathematics, Declarer played the King of clubs and then finessed the Ten of clubs. There had been nothing wrong with the mathematics, as West actually held four clubs, but, unfortunately, the Knave was in the East hand and the contract was set 3 tricks, for a loss of 450 points.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

DEAR Miss Pierce: I am 15 years old and would like to know if it is correct for a girl of my age to use cosmetics. My eyelashes and brows are light and would be improved if they were made darker. What is the best kind of shampoo to use that is not expensive?

BLONDIE.

Dear Blondie: A little face powder and (if there isn't any natural color) a faint shading of cheek rouge are all the cosmetics the very young girl should use. Lipsticks, eye shadow and mascara are not only unnecessary but in poor taste. Instead, a little vaseline or olive oil may be rubbed on the lids and brushed over the lashes and brows to gradually darken and improve their appearance. For your hair, use a pure castile soap, made into jelly or liquid form. Shave a medium bar of soap, add a pint of water and allow to simmer over a slow fire. When dissolved, strain and allow to cool somewhat before using.

• • • •

Dear Miss Pierce: Will you please let me know whether carrots and beets are starchy or nonstarchy vegetables and are they fattening? Thanks.

DAILY READER.

Dear Daily Reader: Large, full-grown carrots and beets may contain as much as 12 per cent of starch and are then classed as starchy vegetables. However, when they are very small and immature, they contain only about 5 per cent of starch, are used as nonstarchy vegetables and are nonfattening. If you would like my complete reducing regime, it may be had upon receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

• • • •

Dear Miss Pierce: I have heard that oil baths" are fine for rough skin on the body. Please tell me how to take one.

MRS. L. P.

Dear Mrs. L. P.: The best time to take an oil bath is after the warm, cleansing bath just before retiring. Dry the skin thoroughly and apply a generous amount of warm olive oil over the entire body. Massage well into the skin for several minutes. If possible, remove only the excess oil, allowing a little to remain on until next morning.

What Today Means

"AQUARIUS."

IF February 4 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:45 a. m. to 11:55 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 2:50 p. m. and from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:30 a. m. to 10 a. m. and from 3 p. m. to 3:30 p. m.

Influences operative on this February 4 make for distrust in marital relations and in affairs of the heart. Take care lest your marriage or your love affair go "on the rocks" because of some suspicion or rumor that is without foundation. Business will go along smoothly without any unusual disturbances.

The child born on this February 4 will be inclined to be moody and to have occasional fits of temper. Not always reasonable in its demands, the child will have to be led rather than forced to obey. All through its early years the child will choose to create its own amusements rather than to have them provided for him.

If February 4 is your birthday, you are most probably a very independent person, but you are not in any sense arrogant. When it is a question of gaining your livelihood, nine chances out of ten you prefer to be in business for yourself. If you have the capital to swing it you may find yourself occupied in almost any line of business; if you are without financial backing then most probably you are engaged in selling. You are a persuasive talker and a convincing one, only when you are sincerely "behind" the product which you are offering. You are not the type to try nor could you succeed in putting anything over that was not strictly "aboveboard."

Born on February 4, yours is a congenial, attractive, magnetic and loving disposition. You draw people to you without trying to. Your interest in people is deeprooted and sincere. You are the type of person to whom people cling for support both moral and spiritual. As a teacher you could virtually lead your students through their studies by the sheer force of your personal magnetism. This power of yours to influence others can be a power for good, and you must be careful to exert it always in the right direction. Women born on this date are not generally the "home-type." They often seek to advance themselves in the social, business or professional world, and often do so with great success.

Successful people born on February 4:

Thomas Hall, inventor.

George H. Hepworth, clergyman and author.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

RHEUMATIC HEART DISEASE.

A CORRESPONDENT wants to know something about rheumatic carditis. How does it differ from old-fashioned heart disease? Does it change the pulse rate? Can a person with rheumatic carditis get insurance? In rheumatic fever the disease appears to be limited to one joint, but that is far from being the case. One joint is usually more swollen and more painful than the others, but if all the joints are examined the likelihood is that moderate swelling in one or more is present, though overshadowed by that in the main joint of battle.

Acute rheumatism is noted for its tendency to jump from one joint to another. This merely means that several joints are inflamed and every little while one joint will take the spotlight away from the one that has been hogging it.

The truth is that acute rheumatic fever is a constitutional disease with an outstanding manifestation in a joint. It is well known that the heart suffers as a part of the process. Rheumatic carditis is a part of rheumatism just as the joint lesions are. Certain small spots in the heart, known as Aschoff bodies, show plainly that rheumatism works there as well as in the joints. Perhaps every person who has rheumatic fever has a rheumatic heart.

Following rheumatism in a joint, some stiffness, some soreness, swelling and cracking may be present permanently. Following rheumatic carditis there may be left some organic heart disease as a permanent landmark. These you have in mind when you speak of old-fashioned heart disease. Such old-fashioned heart disease usually results in heart murmurs, and we speak of these in terms of the valve that is injured and the kind of a murmur. Mitral regurgitation is an illustration. Any heart murmur increases the work that the heart must do. So long as the heart muscle is equal to the extra task there are no symptoms. This is called compensation. When the muscle is not equal to the task symptoms develop. We say that compensation has been broken. Changes in the pulse rate and in its rhythm are among the symptoms of broken compensation. However, there are many other causes of change in pulse rate and rhythm.

It is impossible to give an answer to the question of insurability that will apply to all cases. The insurance companies expect their examiners to protect them against bad risks. The insurance doctor is expected to pass those risks that will live long enough to pay a certain number of premiums before his family collects on the policy. He would be expected to reject those who would be a source of loss if insured by his company. If an insurance physician learns that an applicant has had rheumatic fever he will examine the heart very carefully to see if any of the scars of rheumatic carditis have been left behind. If he finds any he then forms the best opinion he can as to how long the crippled heart will hold out. If he concludes that it is good for a certain number of years, during which premiums will be paid, he recommends the risk. Otherwise not. Therefore, each case is judged by itself.

KING OF THE JUNGLE

by CHARLES THURLEY STONEHAM

SYNOPSIS.

Kaspa, the lion-man found as a child in the African jungle by a lioness and raised with her own cubs, is discovered, upon being captured and brought to James Horton, wealthy Canadian publisher, to be the grandson and sole heir of Denison Starke, millionaire friend of Horton. Martin Sefton resigned his job in Africa to accompany Kaspa to Canada to tutor and take care of him. After an introduction to Mrs. Johnson Marley, Denison Starke's sister, her two step-children, Lucian and Sheila, Sheila's fiance, Harland Reeves, and Mrs. Marley's beautiful young companion, Madeline Moore, Sefton thinks that his protege needs more development and takes him off to Florida.

CHAPTER XIV.

IT was two years before Kaspa and Sefton returned to Honeydale. The change had done Kaspa good. Under Sefton's sympathetic tuition he had made great strides with his studies and obtained a clearer insight into the ways of men and cities. However, the lure of Africa was still in his blood. He felt that civilization was tawdry and unsatisfying.

When the Marleys heard of his return Madeline insisted upon going down to see him. She was accompanied by Sheila and Reeves. When they arrived at Honeydale, Kaspa was ten miles away in the forest, padding softly among the trees, clad in nothing but a bathing suit. He scared up a deer and, feeling the need of exercise, determined to chase it down. The deer took a roundabout course through the forest. Finally he chased it out on the open ground bordering the lake, and as it trod the loose, sandy soil he saw that it was almost spent. He increased his stride and quickened his steps; the end of the hunt was in sight.

Madeline had grown tired of the conversation in the house. The shadowy room with its atmosphere of cigarette smoke and sophistication seemed most distasteful to her. She got up quietly and wandered out onto the veranda and so on to the lawn. It was a beautiful evening. She walked down to the lake shore and stood there pensive, looking out over the water. How futile and unsatisfying everything was! She was 23, healthy and beautiful, and condemned to follow a career of senseless gayety until, wearied to death, she made her escape by marrying one of her numerous suitors—only to begin the same thing all over again. As she stood there brooding she was acutely unhappy.

There was a sudden crash in the bushes, and she turned upon a startling sight. Out from the forest staggered a fine stag, its breath panting, its eyes turned backward in a glassy stare of terror, and behind it, running with effortless freedom, came a huge, god-like figure clad in a torn and faded swimming suit.

Kaspa overhauled the floundering deer in the middle of the glade. Bellowing in despair, the wretched animal turned at bay, but Kaspa was too quick for it. He avoided the lowered antlers and, leaping at the beast's shoulders, seized it by head and neck and overthrew it on the grass.

He held it there helpless while he raised leonine face to the sky and sent out the call of triumph and meat: "Aargh-h-h; e-argh-h-h; e-argh-h-h!" It rolled and echoed away into the forest, and never had cry like that been raised upon the shores of than northern lake.

The effect upon Madeline was electrical; she was thrilled and horrified. The wild lion-music coming from the throat of a human being was unnatural and frightening, but there was something pleasurable and inspiring in the sight of that splendid figure wrestling with its prey. It was like some long-forgotten scene, when the forest was young, and naked man pursued his meat, fleet and tireless as the wolf.

Here was reality, ruthless and disgusting, yet imbued with a strange beauty. The girl found herself contrasting this man, hunting his meat in the forest, with other men she knew who hunted dollars in office and salesroom, dollars wherewith to pay men to kill their meat for them with the callous monotony of machinery. The comparison was in Kaspa's favor. Her last scruples were dissolved in admiration of this man's beauty and physical prowess.

The lion-man stood up, heaved the exhausted deer to its feet and held it by the horns.

"Please don't kill it," called Madeline softly. He caught sight of her standing in the shadow of a tree. She observed that his eyes had a wild laughing glare in them. It made her shudder to look at him. She had never imagined that light in human eyes.

"I was not going to kill it," he answered in a soft, deep voice, with a purring note in it. "I have no need of meat," he laughed. "My meat is provided for me nowadays."

"Why not keep it and tame it?" suggested the girl, coming forward.

"Ah, no," said Kaspa with a ring of passion in his voice. "Let it be wild and free." He released the stag, which went off swaying and snorting into the forest. Madeline studied him; he towered above her, the biggest man she had ever seen.

His curly yellow hair and the golden down on his cheeks—for Kaspa was careless about shaving—reminded her of pictures of old Norse warriors. The muscles were discernible, like ropes, under his satiny skin. There was not an ounce of useless flesh on him, and she was amazed that he had looked so ungainly in his clothes.

Kaspa met her gaze squarely; in another place he would have been awkward and shy, but here he was on his own ground, free, and still filled with the wild ardor of his long chase.

"You are Madeline Moore," he said. "I remember you. You are very beautiful." His eyes glowed at her, and Madeline stepped back with a faint cry. Kaspa laughed. "Don't be afraid—I won't hurt you. Do you mind my saying that you are beautiful? Martin told me that it pleased people to be admired."

Madeline echoed his laugh. "Perhaps it does. I do not mind you telling me I am pretty; it was the way you looked. You are rather frightening, you know." She realized she had nothing to fear from this man; he was a savage, but a gentle savage. The purpose of her visit rose in her mind. She spoke quickly, for fear the opportunity would be lost.

"I want to talk to you about Africa. I am interested in your life before you came here." Kaspa shook his head slowly. "You would not understand," he murmured.

"Why not? You think that I am like the others; that I think of nothing but theaters and motor cars, and so on. I tell you that I hate all that." Her tone was vehement.

Kaspa looked at her curiously. He seemed to be watching her intently. Then he sighed and repeated: "You would not understand." Madeline became impatient at his obtuseness. "Oh, bother!" she said, biting her lip. After all her expectations she was to be balked by the reticence of the one man who could help her. "I want you to tell me what you think of this life," she said earnestly, "whether you prefer it to the life you led. You see, we all think it is preferable to live in luxury than to 'rough it,' except some men who write books, and it is noticeable that they don't forego the amenities unless they have to. I want to know the truth; please tell me."

Kaspa considered her gravely. "I like sleeping on the ground and without covering," he said suddenly. "I like being alone and watching the moon rise, and I don't like to do anything just to please someone else. I like being afraid that I may be killed any day. Do you understand that?—because Martin doesn't."

"Why do you like being afraid you may be killed?" she asked wonderingly.

"Because it keeps me from being dissatisfied; it is so pleasant to be alive."

He turned and began to walk past her toward the lake. "So it is 'Sun, moon and stars, brother, and a wind on the heath,' said Madeline half to herself.

Kaspa stopped. "Who said that?" She told him it was a gypsy, and why he said it.

"He was right." He waved his arm toward the city. "All that is foolishness," with which sweeping assertion he resumed his progress.

"And love?", called Madeline after him. He paused upon a rock and stared thoughtfully at the water for a minute.

"I don't know about love," said Kaspa, and vanished with a splash into the cool flood. He came to the surface, took three quick strokes to the bank and climbed out, squeezing the water out of his eyes.

"Don't you get lonely?" asked Madeline, regarding with interest the rippling muscles of his chest as he raised and lowered his arms.

"No," said Kaspa, but then he remembered his expulsion from the pack and the long nights spent in solitude on the Bomogo hills. He corrected himself: "Yes, I suppose I should be lonely if I were by myself all the time." He wondered if that was how it would be when he went back, and his expression became a trifle worried. "Some lions live quite alone," he said reflectively, "but they are old fellows nearly always." He regarded Madeline speculatively; it was impossible to tell what he was thinking.

"It wouldn't be the same if you were to do it again," she told him. "That is the trouble; we want too many things at once; at least, I do. I hate the life I am leading, and yet I don't believe I could live any other. It is perfectly hopeless; I don't know what I want." She stood with downcast head, the picture of dejection.

Kaspa looked at her wonderingly. "Well, I know what I want," he said. "I want to go back to Africa."

He plunged into the lake again, and this time when he came to the surface he swam steadily out into deep water.

Madeline watched him for a few minutes, then she walked slowly back to the house.

The Rosewood party had departed when Kaspa returned. Sefton was annoyed with him. It looked as if he had stayed away on purpose. The lion-man admitted this when taxed with it.

"They only want to look at me like they do at lions in the zoo," he said. "I don't understand what they talk about, and I feel stupid with them." Sefton laughed impatiently.

"You must try to take people as they come, old man. They are not bad sorts, really, and they can't help thinking differently from you. Their lives have been so different, you see." To which Kaspa replied that he did not mind them, but he only wanted to be left alone.

Then he considered for a moment and said, "The dark girl is nice; I like her."

"Miss Moore?" cried Sefton. "Did you see her?" Kaspa told him what had happened by the lake, and as Sefton listened to the recital of that episode his face became clouded. The lion-man went off into the house singing to himself, a habit he had lately acquired, leaving his friend staring out from the veranda over the silent lake, deep in thought.

ORIGIN OF CHEESE TRACED FAR BACK

By MARTHA LOGAN.

Cheese originated in the distant ages before history was written or legends were authentic. Therefore, we have many versions about the origin of this healthful food product. A Persian legend tells us about the shepherd boy who, finding himself far from the cooling spring of water, filled his new water bottle (made from a dried sheep stomach) with milk. Toward evening he became thirsty and started to pour out the milk for a drink, only to find a firm white curd which proved a new and delightful food.

Fresh milk is still curded today by the use of rennet, but under different conditions. The milk is graded, tested, acidified to the right degree, and heated to a temperature around 86 degrees before the rennet is added.

After the mass is curded it is cut into small blocks to assist in separating the "curds from the whey." Remember, in your Mother Goose rhymes, how "little Miss Muffet sat on a tuffet, eating her curds and whey? The blocks of curd are then piled on top of each other further to press out the moisture. From this step the treatment varies, and by these variations we have the many kinds of cheese we find in our market.

Cheese Easily Digested.

Cheese has excellent food value and flavor and, although not the fastest digesting food, is well digested by a normal person. It is a highly concentrated food, containing a large per cent of the muscle and bone-building elements as well as health-promoting vitamins and mineral salts. It is especially excellent for growing children.

The uses for cheese are many and varied. It furnishes excellent material for the main course of a meal. Cheese loaves and cheese croquettes are always good. It also may serve as an accompaniment to other dishes. Cheese carrots or apples are festive, easily made accompaniments to a party salad or piece of apple pie. Cheese also is good in combination with milk dishes, egg dishes or with cereals, meat, fish and vegetable dishes. If you have ever tasted good cheese cake, you will declare cheese makes an excellent dessert also.

Cheese, of course, needs no cooking to prepare it, but when combined with foods that do need cooking, cheese should not be subjected to too high a temperature or cooked for too long a time. Either of these "don'ts" will toughen the cheese and cause it to string. Foods containing cheese that have to be cooked should be cooked in double boiler over a slow fire rather than over the direct heat.

Used for Baked Dishes.

A very slow oven, from 325 to 350 F. also should be used for baked dishes. If to be used in combination with some other food, the rest of the food should be prepared and cooked (if possible) before the cheese is added. Cheese that is grated or diced melts more evenly and quickly and is less likely to string when added.

Cheese may be run through the grinder to save time in making sandwich filling or for melting rather than being grated or diced. Commercial package cheese may be pressed through a coarse sieve for grating purposes.

There are two general types of cheese—the hard cheese and the soft cheese. There are some 350 varieties that are classed under these two types. Most of them are named for some part of a country in which they originated. They vary in the type of milk used and the method of ripening them. Some time soon I shall write another article on the various kinds of cheese.

Martha Logan Says - - - - - "Cook Sausage Carefully"

Napoleon Bonaparte all but had his Chef De Luxe Dunan beheaded because the latter served him sausages made of partridge rather than the well-flavored pork sausage. Perhaps people today would like to behead the cook when pork sausage is cooked incorrectly.

Pork sausage is available on the market in patty and link sausage form. An attractive platter or dish can be made with a serving of both. The link sausages generally come joined in twos in the package. Place these in a cold skillet and cover with cold water. Why? Because in this way you will thoroughly cook the sausages and yet keep them from shriveling to a mouthful. Place the skillet on the stove and allow the water to come to a boil.

As soon as the water boils, drain it all off. Return the skillet to the stove and continue the cooking until sausages are browned. Be careful that you do not prick the sausages with your fork and allow the juices to escape. If you do prick the sausage, you are releasing the juices that are necessary inside the sausage to cook it.

The patties are merely placed in a cool skillet and cooked fairly slow until browned, draining off any excess fat as it accumulates.

After the links and patties are browned, arrange them attractively on toast triangles. Quickly brown in the sausage fat bananas that have been cut in halves lengthwise and dipped in egg and crumbs. Garnish the platter with a bit of parsley or celery leaves and serve pronto to the hungry family.

Market Meanderings

By MILDRED REED BUNDY

The provident housewife who likes to have the security of knowing there is "something in the house" for a quick meal, for a few sandwiches for emergencies, or for something easily prepared on busy days when she has little time for cooking, will want to know of the most adequate array of cold meats the Meanderer has been able to find. Displayed in one of the high-class, prepared meat shops in a market on K street are mettwurst, bloodwurst, braunschweiger, knackwurst, tea cervelat, head cheese, goose liver, sausage, salami, several varieties of cold tongue, genuine Philadelphia scrapple, and a number of other good selections in cold meats. So popular is the scrapple sold by this dealer that sales slips for the cold weather season on this item alone show a total of nearly 9,000 pounds. One winter's sales on a famous brand of sausage by this dealer total 27,600 pounds. Delivery is gladly made by this meat marketer daily, regardless of the amount of the customer's order. Call The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 52, to arrange for a supply of some of the cold meats mentioned. Nothing like the security of emergency food preparedness, is there, Mrs. Housewife?

When caviar and anchovies are found in 10-cent tins, they, too, should be added to the foods for quick and easy use on the emergency shelf. The 10-cent tins of caviar and anchovies are the smallest sizes, to be sure, but this price, noted in a Kosher food-selling place in a big market on K street, is the lowest on such foods the Meanderer has ever seen. Smoked salmon, for use with cocktails or otherwise as an appetizer, is one of the few places showing this pleasingly edible food. It sells for 60 cents a pound, while pickled salmon may be had for 50 cents a pound.

Gladioli in all their bright colors at 39 cents a dozen are in at least three markets operated by farm women. Two of the markets are out Bethesda way, one on Wisconsin avenue and the other on the old Georgetown road. The third market, newly opened in Takoma Park, is a branch of the Georgetown road market. The two last-named food-selling places are offering special prices on many wholesome, delicious food products from the farm, in observing their first anniversary of operation. The Meanderer will be glad to furnish the addresses of the three farm-to-home markets which have a well-earned place among the good food-buying places of Washington and vicinity.

Italian Roquefort cheese, or Gorgonzola, which many prefer to French Roquefort, is always on hand in an especially interesting, impressive array of imported foods in a market on K street. Both the French and Italian Roquefort are 60 cents a pound. The strong-flavored Proveletti sells there for 50 cents a pound and Bel Paese, which the Meanderer is inclined to recommend as the most incomparable of cheeses, costs only 65 cents a pound.

Ice cream made from pure cream from the farm is featured today in a market on the far end of Wisconsin avenue, in Bethesda. Many customers are accustomed to buying this ice cream for storage in their home ice boxes for the week-end. More than a dozen kinds of ice-box cookies are offered in this market. Fresh veal and pork from the country at low prices are among the Saturday features in the three farm-to-home markets on the Meanderer's list. All of these markets are open only on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Two Streusel coffee cakes may be bought for a quarter today at the popular bake shops in the shopping district, located on Fourteenth street and on F street. Fruit and nut rolls are selling there today, too, for 33 cents a dozen, rather than for the regular price of 40 cents. A devil's food cake, well known for its rich quality, is again a Saturday offering in these bakeries for 59 cents.

English muffins are being featured daily in a G street pastry shop. This is the same pastry shop where fresh strawberry pies are attracting so many customers. Let the Meanderer tell you the location of this shop. Telephone The Washington Post, National 4205, extension 52.

Small, crisp, cuplike bits of English toast for use in making canapes with caviar anchovies or other appetizers are to arrive within a few days in an importer's shop on Ninth street. These appetizer toast crackers are different from any the Meanderer has ever seen in Washington. Four dozen sell in packages for 65 cents.

Wild onions from Italy, in dried or pickled form, which have a much milder flavor than the domestic onions, are interesting new arrivals in the shop mentioned above. The dried onions must be thoroughly soaked and cooked, while the pickled ones are ready to use, of course.

If you have been anxious to have fresh bakery products on Saturday, or on any other day, but can not go to the bakery shops to buy them, the Meanderer can tell you at National 4205, Extension 52, of one of the best bakeries in Washington, which has just recently inaugurated prompt, free delivery service.

Blessings on you, readers of Market Meanderings. Because of your sustained interest in this column, and your frequent telephone calls and letters about items mentioned herein, The Washington Post has arranged to publish reports daily on meanderings, not only in food places but in other interesting places so numerous in Washington.

So continue to encourage the Meanderer every day, as well as Saturday.

New York, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Stocks still had their weak spots today, though in general the range of fluctuations narrowed and an irregular trend prevailed. A late rally by carrier shares, bringing an assortment of moderate net gains to that group, assisted industrial shares but proved ineffective in helping the utilities which were very soggy all day. Small advances were well sprinkled through the list at the close except in the light and power division. Gold mining equities had another busy day.

Weakness of utilities dovetailed with brokerage house gossip concerning possible rate reductions and their effect upon earnings of these companies. Consolidated Gas of New York, quoted ex-dividend, sagged a point net, while Public Service of New Jersey was off 2. North American also dropped; all were active. American Telephone recovered a 1-point loss under late short covering.

Borden and Continental Can, each up a point, and the U. S. Steel shares, Case, Woolworth, American Tobacco "B," Westinghouse, Alaska Juneau, Homestake and McIntyre Porcupine, with advances ranging from a fraction to 1½, helped establish a steadier tone for the general list in the final dealings. Rubber stocks again softened. Baltimore & Ohio, Lackawanna, Delaware & Hudson, Chesapeake & Ohio, New York Central and Pennsylvania finished with fair margins over previous closing quotations. Sales fell to 906,661 shares.

In the absence of external news, brokers were inclined to interpret the market's evener performance in the light of its technical position. Some quarters called attention to the earlier occasions, as the list approached the bottom limits of the prolonged autumn and early winter reaction; in this connection, today's action by the rails attracted favorable attention.

North American Again Elects Frank L. Dame

New York, Feb 3 (A.P.).—Frank L. Dame, chairman of the board of the North American Co., was today elected president. He retired as president a few months ago and was succeeded by Edwin Gruhl, but again assumes the office because of Gruhl's death about a week ago. He will also continue as chairman.

Harrison Williams was elected a director and member of the executive committee to succeed Gruhl. Williams and the group of investment trust companies in which he is interested, represent the largest holdings in the North American Co.

Price War in Milk.

Norfolk, Nebr., Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Milk sold for a cent a quart at retail in at least one store today as the result of a price war. The dispute between dealers started last Sunday when concerns reduced the price from 8 to 7 cents a quart.

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

	Friday.	Thursday.
Advances	168	88
Declines	187	379
Unchanged	169	146
Total issues	524	613

Stocks.

A late rally in carrier shares narrowed general losses to two-tenths of a point. That group netted moderate gains. Small advances marked trading. Sales dwindled to 906,661 shares.

Bonds.

Heaviness in utility loans produced early losses, which were trimmed by a late rally in rails. The average decline was two-tenths of a point. Sales decreased to $9,502,000.

Curb.

Selling let up and prices closed irregularly higher. Sales volume fell to 150,000 shares. Oils supported the market's upturn; utility issues yielded somewhat stubbornly.

Wheat.

Cautious trading prevailed and wobbly price changes finally ended with wheat at the previous level to one-half cent lower. Corn lost; oats gained. May wheat sold at 46¾ to 46⅞ cents.

Cotton.

Prices rallied on trade buying and covering. The market closed steady. May sold at 6.03, with general quotations 10 to 12 points higher. Liverpool reported Bombay buying with little offering.

FINAL RALLY TRIMS EARLY BOND LOSSES

Two-Tenths Decline Results as Sales Decrease to $9,502,000.

New York, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Heaviness of utility loans, and further declines in the German group, again depressed the bond market today despite a last-minute rally of a number of secondary rail securities.

The market's vitality was relatively low, sales totaling only $9,502,000, par value. Many traders and investors seemingly were inclined to take a side-line position while awaiting developments in both the economic and political fields. The average for 60 domestic corporate loans declined two-tenths of a point.

There was a better feeling toward the carriers, notwithstanding the freight car loadings report for the week ended January 28, which will be published tomorrow, is expected to make poor reading. The utilities reflected gossip having to do with proposed investigations of the capitalizations of various systems and the possibilities of rate reductions.

Recoveries of fractions to around a point were held by some issues. The more active and easier utilities included loans of American & Foreign Power, American Telephone, Brooklyn Edison, Brooklyn Union Gas, Cincinnati Gas, Detroit Edison, Duquesne Light, International Telephone, Portland General Electric, Public Service and Postal Telegraph.

The industrials generally followed a narrow range. California Petroleum 5s were soft and bonds of Goodyear and Goodrich declined following reports of a new tire price-cutting war. U. S. Rubber 5s, however, were steady.

While German Government 7s were able to hold a fractional gain, the International 5½s lost ¾ of a point, and state, municipal and corporate loans of the republic dropped 1 to around 3 points. Canadian Government 5s were again weak, but the Dominion 4s and 4½s rallied. Unimportant changes were the rule in most other foreign sections.

United States Government list was quiet and fractionally lower.

Changes in Trade Regarded As Pointing to Improvement

New York, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Trade changes this week have been "in the right direction," R. G. Dun & Co.'s review said today. It added that "stability in many branches of activity is more sustained than at any time in the last three years."

Bradstreet's found the week's business record at "about an even balance between positive and negative factors," pointing out that "while business may not be improving, it is finding new ways of making narrow profits."

"While gains during the first month of the new year were not large," said Dun's, "it was not expected that they would be, as evidence is accumulating that general trade during the first quarter will receive its strongest impetus during the closing weeks of that period. Confidence, however, is more in evidence, and fundamental improvements are getting under way, despite the hesitation which has been occasioned by the postponement of plans, awaiting the advent of the new administration."

Bradstreet's reported that retail business in many parts of the country had been hurt by a rapidly changing weather. Industrial production, except at Detroit, inclined to lower levels, this review added.

Philippine Sugar Sells 1 Point Off

New York, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Raw sugar was unchanged today but it developed that late yesterday a sale of 18,000 bags of Philippines due February 10 was made at 2.65, or 1 point below the last sale. Today, 9,000 bags of Philippines for February March shipment were sold to an operator at 2.63 and 18,000 bags, March-April shipment, to an outport refiner at 2.65.

Early declines of 1 point in some of the later deliveries was more than recovered in the later trading in futures with the market closing 1 to 2 points higher. The opening 1 point higher to 1 lower with the near months steady on covering. The later deliveries were off under hedge selling, particularly in the December position.

The undertone was steadier and prices rallied on increased covering and what appeared to be some new outside buying. September contracts which sold early at .75 rallied to .77, while December advanced from .79 to .82 with final prices at the best. Advices from Cuba reported 39 mills in operation. A European crop authority estimated the world production in 1931-32 at 24,765,269 tons, against 27,256,643 in 1930-31. Consumption was estimated at 24,585,542 tons against 25,497,954, respectively. CURB PRICES HIGHER AS SELLING LESSENS

New York, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Spasmodic selling, which had continued over into the early dealings on the curb market today lifted in the late trading and prices closed irregularly higher. Transfers totaled 150,000 shares against 180,000 yesterday.

The utility stocks yielded somewhat stubbornly to additional selling at the outset of business, and later regained their early fractional losses. American Gas & Electric and Niagara Hudson Power finished the day a fraction higher. Cities Service, American Superpower and United Light & Power "A" were steady. Electric Bond & Share was down a scant fraction. Talk of prospective rate reductions continued.

The oil stocks benefited from reports that for the first time since 1931, the Texas proration program had created a "sellers' market" with a firmer price tone for crude oil. Declaration of a regular quarterly dividend by Standard of Indiana also was received favorably. Stock of that company and also of Gulf and Humble closed sightly higher.

Technicolor lost a fraction on publication of its 1932 earnings, showing a net loss of $235,503 against net income of $37,986 the year before.

Alumnium Company lost more than a point, while Ford of Canada "A" and Deere slipped fractionally. The Swift issues were steady Stutz and Cord gained fractionally. Gold mining stocks again figured in an upward whirl, the Penny Mining shares following the lead of higher-priced stocks.

Trading Tumult Follows Gold Shares Advances

An enormous crowd gathered to deal in the booming kaffir or gold mine shares. For a time trading was impossible in the pandemonium, the noise of the excited traders being so great that no business could be done.

Some time elapsed before the crowd quieted. Such trading as finally was effected sent leading kaffirs to new high records. The present boom is attributable to increased profits made possible by South Africa's departure from the gold standard.

COTTON PRICES RISE ON TRADE'S BUYING

May Closes at 6.03 as General Market Gains From 10 to 12 Points.

New York, Feb. 3. (A.P.).—Cotton prices rallied on trade buying and covering today, with May contracts selling to 6.04 in the late trading or 13 points net higher. That delivery closed at 6.03, with the general market closing very steady at net advances of 10 to 12 points.

The opening was 9 to 13 points higher in response to Liverpool cables and trade buying. Demand was supplied by liquidation, and there was also some Southern selling. Prices worked back within 3 or 4 points of yesterday's finals around midday, but turned upward again near the close, which was within a point or two of the top, with July at 6.15 and March at 5.89.

Indications of trade buying orders below the market were considered factors on the advance. A fair commission house demand was reported at the opening and again toward the close.

Liverpool cables reported Bombay buying with little offering and noted a better inquiry for cotton cloth in Manchester. Exports today, 42,300, making 5,150,085 so far this season. Port receipts, 37,347. United States port stocks, 4,741,046.

Credit Corporation Votes Advances to Cover Fixed Interest.

(Associated Press.)

The Railroad Credit Corporation has authorized $53,259,918 in loans to railroads to meet thier fixed interest obligations.

Actual loans totaled $48,136,052. Of this amount $1,236,647 has been repaid. These figures were carried yesterday in the corporation's monthly report.

Insurance Heads Take Loan Stands

Leniency for Mortgage Borrowers Will Be General Policy.

New York, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Presidents of six large insurance companies today defined their policies on mortgage foreclosures of homes as involving as much leniency as possible. L. E. Zacher, president of the Travelers Insurance Co. of Hartford, Conn., said: "Our policy as to all mortgage loans is to cooperate to the fullest extent possible in aiding the home owner to retain possession."

"The New York Life Insurance Co.," said Thomas A. Buckner, its president, "plans no change in its policy respecting mortgage loans whether on residences or other properties. Our policy is to deal with each case individually on its merit. Action regarding Iowa farm loans was merely to suspend temporarily foreclosures in accordance with the request of the governor in his proclamation, pending consideration of the subject by the Legislature."

Total farm mortgages in America are estimated at about $9,000,000,000. Total mortgages on homes approximate $20,000,000,000, although no authoritative estimates are available. About 1,500,000 of the Nation's owner-occupied farms are mortgaged out of a total of 3,500,000 owner-occupied farms. There are about 6,200,000 farms of all types—owner-occupied, tenanted, rented, managed—in the country.

Swiss Francs Cut 4 Points on Cables

Other Currencies Follow Narrow Ranges; Pound Is Steady.

New York, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Although Swiss francs and Canadian dollars were somewhat heavy today in the foreign exchange market, most other currencies followed a narrow trading range.

Swiss funds dropped 4 points to a cable rate of 19.30 cents. The only reason advanced for the decline was the appearance of orders from Zurich to buy dollars through the sale of francs. As there was no immediate demand for the Swiss exchange, it could not be marketed except at a sharply lower price.

The Canadians were fractionally firmer in early transactions, but relaxed later. Rumors of plans for further depreciation of the exchange value of the Dominion dollar, while not carrying so much weight as recently, were still in the air. The Canadian currency was off ⅜ of a cent at 84.12½ cents.

The British pound sterling, Belgian belgas, German marks were steady. Dutch guilders, Swedish kroner, Shanghai taels and Mexican pesos eased.

Chicago, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Wobbly price changes in the wheat market today led finally to a downward trend, chiefly as a result of unsettlement of securities.

A general disposition was shown to go slow on either side of the wheat market pending more definite developments in the world trade situation. Enlarged forwarding of wheat from the Southern hemisphere to Great Britain was reported.

Wheat closed heavy at the same as yesterday's finish to ⅛ lower; corn, ⅛ to ⅜ off; oats, unchanged to ⅛ higher, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 2 cents.

Lowest at Close.

Highest prices of the day in wheat came at the outset, and the lowest were reached just before business ended. Early upturns resulted from cable suggestions of likelihood of a decided change toward closer adjustment of world supply and demand. Unfavorable crop reports, too, from domestic winter wheat territory were given increased notice. Considerable stress was also laid on word that there had already been European purchasing of Canadian wheat for spring shipment, and that a good business via the St. Lawrence was looked for.

Weakness of the New York Stock Market, however, led to enlarged selling of wheat, and caused wheat prices to dip well below yesterday's finish. Subsequent rallies in wheat failed to hold. Reports of colder weather overspreading the West and of 30-below temperatures in parts of Canada were almost ignored. Some interest was shown as to a statement by a widely known authority that in order to promise a 400,000,000-bushel yield at the opening of spring the domestic winter crop must do better than has been the case so far this season.

Corn was bearishly affected by somewhat enlarged rural offerings. Oats dealings were nearly at a standstill.

LOREE'S MOVE SEEN AS OUTLET FOR COAL

New York, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—In digging out the reasons for Lenor F. Loree's recent move in having the Delaware & Hudson Co. acquire a 10 per cent interest in New York Central's capital stock, some railroad quarters in Wall street say he wanted to open new outlets for the D. & H. coal business.

The Delaware & Hudson Co. owns the Delaware & Hudson Railroad Co. and the Hudson Coal Co. Any action that would tend to widen the market and clear the outlets for Hudson Co. coal would be of great benefit to the Loree-controlled enterprises.

"It seems entirely possiable that some of the Hudson Coal Co.'s output could be handled over the Central lines as a result of closer relationship between the two roads," says Standard Statistics Co., in its weekly railroad survey. "The financial problems of the Central notwithstanding, this acquisition may prove to have been an exceedingly astute step if it opens up additional markets for D. & H. anthracite and incidentally provides additional traffic and earnings for the Delaware & Hudson Railroad."

The Analyst says Delaware & Hudson's purchase of Central stock aggregated some $9,000,000, but, it explains, the Delaware & Hudson's omission of dividends will "relieve the company of an annual outlay of about $3,000,000." Thus, in three years, by omitting dividends, the purchase would be fully financed.

Facts and figures are brought out in support of the supposition that the sphinx-like Loree, who likes nothing better, it appears, than to keep his younger brethren in the railroad field guessing as to his aims and moves, may have made the purchase because of coal, rather than railroad consolidation reasons, or just for investment.

Delaware & Hudson Railroad's coal tract, which in normal years constitutes about 50 per cent of its total tonnage, flows northward to the New England gateways and to Canadian ports. Closer affiliation with New York Central's lines would considerably widen the available outlets.

INDIANA'S STANDARD OIL TO PAY DIVIDEND

Chicago, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Directors of Standard Oil of Indiana today declared the usual dividend of 25 cents cash on capital stock payable March 15 to stockholders of record February 15.

New York, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—The 1932 report of Standard Oil Co., of Kansas, covering operations of the new company for the nine months ended December 31, shows net profit of $61,971 after all charges.

No comparison with the previous year is available inasmuch as assets of the old company were transferred to the new corporation early in 1932. The old company had a net loss of $468,482 up to the time of the change.

The report explains that the profits of the new company were due to a concentration of its business in production, whereas the major operations of the old company were confined to refining and marketing.

It was also disclosed that the company had purchased more tahn 50,000 shares of its own stock during the year. The directors have approved a plan to purchase additional shares, as well as stock of the old company not yet exchanged, out of available surplus at $17 a share.

Standard Brands, Inc., and subsidiaries today reported for 1932 net income of $15,001,491 against $14,542,319 in 1931. This was equivalent to $1.14 a share on the common stock against $1.08 the year before.

For the final quarter, net income was $3,695,646 against $3,262,506 in the same 1931 period, equivalent to 28 cents a common share against 24 cents.

Current assets were $38,618,790 December 31 last against current liabilities of $4,246,518. This compared with current assets of $38,517,922 and current liabilities of $4,019,385 at the end of 1931.

Based on December railroad statements issued to date, net operating income for all class 1 systems will, it is estimated, total about $33,000,000, an increase of 55 per cent over the $21,263,163 reported for December, 1931. An increase in December operating income would be the first to be reported by the carriers for any month since August, 1929. Gross revenues for the final month of last year are estimated at approximately $246,200,000, compared with $288,631,424 in 1931, a decrease of 14.7 per cent.

The Consolidated Cigar Corporation reports for the year ended December 31, 1932, net profit of $935,858, equivalent after preferred dividends to 46 cents a share on the common stock, compared with $3,122,173, or $5.04 a share, in 1931.

Smallest Steel Order Placed in Youngstown

Youngstown, Ohio, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Last week a steel company here received an order for 14,000 tons of steel, one of the largest given out here in recent years. Today another company, the cold metal process company, received the smallest order on record—for one-quarter of a pound of steel.

The quarter-pound order is for steel strip six inches wide and .001 inch thick, the thinnest steel rolled. The quarter-pound will require a 12½-foot length of the six-inch-wide strip. The order is worth 50 cents.

Such strip is made in coils of 1,200 pounds, the strip being more than 11 miles long.

Carnegie Quits Operation of Barge Lines; Aid to Railroads Seen.

Pittsburgh, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Carnegie Steel Co. has virtually withdrawn from operation of its river fleet which for years has carried away many of the company's products to Southern cities. Economy is given as the reason.

Carnegie's shipping line, which originally consisted of 14 towboats and approximately 400 steel barges, has leased much of its river craft to independent river transportation lines. It is understood that the bulk of the remaining equipment also may be leased soon.

At the company's offices, it was said that no definite future policy on operation of the river fleet has been decided upon. The Sun-Telegraph says in connection with the leasing of the equipment that "it is believed in steel circles that a desire to help the railroads out of their present difficulties may have been an important factor."

"The railroads are among the largest customers of the steel companies and this probably was a further factor in influencing Carnegie Steel to reduce the competition of its river transportation with the steam lines," says the Sun-Telegraph.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Based on its monthly figures, the Reading Co. is expected to show 1932 net income after interest and all charges of about $4,200,000, equivalent after dividends on the first and second preferred stocks to $1.01 a share on the common. For 1931 the company reported net income of $3,314,928, or 37 cents a share on the common.

Total mill takings of raw silk in the United States for January totaled 46,204 bales, compared with 40,548 in December and 58,793 in January, 1932.

New State and municipal financing scheduled for next week totals only $3,361,518, says the Daily Bond Buyer. This compares with $6,982,870 this week. The largest item is a $1,200,000 issue of Newark, N. J., public park bonds, to be sold Monday.

January output of Dome Mines, Ltd., was valued at $364,879, compared with $319,736 in the same month last year.

Heavy construction contracts reported for the week ended January 30 totaled $21,291,000, compared with $17,517,000 in the previous week, says Engineering News-Record.

The Chicago Northwestern Railway purchased last year approximately $200,000 par value of its own 5 per cent debenture bonds which mature May

By NELSON B. BELL.

Shrewd and commendable discrimination has been exercised in the fashioning of this initial individual starring vehicle for the latest addition to the long list of nationally known artistes the Capital has contributed through the years to the enhancement of the stage, the screen and the radio.

In fitting the melodized drama of "Hello, Everybody" to the robust talents of Kate Smith, the authors and director have been careful to hold their piece well within the known capabilities of their star. No attempt has been made to convert the native daughter into a great dramatic actress, but her role, nevertheless, is one that enlists both interest and audience sympathy from the outset; there is nothing artificial or involved in the development of a familiar and transparent plot, but by simple and unaffected means it makes possible a considerable insight into what Kate Smith really is like.

And that, of couse, was the aim when the picture was made—to bring Kate before her vast radio public in a little more tangible form than an ether wave coming out of a cabinet in the living room! As an exhibit of Kate Smith, rather than of Drama's emotional stresses, "Hello, Everybody" is a colossal and complete success.

It is all about a hard-working country girl, intent upon defeating the nefarious schemes of the power company that plans to dam up the headwaters of the local creek and so destroy farm values throughout the fertile valley where Kate's acres flourish. At one of the company's good-will meetings one evening, she is called upon to sing over the radio and is such a hit that a national chain seeks her services, thus affording the means with which she is able, finally, to ward off disaster after having lost all of the court fights over the proposed water-power project.

From this brief resume, it may be seen that the story divides itself rather naturally into two distinct movements—the first establishing Kate as the big reliance of the tranquil pastoral community in which she lives in the matter of what might be termed civic leadership; the other, a comprehensive visualization of the broadcasting activities that have made the name of Kate Smith known the length and breadth of the land.

Everything considered, Kate does a splendid job, both as the simple rustic of the early sequences and as the glamorous later personality of the sound waves. She is natural, unaffected and wholly devoid of irritating mannerisms or any suggestion of camera consciousness. She reads her lines intelligently and well and during the course of the action sings a great deal, introduces many of the salient features of her regular broadcasts and, in one number, executes the sprightly Charleston for which she has been famous ever since the dance came into vogue years ago.

The supporting company is a large and able one, led by Randolph Scott and Sally Blane, in the romantic leads, and by Charlie Grapewin, as Jed, the old farm hand. This Charlie Grapewin, who has always been a straight light comedian, takes on imposing stature here as a character actor.

The bill is numerously supplemented by short-reel subjects also enlisting the talents of radio personalities, including Burns and Allen in "Let's Dance;" the Four Mills Brothers in "Dinah," with cartoon trimmings, and Abe Lyman and his band in a Vitaphone novelty that is a knockout.

The Paramount Sound News further augments a feature in which Washingtonians will recognize another native in the person of Nat Brusiloff, who leads Kate's band in "Moon Song," "Twenty Million People," "Pickaninnies' Heaven," "Dinah" and all the studio standbys

COLUMBIA

"RASPUTIN AND THE EMPRESS." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of a story by Charles MacArthur, with musical score by Herbert Stothart, starring Ethel, Lionel and John Barrymore, with Diana Wynyard, Ralph Morgan, Ted Alexander, C. Henry Gordon and Edward Arnold. Directed by Richard Boleslavsky. Reviewed Friday night.

Distinguished by the presence of three of the most noted stars of the American Theater in its pivotal roles and embellished by one of the most magnificent of modern productions, this tragic recital of the events of the sunset days of the Romanoffs in Russia constitutes one of the cinema's achievements of which it has warrant to be most proud.

Not only are the late czar, the czarina, the czarevitch and the other members of the household and court of the last imperial regime in Russia impersonated with rare skill and understanding in "Rasputin and the Empress," but the episodes in which they figure have been so deftly fashioned in the pattern of actuality that the drama assumes a convincing authenticity and consequent added forcefulness as an historical document, although, I believe, the picture makes no pretensions beyond those of colorful and superior entertainment.

Ethel Barrymore is an imperious but gracious and sympathetic czarina, and Ralph Morgan, as her consort, realizes many of the salient attributes of the murdered Nicholas, Little Father of all the Russias. Lionel Barrymore matches his Kringelein of "Grand Hotel" with another superb character portrayal as Rasputin, the mesmeric monk who wielded so vast an influence upon men and events in the last years of the czar's reign. John Barrymore, youngest of the clan, offers one of his most engaging characterizations as the earnest, patriotic and not unwitty Prince Chegodieff. A long list of notables of both stage and screen appear in supporting roles of importance.

"Rasputin and the Empress" is being presented through a second week at the Columbia under the same policy as prevailed the first week—two performances a day, except on Sunday, when three are given, at 2:30 and 8:30 p. m., all seats reserved.

The feature is so complete in spectacular quality, historical significance and sheer entertainment that no supplementary attractions are included in the bill.

RKO-KEITH'S

"NO MORE ORCHIDS." Columbia Pictures' filmization of a story by Grace Perkins, adapted to the screen by Gertrude Purcell and Keene Thompson, starring Carole Lombard, with Walter Connelly, Lyle Talbot, Louise Closser Hale, Ruthelma Stevens, C. Aubrey Smith, William V. Mong and Jameson Thomas. Directed by Walter Lang. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

Every once in a while there comes along a pictured story which, reduced to cold type and the prosaic descriptions of a hurried review, sounds trite, commonplace and thoroughly conventional, whereas, as a matter of fact, when it can be seen and heard, affords brisk, breezy and spontaneous entertainment of a most delightful sort.

"No More Orchids" is such a picture. If it were to be said that "No More Orchids" once more utilizes the formula of the rich girl pledged to a prince but in love with a poor boy, not much would be thought of it as a likely source of a lively hour or two. That is, however, precisely the sort of story it is, but it has been tricked out with such smart and brittle dialogue, so effectively rendered by a cast skilled in the most delicate shades of expression as to take on the utmost sparkle, such an air of savoir faire and such handsome trappings that one loses all sense of familiarity with the subject matter in its new and costly garb.

A transatlantic crossing on one of the palatial greyhounds of the deep initiates the action. There is a great deal of swagger pastiming and verbal dueling aboard ship and the pace of these enlivening opening scenes is not lost after the returning party of tourists lands and the romance finds itself housed in the magnificent menage of the very rich Holts. There are a grandmother Holt and a grandfather Cedric who slightly complicate matters for the younger generations, and a touch of tragedy near the end is deemed necessary to make all come right, but this heroic gesture on the part of the rich girl's daddy is not enough to dull the flash or dampen the spirit of much of anything that has gone before.

Carole Lombard comports herself with the grandest of the troupers in this assignment, which she seems thoroughly to enjoy and fully to comprehend. She is crisp, amusing, audacious, spoiled and gowned with a gorgeousness that prompts the thought that all of the Mesdames Solomon, in all of their probable glory, were not arrayed like one of these modern Holts.

Louise Closser Hale, as the bibulous and slightly acid grandmother, and C. Aubrey Smith, as the gouty and outrageously rich grandfather, are gloriously cast, and Walter Connelly, as always, acquits himself with highest credit in the fat and juicy role of Bill, the father-pal. Lyle Talbot, as the impetuous and impecunious suitor, is rather more the comedian than usual, and the numerous others in support conduct themselves impressively.

James Gleason, Marie Prevost, Vince Barnett and Raymond Hatton appear with some comic effect in a cowcountry comedy, "Rock-a-bye Cowboy," in the chief auxiliary feature of the bill, but individually and collectively run second to a baby that was born to be photographed. A "Tom and Jerry" cartoon, "Pencil Mania," is one of the cleverest in the series to date, and the Pathe News, with a long line of current events, completes a bill that is infinitely better than it looks on paper. LOEW'S FOX

"THE FACE IN THE SKY." Fox picturization of a story by Myles Connolly, featuring Spencer Tracy, Marian Nixon and Stuart Erwin. Directed by Harry Lachman. Reviewed Friday evening by W. A. Whitney.

Although "The Face in the Sky" has nothing to do with the man in the moon, this story of Myles Connolly does utilize that disk of silvery white as the apotheosis of a billboard painter's life dream. Such a wide expanse of white untouched by the artist's brush depicting the attributes of "Beauty Magic" cosmetics does seem a waste of celestial space!

The story starts off in a serious way with the rescue a beauteous Cinderella from her ogre-ish guardian. But on the way to New York, the three (Madge, with Joe and Lucky, her chivalrous rescuers) are apprehended on numerous charges, and so Madge, to save her gallants, agrees to marry Jim, her guardian's son. But ma, who has long since lost her love for both father and son, does the fairy godmother act and ships Madge off to the big town. Eventually she meets up with Joe at the moment of his big success when he has painted her picture on the most gorgeous billboard created by the hand of man.

Beginning as a serious drama, "The Face in the Sky" soon lapses into the form of a musical revue, with music forming a large part of the interest. With the drawings on the 24-sheets coming to life, and gigantic parties and celebrations supplementing the once ordinary, drama, the picture closes as a great musical spectacle rather than the rather entertaining story it started out to be.

Spencer Tracy is the artist who eventually paints the face in the sky, the delicate features of the charming Marian Nixon. As Lucky—for work, and plenty of it—is the lethargic Stuart Erwin, whose particular brand of humor highly counterpoints the cocksureness of Mr. Tracy. Frank McGlynn, jr., and Russell Simpson are the Beasts opposite Miss Nixon's Beauty, with Sarah Padden as the mother. Especial mention should be given these three last people because of their exceptional characterizations of the none too commendable persons they impersonate. Sam Hardy, as a faker astrologer, adds his bit to the story.

Headlining the stage bill this week is "Buddy" Rogers, who demonstrates his versatility not only as an orchestra leader (the pit orchestra taking their places on the stage for this act) but as an instrumentalist. Playing well, but not always for any great length of time, Mr. Rogers toots a mean trombone, trumpet and clarinet and fingers the ivories on both the piano and accordion.

Max and His Gang open the show with much the same act as has been seen here on other occasions, this time, however, it seems as though there was more Max than dog in the routine. Lynn Cantor, with Frank Jefferson at the piano, does a cycle of character songs, and Nelson B. Clifford and Marie Marion live up to their title, "Dumber Than Ever."

Running Mr. Rogers a close second is Charles (Slim' Timblin, with his inimitable sermon and the wedding ceremony of Val Russell and Warren Boyd, still holding its high entertainment value.

The overture "Atlantis" was played by the orchestra under the leadership of Phil Lampkin. The Fox Movietone News rounds out the program.

EARLE

"LADIES THEY TALK ABOUT." Warner Brothers picturization of a screen play by Brown Holmes, William McGrath and Sidney Sutherland, starring Barbara Stanwyck, supported by Preston S. Foster, Lyle Talbot, Dorothy Burgess and Lilian Roth. Directed by Howard Bretherton and William Keighley. Reviewed Friday night by Dorothea Lewis.

The ladies who should be talked about this week at the Earle are the Misses Harriet Hoctor and Irene Beasley. The cinema sirens should be ignored as completely as possible.

When Harriet Hoctor is dancing, we get lyrical and think about falling leaves and thistledown and breezes, for she is without a doubt our loveliest, lightest, most graceful dancer. With her delightful 16-girl ballet, she gives us the beautiful flame dance and that gay and colorful hurdle dance from "Simple Simon." She also presents two young men in some exceptional tap dancing.

That long, tall Southerner, Miss Beasley, is suffering from adenoids in the microphone, we're sorry to report, which at times make rather sour notes and harsh ones out of those which probably start true and rich enough from her talented throat. We wish she'd sing without that mike, but if her broadcasting company won't let her, she is still a pleasing and pulsating singer of an elegant assortment of songs.

The marionettes of Carl Schictl are amazing and great fun, and Marty May and Jean Carroll have a nice delivery in patter and songs without much to deliver. A little more material added to their manner would go a long way.

And now we realize—with a sigh—that we've probably kept quiet about the movie long enough!

Nan Taylor is a black sheep because her father was a deacon. Her gang wants to hold up a bank, so she gets the bank guard to open up before hours and show her how to write a deposit slip and her gang robs the bank. In the melee (i. e. The bank robbery), Nan's platinum wig slips and her nemesis (i. e. A detective with a long memory), starts her on her way to prison.

However, goody, goody, for Nan's side, the reforming revivalist who holds the police in fear and trembling of his righteous tongue is an old friend. She gets to work, he gets to work, he finds out she is guilty, he stops work and she goes to prison.

After getting a couple of years or so extra for bad behavior, she comes out to get her revivalist for doing her wrong and, being a crafty girl, marries him.

You can't blame it on the actors, but we can't absolutely absolve the directors and as for the authors—! Barbara Stanwyck's very pretty face's facial expression is apt and nice, her reading as insincere before her reform as after, but her performance is considerable of an improvement over her Megan Davis in the "Bitter Tea." Preston Foster has been all prettied up into a hero and it's a terrible disappointment. Maud Eburne, Dorothy Burgess and cute Lil Roth help.

There is another of those pleasant Donald Novis Comedies with his sweet Irish singing and a Ted Husing sportorial showing a "sweet" Irish skull-cracking "game" to complete the bill.

PALACE

"THE KID FROM SPAIN." United Artists picturization of a story by William Anthony McGuire, Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby, starring Eddie Cantor, supported by Lyda Roberti, Robert Young and Ruth Hall. Directed by Leo McCarey. Reviewed (second week) by W. A. Whitney.

There's little more that can be said about it! The mere fact that Eddie Cantor's "The Kid From Spain" is going into its second week should be sufficiently eloquent testimony that here is an entertainment stock that pays plenty of laugh-dividends.

Eddie Cantor has not appeared in anything that so particularly fits his histrionic measure or in which he has been surrounded by a more capable—and, so far as the ladies are concerned, more pulchritudinous—cast than right here.

So, step right up folks, and forget such trivial things as pay cuts, depressions, traffic congestion, et alia. Eddie's inimitable comedy and his songs—"In the Moonlight," "Look What You've Done," "No Wonder We're in Love"—sung as only he can sing them; an excellent supporting company, including Lyda Roberti (the foil for most of the songs), Robert Young, Ruth Hall, and a whole galaxy of coryphees, whose form (artistic and physical) would reflect great credit upon a Ziegfeld, and admirable complementary work by the director and technical staff—all these things, and more, combine in making "The Kid From Spain" easily the finest celluloid musical comedy to date.

Rounding out the program are "Free Wheeling," an Our Gang comedy; "Leningrad," a travelogue, and an issue of the Metrotone News.

RIALTO

"NAGANA." Universal picturization of a story by Lester Cohen, featuring Melvyn Douglas, Miki Morita, Everett Brown and Tala Birell. Directed by Ernst L. Frank. Reviewed (second week) by W. A. Whitney.

Although it has more wild animals than many jungle pictures, and notwithstanding many battles in the jungle's struggle for existence, "Nagana" is not primarily a jungle picture. Rather does this cinematic glimpse of science follow the motif of the picturized "Arrowsmith"—the almost insurmountable obstacles in the path of those who would solve the mysteries of tropical diseases.

Here it is sleeping sickness, "nagana" being the African word for the scourge more dreaded than the most ferocious of all wild animals. "Nagana" is a simple tale, plainly told, of the search for an antiserum that will immunize and cure the malady brought on by the bite of the tsetse fly. Yet this simple story of medical research is brilliantly mounted and, especially in its scientific aspects, accurate to the last detail.

Miki Morita, as scientist sacrificing himself in the cause of humanity, and Everett Brown, as the native king's foreign-educated son, deliver superb delineations, topping even the highly commendable performance of Melvyn Douglas, who, as the eventually successful researcher, offers a characterization reminiscent of Ronald Colman's Martin Arrowsmith. Tala Birell, while without an adequate role for her talents, is quite adequate in furnishing what little "love interest" there is.

Mitigating the starkness of the featured drama are "Married or Single," a release of the Famous Radio Stars series, with Little Jack Little, Irene Beasley, Pearl Osgood and William Hall; "Merry Dog," a belated Christmas "Pooch, the Pup" cartoon, and a release of the Universal News.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

VIRTUE is not always its own reward. Sometimes others have a hand in it.

For instance, a recent pow-wow among the theater executives of Loew's, Inc., including Col. Schiller, Mr. Vogel, District Manager Long and perhaps one or two others in the high command, resulted in the unanimous decision to reward conscientious effort on the part of a Washington executive whose work has been of a high order although of not overly long duration.

To stop beating about the bush, it is Eddie Gilmore, in charge of advertising and publicity for the Loew houses in Washington, to whom I refer.

Mr. Gilmore has been the incumbent of the cymbal-whanging assignment in the local Loew organization, as I recall it, for something like eight months or so and in that time has not only turned in an efficient job but also has compiled a long list of friends among his professional associates. In recognition of these qualities of worth, Mr. Gilmore has been rewarded with the appointment to the post of city manager of Loew enterprise in Atlanta, Ga., his home town, whence he came to Washington a few months ago at the behest of Carter Barron, also an Atlantan, when he assumed the city managership of the Washington Loew interests.

Mr. Gilmore was formerly on the staff of the Atlanta Journal, the paper owned and operated in Atlanta by Senator John S. Cohen.

Eddie's chief responsibility in Atlanta for the time will be the operation of Loew's Grand Theater, a newly rebuilded theater with a seating capacity of 2,200, described by those who know as one of the finest playhouses in the South.

Although his plans are not as yet perfected—the news of his appointment came suddenly—it is understood that Mr. Gilmore and his charming wife will leave Washington the middle of next week to resume their residence in Atlanta. The congratulations and best wishes of a host of friends will accompany them to their new field of endeavor.

Announcement is made by the management, and it should come as welcome news to those whose aims were defeated by the endless lines that made the purchase of tickets difficult this week, that the engagement of "The Green Pastures" at the National Theater will be for two weeks, beginning Monday, February 13, instead of for a single week, as originally planned.

This will permit those who wish to do so a fine opportunity to dispel their disappointment at not having been able to get the seat locations they wanted. The seat sale for the second week begins at the National box office Monday morning.

Incidentally, it will be interesting to Washington theater lovers to know that when "The Green Pastures" opens at the National a week from Monday night, Roark Bradford, author of the "Ol' Man Adam and His Chillun" sketches upon which Marc Connelly founded his play, will be in the audience. Mr. Bradford will probably spend the entire two weeks of the play's engagement in Washington.

Roark Bradford, by the way, was so engrossed with his sketches while employed on both Baltimore and New Orleans papers that his services were dispensed with by city editors who looked upon him as a grand writer but a very incompetent reporter.

TECH DEFEATS EASTERN IN OVERTIME GAME, 30-28

Grid Coaches May Seek 5th Down

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—To help balance football in favor of the offensive side, the Eastern Association of Intercollegiate Football Officials tonight put forward a recommendation that the team in possession of the ball be given an extra down—five downs instead of four—when inside either their own or the opposing 20-yard line.

This proposal, designed by the officials to remove what they described as a handicap for the offensive side in either the "torrid" or "frigid" zones, came as a surprise on the eve of the special winter meeting of the new coaches' committee on football rules, called by Chairman Lou Little, of Columbia, and added immediately to the debate over what, if anything, will be urged in the way of changes this year in the national gridiron code.

Ed Thorp Explains Move.

The officials' proposal was outlined by Ed Thorp, prominent New York official, on behalf of the association's rules committee, consisting of Thorp, Al Farrier, of Dartmouth, and W. R. Crowley, of Bowdoin, president of the association. Describing the "frigid zone" as that section of the field between a team's goal line and its own 20-yard line, while that team is in possession of the ball, Thorp explained:

"It is frigid because when a team finds itself in that position it is so limited in its choice of plays that it often kicks on the second down and is practically forced to kick on the third down. If given an extra play in each series of downs while in this zone, we believe that it would tend to remove that restriction, thereby encouraging and justifying the starting of a march.

"The torrid zone is that part of the field between the defensive side's 20-yard line and its goal line. This is the attacking team's torrid zone, for with a touchdown in sight each remaining yard becomes more and more difficult to gain. The defense automatically stiffens, becomes more compact and unyielding as the goal line is approached, making it practically impossible to gain the required distance through running plays, when teams are anywhere near evenly matched. This we feel can be corrected by giving the attacking team an extra play in each series of downs while within this zone.

Offensive Team Handicapped.

"The Eastern Association of Intercollegiate Football Officials believes that this recommendation, if accepted by the rules committee, will remove an unjust handicap under which the offensive team has been laboring, for several years."

The reaction of some of the college coaches, including Lou Little and Tuss McLaughry, of Brown, that this proposal would tend only to make the game "more complicated" was answered promptly by Thorp's presentation of a series of "rulings" showing how easily the scheme would work.

The college coaches will hold a closed meeting tomorrow at the New York Athletic Club, with representatives from their own ranks in many parts of the country as well as from high schools and prep schools. They will discuss the latest suggestion made by officials as well as Pop Warner's proposal for scoring a point for each first down, Dick Hanley's recommendation to permit forward passing from any point behind the scrimmage line, McLaughry's restricted "dead ball" zone idea and a plan to remove the ball automatically from the sidelines

Card at College Park Tops Tonight's Sports Program

Maryland Host to Duke in Boxing; Georgia in Basket Ball; G. W. and C. U. Quintets Also Active.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

THE sensitive schnozzles of Maryland University's basket ball team will be taped by the Simonpure sluggers from dear old Duke tonight at Ritchie Coliseum about 9 o'clock, if form runs true and the basket ball champion of the Southern Conference, Georgia, stows away the Maryland basket ball team in the customary length of time in a game due to start at 8 o'clock.

This twin bill of sports at College Park dominates a night in which the college boys fairly outdo themselves for their respective alma maters and athletic offices. Over at George Washington University's sumptuous temple of gymnastics, the Colonial basket ball team meets up with old Elon's five, fresh from a recent loss to Catawba. Out at Catholic University's cramped quarters the school's five basket ball players meet Baltimore U. American U. postponed its game scheduled last night with Randolph-Macon until tonight. It, and all the other games mentioned in this paragraph, are at 8 o'clock.

Georgia Quintet Favorite.

With pretty much the same team that last year won the Southern Conference title from Kentucky, Georgia looms as a tremendous favorite tonight against Maryland. The only cloud on the horizon, so far as Georgia is concerned, is the reputation Maryland has of occasionally springing up to really great heights of basket ball. But the spasmodic brilliance of the College Park boys is about as reliable as a biweekly appearance of Halley's comet.

The score stands 2-2 so far as previous meetings are concerned.

Most of the interest at Maryland, outside of seeing what kind of team Georgia has to win the title that Maryland once won in a palmier day, centers around the collegiate nose busting to be participated in by the undeniable gentlemen of Duke and the inviolate gentlemen of Maryland. To date, so far as intercollegiate boxing is concerned in Washington, there has been too much gentlemanliness for the spectators, and a good half of those who trek to the Coliseum tonight hope that the boys will forget their manners and throw a couple of uppercuts not tempered by purity.

Keener and Sides In Feature.

The best fight, on paper, should be the meeting between Mr. Bernie Keener, of the home crowd, and Mr. Leroy Sides, of the Dukes. Both are welterweights and seemed to have the best chance of forgetting the high principles of educational ear scrambling.

George Washington's current basket-ball record is seven wins and four losses. Little Jimmy Howell has replaced Wick Parrack in the line-up, and while it reduces the aggregate height of the squad about 4½ feet, it looks like, in practice at least, G.

12,000 JEER CANZONERI VICTORY

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—While the boos rolled down from the rafters, and a few of the 12,000 customers were impolite enough to snicker aloud, Tony Canzoneri, brilliant lightweight champion, snuffed out Billy Townsend, Vancouver blonde, with one brief flurry of right-hand punches tonight in his debut as a welterweight menace.

Without mussing his shiny black hair, even before the grin he always carries into action had time to settle into position, little Canzoneri jabbed the hitherto-rugged Canadian across the ring with his neat left, then parked him for the night in his own corner with a lightning volley that was climaxed by a right high on the temple.

Townsend never landed a blow.

Despite the stunning swiftness of the knockout and the roars of disapproval that lasted five minutes or more and followed the fighters from the ring, Townsend was hit hard and often.

Unmindful of Townsend's 8¼ weight advantage, brisk little Canzoneri jabbed him neatly to set him in position for the two-fisted barrage that thudded into the Canadian's jaw like burst leather hand grenades from a human machine gun.

Boy Tries "Explosion Shot," May Lose Eye

TRACK ELITE IN ACTION TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—The flying feet of no fewer than 17 Olympians, not to mention national and sectional titleholders, will pound the big board saucer in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night in the first of the major indoor track and field meets of the Metropolitan season, the Millrose games.

There are two foreign entries—Eric Ny, 1,500-meter champion, and Bert Pearson, of Canada, Dominion sprint king. The Americans entered include such luminaries as Gene Venzke, indoor mile record holder; Frank Wykoff and Emmett Toppino, sprinters; Jack Keller, hurdles; Charles Hornbostel, Ned Turner, Glenn Cunningham and Glen Dawson, middle-distance runners; Joe McCluskey and Henry Brocksmith in the longer distances, and George Spitz, indoor high jump champion and world record holder.

Wanamaker Mile Is Feature.

The Wanamaker mile will carry the major interest, with Venzke out to regain the laurels he lost last summer in the Olympic tryouts. It was in this event last year that he first cracked the indoor world record, winning in 4:11 1-5.

Ny has chosen to make his indoor debut in the mile, and the American fliers who have accepted the issue include Ray Conger, three times winner of the event; Cunningham, first American in the 1,500 at Los Angeles; Leo Lermond, the Boston strong boy; Carl Coan and Frank Crowley.

Unusual interest centers in the 50-meter sprint, where Wykoff makes his first start on the boards against such speedy youngsters as Toppino, Don Bennett, of Ohio State, and Ed Eiegel, the local sensation, who has not been defeated this year.

Kelly Races Widmyer Tonight at 60 Meters

Amid the boom and blare of the Millrose games at Madison Square Garden tonight—with its Venzkes, Wycoffs and Sextons—two local college greyhounds will fight it out tonight on the wooden track for the coveted 60-meter championship. They are Al Kelly, of Georgetown, who held the national 70-yard championship two seasons ago, and Earl Widmyer, of Maryland, who could have represented America in the 100-meter dash at the last Olympics, so good were his trials.

Georgetown also will enter a quarter-mile relay team in the meet, composed of Kelly, Wilmer Bradley, Al Mitchell and Dan Schlafly. Widmyer is Maryland's lone representative.

Old Line Five Victor Over Carolina

Maryland Five-Man Defense Checks N. C. in 42-29 Victory.

Assume 14-1 Lead as Chase, Snyder and Vincent Star.

UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND'S in-and-out basket ball team scored a surprising 42-to-29 victory over North Carolina tonight in Ritchie Coliseum, ending a three-game losing streak. It was the fourth win for the Old Liners in Southern Conference play against three losses, while the defeat was the second for the Tar Heels in five conference engagements.

In upsetting the Southerners, Maryland outplayed the visitors in all departments. Its close five-man defense puzzled the Tar Heels, who were forced to resort to long shots in attempting to score. The Old Liners presented a fast-breaking offense, with Spencer Chase, Bob Snyder and Rufus Vincent caging the ball from all angles. Snyder led in scoring with 12 points, with Vincent accounting for 11 and Chase 9.

Weathers Checked In First Half.

Virgil Weathers, the visitors All-Southern forward, was held scoreless in the first half, but after the intermission he came through with three floor goals and a foul for 7 points to tie George Brandt, former Central High athlete, for scoring honors for the Tar Heels.

Maryland quickly took the lead when Snyder scored from the floor in the first minute of play. Chase followed with 2 fouls and Vincent 1 point and a double decker to give the Old Liners a 7-to-0 advantage. North Carolina took time out, but the rest was of no benefit as Maryland quickly ran its lead to 14 to 1 on two court goals and a foul by Snyder and a follow shot by Weber. Brandt accounted for the lone Tar Heel marker.

Advantage Is 19-9 At Half Time.

The Southerners braced at this period and for the remainder of the half held Maryland to five points while registering eight. Long scored two floor goals and Hines and Aitken one apiece.

Maryland led at halftime, 19 to 9. Early in the second half Carolina played its best game and gradually crept up to the Old Liners until the latter held only a 34-to-18 advantage. Brandt featured this rally with two court goals, one a long looper, and a foul shot. Maryland stepped out, however, led by Snyder, Chase and Vincent, and soon had a commanding lead, which was easily maintained the remainder of the game. The Tarheels made numerous substitutions in an endeavor to hold the Old Liners, but the home team's "hot hand" was too much to overcome.

Cunningham Victor In Golf Sweepstakes

Walter (Red) Cunningham, Burning Tree professional, swinging his club in approved American fashion and putting like a demon, won first cash prize in an informal sweepstakes yesterday at Indian Spring.

Cunningham's 38, 36—74, 3 over par, topped Mel Shorey, East Potomac pro, by 2 strokes. The red-haired Burning Tree tutor, who recently changed his swing and style, proved that there was no need for the 8-inch cup by having ten 1-putt greens.

Al Houghton had a 77, Al Treder, of Manor, a 78, and Gillie Cunningham, of Burning Tree, an 80.

Harry Rice Bought By Bush for Reds

Cincinnati, Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Donie Bush brought two Minneapolis left-handers to the Cincinnati Reds today—Harry Rice, an outfielder, and Frank ("Dutch") Henry, a southpaw pitcher. The deal was a cash trade, but the details were not revealed.

EMERSON IS WINNER.

Lexington, Va., Feb. 3 (A.P.).—Emerson Institute scored six points in the last minute of play tonight to defeat the Washington and Lee Freshmen Basket Ball Team, 40 to 34.

Previously the Little Generals had overcome an 8-point lead to tie the score 34-all. Lucas, Emerson forward, led the scorers with 17 points.

POST MORTEMS . . .

The fact that American University postponed its game with Randolph-Macon last night surprised nobody more than Ben Kail, the referee, who arrived at the scene only to find the house dark . . . and Kail turned down a paying job at Gonzaga to take the American U. assignment . . . Paully Byrne, ex-Gonzaga, ex-Georgetown, ex-Loyola, ex-Catholic U. basket ball, football and baseball star, tells this one on himself . . . a kindly priest at the Hilltop promised to reward him if he could set a record for himself by failing to violate the four-personal foul rule and continue through the entire game . . . Paully tipped off a friend who told the referee before the game that Byrne had a 9 o'clock date and was scheming to have himself ejected on four personal fouls early in the game . . . the referee vowed he would spoil Paully's little game and refused to call a fourth foul on Byrne who played the entire contest.

To get an idea of the size of the 8-inch cup, take a squint at the sports department spittoon, which is 8 inches exactly an enterprising reporter discovered.

Cochran Wins Billiard Title; Defeats Layton

He won the title tonight defeating Johnny Layton, of Sedalia, Mo., ten times its holder, 50 to 33, in 38 innings. The dark haired Cochran, playing with nerves of steel and the technique of a master, gave Layton one of the most disastrous defeats of the tournament, beating his rival at his own game by playing it safely.

Cochran won eight of his nine games, although it was his first competition in three-cushion billiards, hardest of all billiard games. Cochran, however, won the balkline championship in 1928, losing it in the same year to Young Jake Schaefer.

Gonzaga Five Upsets G. W. Freshmen, 32-20

Gonzaga High School engineered a scoring spree in the last quarter, with Hall leading the attack that overcame George Washington University's freshman quintet, 32 to 30, last night at Gonzaga.

George Washington led throughout the first three quarters, but fell a victim to the onrush of Gonzaga in the final three minutes. George Washington's last two points were accounted for on fouls by Rathjen after the final whistle.

Turbulent War Days Saw Big Leagues Lose Money.

THE wise guys of 1917 excavated the venerable old saying, "First in Peace, First in War and Last in the American League," dusted it off and put it back in the vernacular to describe the Nationals of that unhappy year. Washington sank into the cellar on July 21, 1917, the same day of the selective draft, and nobody noticed it in a day of furious activity all over the country.

Babe Ruth had been out of industrial school for some time. In fact, the young Baltimore pitcher was doing right well with Boston, and was beginning to branch out as an outfielder, in deference to his .325 batting average that season. A high wind blew down the rickety right field wall at the ball park and until the new one was built hits that rolled into the alley counted only as two-baggers.

No .300 Hitter On Club.

As Washington sank into the cellar position that it once graced, there wasn't a .300 hitter on the club. Clyde Milan, still holding forth in center field, led the Nat hitters with a nifty .290. In the Sunday baseball averages the last 15 men on the list were Washingtonians, which, when you come right down to it, was quite a record.

Near the end of the season young Sam Rice, getting all set to quit baseball to enlist in the Navy, perked up to .302 and still younger Joe Judge came along fast to finish with .285. Mostly through the work of these two, plus the everlasting pitching of Walter Johnson, Washington did manage to crawl out of the cellar at the end of the year and finished up seventh. The Chicago White Sox, with Red Faber at the peak of his career, swept through to win the American League pennant and later the world series from the New York Giants.

Line Drive Halted Boehling's Career.

One familiar face was missing on the 1917 team—that of Joe Boehling, whose great 1916 career was stopped short by a line drive that hit him over the heart and rather tragically stopped a noble baseball life. The 1917 pitching staff, besides Sir Walter, was Bert Gallia, Jim Shaw, Doc Ayers, Gene Dumont and Harry Harper. Rookie Jack Bentley had gone on to the Giants.

For the third straight year Walter Johnson led the American League in the number of games won by conquering his foes 23 times and losing 16 times. Walter achieved one of his thousand or so records in 1917, when he retired the side on three pitched balls in a game with St. Louis.

The Bull Durham ad in right center went down with the blown-down fence, and when the fence was righted the dear old Tanglefoot ad, of happy memory, rose to tell the world that in the preceding year Sam Rice had caught some unmentionable number of flies, while Tanglefoot had caught a still more unmentionable number.

Griffith Equipped Army Camps.

Manager Griffith thought up one of his outstanding ideas. On a small scope (collections through the stands by Boy Scouts) he began raising money for the purchase of bats and balls for soldiers in camps. Camps all over the country heard about it and wrote in for equipment. Griffith addressed more than 50,000 letters, one to every postoffice in the United States and her territories and asked postmasters to cooperate in the collection of funds for the enterprise. Before the war had ended Griffith had collected the vast sum of $165,000. He purchased vast supplies of bats and balls, at wholesale prices, and sent them wherever there were American troops.

He erected a three-row stand all around the ball park which was free for soldiers of Camp Meigs, Fort Myer and other nearby posts, and after the regular games he filled the diamond with balls and bats and at a signal the soldiers would scramble for them.

Baseball began to lose money. It sank deeper and deeper into the newspapers, pushed back and back by war news. People began to look upon the activities at Seventh and Georgia avenue as not very important, and this same opinion held throughout the rest of baseball. It was an opinion not to be changed until the war

Contest Facts In Brief

Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Baseball Club, will select in The Washington Post of March 19 his all-time, all-star team from among the clubs that represented Washington during the years from 1912 to 1932 inclusive.

The fan who submits the selection that matches or most nearly matches Griffith's selection will be adjudged the winner of the contest.

One man is to be selected for each of the infield and outfield positions with four pitchers and two catchers.

To the winner The Washington Post will award eight box seats to the 1933 opening game between Washington and Philadelphia.

Second place will net four box seats, with third place earning two box seats.

Entrants may use the accompanying coupon for their selections, although the use of the coupon is not necessary for entrance in the contest.

The contest will close March 15.

Each entrant is limited to one selection.

Bethesda-Chevy Chase Five Near County Title

Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School virtually clinched the Montgomery County scholastic championship yesterday, winning over Silver Spring High School, 16-12, in a hard-fought game, played before a large crowd yesterday at Silver Spring.

Field goals by Guckeyson and Althause in the last minute of play made safe the Bethesda victory. Johnson, center, played an important role in his team's triumph.

Rockville scored over Poolesville, 33-8, in another county series fray.

Dargan, with a run of 10, advanced his total to 255 for the match, while his opponent's best run was 6. Lew's total is 180. The final block will be contested Monday night. The Protege Ping Pong Club scored a 5-1 victory over the Boys' Club ping pongers yesterday.

Central Near Crown by Victory

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

RALLYING furiously behind the sterling leadership of little "Knocky" Thomas in the final period, an apparently beaten Tech team caught up with Eastern, tied the score at 26-26 in regulation time, and then forged ahead in a five-minute extra period to snatch the victory from the eager, nervous hands of its opponent by a score of 30-28.

The defeat virtually choked off Eastern's hopes of tying Central for the crown, as Central administered a 44-25 defeat to Roosevelt in the second game of the day and needs only to down Western Tuesday to establish a clear-cut claim to the title.

There are smiles and more smiles of all descriptions, as the song writers have been reminding the taxpayers since the gay and glittering nineties, but never has there been one as benignant, perhaps, as the one Coach Bert Coggins, of Central bestowed on the perspiring Tech players as they strode off the floor after humbling Eastern.

Coggins Smiles and Smiles.

Coggins even smiled at a group of reporters, who were promptly revived by smelling salts. The Central mentor had been resigned to a tie with Eastern and a one-game playoff for the honors.

Eastern's downfall is attributable to the eviction from the game of Tom Davis, center, and Dizzy Dean, guard, on fouls, and the withdrawal of a second time of Tom Nolan, its brainy little floor general, whom the rules prevented from reentering the game when his services were most needed. Davis and Dean fell victims to the four fouls rule early in the fourth period, when Tech's rally was gaining momentum.

So zealously did Eastern guard its foe in the first three periods, Thomas was the only Tech player to score from the field. It was the first five of the half-dozen double deckers he made that kept Tech within hailing distance. Daly and Wheeler, who made good on charity tosses, were the only other members of the team to score in the first half.

Al Gillem's shot that went spinning off the backboards into the basket in the final minute of the extra period gave the victory to the Maroon and Gray. Pandemonium reigned as the leather swirled through the net. But Thomas was the outstanding player on Tech. He was here, there, all over the floor and cool as a new electrical refrigerator.

Both Teams Miss Opportunity.

The opportunity of winning the game on foul shots was presented both teams near the end of the regular game. Billings missed twice as the Tech stands unloosed a vociferous chorus of groans, while Bayliss missed the headlines by a mere fraction of an inch on two awarded him.

Dean, Davis and Waters put Eastern ahead with field goals at the outset of the fray, Eastern leading at the end of the first period, 8-5. Tech's zone defense gave way before the smooth Eastern passing in the second and third periods as the Light Blue swept ahead to a 23-13 lead.

It looked like a setup rather than an upset as the teams entered the final stanza, but Tech was not to be denied. Gillem had a bloody nose, Wheeler was benched for committing his fourth foul, and you could almost see the steam rising from their wet and shiny necks, as the team

Inlander Out Of Money In Mile

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Feb. 3 (A.P.).—The Greentree Stable's Florida Derby candidate, Jungle King, earned a host of new admirers by the manner in which he won the Haines City purse of 1 mile here this afternoon. The strongly made son of St. Germans—Leopardess led E. R. Bradley's Bubbler across the gold line by a good two lengths, with something in reserve. Prewar was beaten a neck for the place. Jungle King ran the 8 furlongs in 1:38 1-5 under 111 pounds and his backers received $7.80 for $2.

The disappointment of the race was the Brookmeade Stable's Inlander, heretofore considered one of the chief hopefuls for the local derby. The Infinite colt was proud of his recent performances, but today he was never able to catch the leaders and finished fifth.

Prewar, a Man o'War colt, possessed much speed but found the distance too far. Coucci rated Jungle King close to the pace maker and when the Bronx boy asked his mount to run turning for home, Jungle King readily took command and held Bubbler off without difficulty.

Sky Haven, representing Mrs. G. D. Widener, just lasted to chalk up an upset score over Idle Stefan, the favorite in the third contest. Rally Round took the show, slightly less than a length behind. Sky Haven rushed to the front and moved over to the inside while drawing clear. Idle Stefan became pocketed while being reserved off the early pace, but closed ground rapidly on the outside after leaving the far side, and only lost by a nose on the wire. The winner returned $67.30.

Eight-Inch Cup Gets Tryout Here

Tony Sylvester, Bannockburn professional, illustrates the comparative size of the 8-inch cup proposed by Gene Sarazen and the orthodox 3¼-inch receptacle which he holds in his hand. With the larger cups on the back nine, Sylvester yesterday shot a 34, having five one-putt greens and discovering that 6-foot putts could hardly be missed.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: MIAMI, FEBRUARY 3.

I failed to participate in the long-shot parade today, but got into winning action twice with Jungle King at $7.80 and Garlic at $5.90. The latter finally won a purse, after trying ever since the plater regained good form suddenly at Bowie last fall. I've inserted a long-shot special in the sixth race for tomorrow and have promised to live right if it hits. Monte Parke, at New Orleans, and Louie Humphries, at Agua Caliente, are staging a close battle for the 1933 jockey leadership. They have 36 and 35, respectively. BILL.

FIRST RACE—MODERN TIMES is at top form and comes to this off a second the other day. Likes the distance and gets weight from most of the field. FRIGATE BIRD looks like the one to cause trouble. WORKLESS may pick a mile and a quarter of this sort to stage a wake-up.

SECOND RACE—I prefer SPEEDY SKIPPY, with DOMINO PLAYER as a running mate, in this baby sprint. RACE STREET will draw a lot of play and may win it, but I'd rather see this one race here first. Was a fair sort at New Orleans. DARTLE may get in the money. I'm expecting big things of this youngster.

THIRD RACE—ROYAL RUFFIAN was not out for an airing the last time, but something went wrong. However, tomorrow's another day, the veteran may come through. Prefers the mile route. Looks like the boys are underestimating MERIDIAN QUEEN here. This gal was beaten a nose by Flossine the other day and would have won in another stride. CAPACITY for the show.

FOURTH RACE—GOLD STEP is in such rare condition that I can't pass him up until he misses despite the high grade of competition this field offers. CURACAO'S wake-up the other day seems to earn a money position here. This is not KINCSEN'S distance, but this one is due to try out that stretch rush.

FIFTH RACE—If DON LEON is saved for this, he may take down the major portion of the purse. I have a surprise second money proposition for you. I mean PORTER'S DREAM. This one won at generous odds at Bowie and is a lot better than rated. FINITE may ankle his way into the show end.

SIXTH RACE—I'm naming TRAFFIC JUDGE here and then I'm ducking. However, such an upset is not beyond the order of happenings hereabouts. TRAFFIC JUDGE, a notorious front-runner ran a startling race over a longer route the other day. If his rider can get all that speed out for 7 furonga, they may be hanging up some telephone numbers. MARMION and ROBINSON CRUSOE for the rest.

SEVENTH RACE—CONTRIBUTE, closing fast at 6 furlongs, will appreciate the added furlong in this and may take the measure of BARCELONA PETE and WISE COUNT.

Central Five Defeats Roosevelt, Near Series Title.

Bill Burke jumped center for Central, replacing the graduated Moulton, but he fared none too well against Bob Grimm, so Bill Bryant, a sub, was sent to the center circle.

The Blue clicked on all cylinders, driving the Roughriders before it as the score rose like the mercury in the late kiosk on a hot summer's day. Grimm flipped some extra special fancy shots from the side, many of which fell through, much to the spectators' and Grimm's surprise.

Roosevelt missed Joe Sherman and Huck Cavanaugh yesterday. With the pair in the game it undoubtedly would have been much more interesting, closer, and possibly more satisfactory for Roosevelt.

Central, with Nau, Tipton and Shore getting their share, rolled up point after point to walk away with the decision in the second ha'.

Hitting the Headpin

FRED BUCHHOLZ'S Occidental Restaurant bowling team scored another victory over a visiting team on the Convention Hall alleys last night, winning over the Poehlman's Buttermen, of Baltimore, by a score of 2,927 to 2,855 before a large crowd.

Dutch Newman, leading the Howard Campbell Sweepstakes, which close tonight, was high man of the match, rolling a set of 646 with a high score of 132. Earl McPhilomy was second high for the District team with a 601 set, featured by a high game of 148.

The Baltimore pinspillers were singularly off form. Ray Barnes' first game, 130, was the highest of the evening for the visitors.

D. C. TO SEND 4 BOXERS TO GARDEN

Capital Team Named for Intercity Amateur Tourney.

WASHINGTON has accepted an invitation to compete in an intercity amateur boxing tournament under the auspices of the Metropolitan Amateur Athletic Union at Madison Square Garden, New York, on February 8, and has already selected four boxers to represent the local A. A. U.

The selections were made by the local A. A. U. boxing committee headed by James Sullivan and comprise Ray Palmer in the 126-pound class; Sanford Carrier in the 135-pound class; Jack Baxter in the 160-pound class and Danny Pyne, heavyweight.

Palmer, Carrier and Baxter are members of the Costello Post's Boxing Team which has been actively campaigning this winter. Carrier recently defeated the holder of the South Atlantic A. A. U. 135-pound title at the Congressional Country Club and is regarded as the outstanding contender for the District title.

Baxter Holder of District Title.

Baxter is the holder of the District title in the 160-pound division, an honor which he won in last year's tournament. Pyne recently dropped from the Catholic University squad with which he was an outstanding performer.

The Washington boxers will leave on Tuesday for the tournament in the charge of Winfree Johnson, secretary of the District A. A. U. Six cities are to compete in the tournament including, besides Washington, teams from New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore.

"We do not contemplate any radical steps or recommendations," said Little. "Our rules committee of coaches, however, will have a thorough opportunity to discuss suggestions that have been made. Out of this discussion we will be able to draw up and present to the National rules committee the consensus of what the coaches think should be considered. This will be done by our advisory committee, sitting with the national body."

Little expects most of the coaches "committee of twenty" to be on hand, in addition to a number of invited guests, including Warner. The only coaches on the committee whose acceptance were not received were Biff Jones of Louisiana State, Howard Jones of Southern California and Harry Kipke of Michigan.

C. U.'s hustling team will have their hands full with Baltimore. Gallaudet will be up in Brooklyn, meeting Long Island University.

The Maryland-Duke boxing line-up follows:

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

TRIBUTE to the ability of Judge E. O. Sykes, who was chairman of the American delegation, was paid by E. S. Wilson, vice president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., in discussing the Madrid radio-telegraph conference at a recent meeting of the American section of the International Committee on Radio. The nomination for reappointment of Judge Sykes to the Federal Radio Commission was sent to the Senate yesterday.

Mr. Wilson pointed out the fact that the heads of most of the delegations were men who had been attending these international conferences for many years, some of them attending every single international telegraph conference for the past 25 years. Such a record would be practically impossible under our system of government, where changes occur much more frequently.

Despite this handicap, Mr. Wilson told the committee that Judge Sykes not only held his own in every respect, but in fact accomplished results which were, in many ways, remarkable.

For example, at Madrid the difficult question of having the English language recognized on the same basis as French, which has come up in practically every conference in the past, was handled so successfully by Judge Sykes that it is believed this question has been disposed of once and for all, with the result that at future conferences it will be accepted as a matter of course that the English language will have equal recognition with the French language.

Also, the very difficult question of the number of votes to be allowed each nation was very ably handled by Judge Sykes, and while the conclusion reached was more in the nature of a temporary one than that with regard to the English language, Mr. Wilson complimented most highly the efficient way in which Judge Sykes handled the matter.

Mr. Wilson implied that the foreign delegates, accustomed to the usual easy-going and somewhat long-winded exchanges commonly associated with diplomatic procedure, were somewhat surprised at the firm and definite stand taken by Judge Sykes on a number of these important questions.

IF Representative Ewin L. Davis, of Tennessee, should be appointed Senator from that State to succeed Senator Cordell Hull, if the latter goes into the Cabinet, the Senate will have included in its membership one of the best-informed men on radio questions now in Congress. Representative Davis, as ranking minority member, had an important part in framing the radio act of 1927.

Representative Davis was also the author of the Davis amendment, affording each State equal radio facilities according to population. Mr. Davis is chairman of the Merchant Marine and Radio Committee of the House. Rated as an exceptionally strong man, there was surprise and considerable regret that he lost out in the Democratic primaries before the last election. His defeat was attributed to the State redistricting law and his friends were confident that he would "come back" next election.

"The Bartered Bride," an opera by the Bohemian composer Friedrich Smetana, which is being revived by the Metropolitan Opera Company for the first time in five years, will be broadcast complete to the radio audience over a coast-to-coast network, including WRC, at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Artur Bodanzky will conduct, and the opera will be sung in German with the following cast:

Kruschina, her father, Gustav Schutzendorf.
Kathinka, her mother, Dorothee Manski.
Micha, a farmer, Siegfried Tappolet.
Agnes, his wife, Faina Petrova.
Hans, Rudolph Laubenthal.
Kezel, a marriage broker, Ludwig Hofmann.
Springer, a theatrical manager, Alfredo Gandolfi.
Esmeralda, a dancer, Helen Gleason.
Muff, a comedian, James Wolfe.

SENATOR JAMES E. WATSON, of Indiana, will speak on "The Future of the Republican Party," during the Institute of Public Affairs over WJSV at 10:15 p. m.

The "Blue Danube" program, first in a new series of symphony orchestra broadcasts, will be heard at 9 p. m., WRC. Music of the old Austrian capital will be featured, much of it composed either in that city or by masters who spent much of their lives there. A vocal ensemble of sixteen voices, and soloists, will be heard with the large orchestra, directed by Hugo Reisenfeld, himself a Viennese.

Ted Husing will describe the Hialeah Stakes from Hialeah Park, near Miami, over WJSV this afternoon between 3:45 and 4 o'clock.

Frank Singiser, staff announcer, who for more than two years has concealed his own identity, being known only as Colonel, has rejoined the daytime announcing staff in New York. Good boy.

THE Chamber of Commerce Forum, a series of talks on Washington industries over WJSV every Saturday evening at 7:30, will present Gerald A. Walsh, secretary of Typothetae of Washington, tonight. Mr. Walsh's address is of particular significance, because printing is the leading industry of Washington.

Bob White

The Old Philosopher

SAYS:

Question—Do you believe in long engagements?

Answer—No. Of course it depends on what you call a long engageent. I am just as opposed to the fly-by-night marriage as I am to one consummated after several years of engagement. You must see that marriage is romance. A long engagement is apt to rob marriage of this, and once romance has gone out of life, the beauty is lost. Then danger signals are hoisted. A long engagement tends to a brother and sister relationship and there isn't much fun in kissing one's sister—save as a salutation. Moreover a long engagement tends to overlap on some of the understanding that belongs to the marriage state.

Of course, I do not advise running headlong into a marriage after a "party" flirtation, to wake up to the awful fact that for breakfast, lunch and dinner, 365 days in the year, you have to accept the association of one who is totally incompatible to your mode of thought and life. I desire only to point out that long engagements have an element of danger—that of robbing marriage of the romantic quality that cements love.

Bob White, the old philosopher, will answer an outstanding question each week day on this page. He is heard twice daily over WMAL at 8 a. m. and 4:30 p. m.

"Solo Wrecking Crew" Is Held for Grand Jury

James Thompson, colored, alleged to be a "one-man wrecking crew," yesterday was ordered held for the grand jury on charges of depredations on private property. He is accused of wholly wrecking two buildings at 419 and 421 First street southwest, and partially wrecking a third at 423.

At the request of Assistant United States Attorney Michael F. Keogh, Judge Gus A. Schuldt fixed Thompson's bond at $3,000. The excuse given by Thompson, Mr. Keogh said, was that he understood the buildings had been condemned and were accessible to any one who wished to take materials.

ST. VITUS' dance, a hideous disease generally afflicting children, was named for St. Vitus, the patron saint of comedians during the Middle Ages, when victims were taken before images of the saint to "dance." The belief was that anyone who danced before the saint's image would enjoy good health for the ensuing year. St. Vitus, as a child, successfully treated the son of Diocletian, a pagan Roman emperor, but was later put to death by the emperor.

Without taking the rim from his lips, Henry Cochran, of Williamsport, Pa., set a new world's record for beer drinking by draining two and a tenth quarts of beer from the famous glass boot in Harry's New York Bar in Paris. Cochran was clocked at 11 seconds flat for the bootful—which is beer consumption at a rate of better than a third of a pint a second.

The penguin, when setting, will not leave the nest in the face of a blizzard, and sometimes whole colonies are completely snowed under. The breath of the bird melts an air passage, and the penguins, instead of seeking shelter, remain at their nest.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE THEATER-TICKET MARKET BREAKS.

NEW YORK theaters are cutting prices to a point where two or three people can sleep through a performance for the price of one. For a long time the Broadway showmen thought the depression was a Hoover hallucination, but they suddenly looked out over the audience and saw nobody present except ushers.

* * * *

For years producers of Broadway hits have charged so much for a ticket that it was always a question with the buyer whether he should see the show or buy a new sedan. Any good musical show under $6 or $7 a head was considered a charitable gesture.

* * * *

The speculator added a dollar, and when a victim had taken the Only Woman to the theater, adding the dinner and taxicab costs, he had experienced all the sensations of a good old-fashioned shakedown.

* * * *

The cash customers stood it for a long time, but the showmen at last discovered that they were killing the eggs that made the golden omelette.

* * * *

The return to reason has been so sudden that it still has the drama and music lovers groggy. Seats to good musicals are going for $2.50 top, and you can see current farces and dramas for as little as $1.50, and sit down front where you can be as badmannered as the best society people.

* * * *

The possibility of seeing Harry Richman, the Four Marx Brothers, Beatrice Lillie and Clark and McCullough for 35 cents and get a coupon entitling you to a chance on a new automobile is not remote.

* * * *

"How Much?"

* * * *

"I can't go that high."

"What would give for two in the mezzanine?"

"I can let you have an ash tray, a bust of Mussolini, six cans of peaches, the collar from a raccoon coat and a very good fishing rod."

"Okay, but I'd rather have canned strawberries."

REAL CONSOLATION.

The dissappointment at not being able to make both ends meet should be somewhat softened by the realization you still have both ends.

Everything being pretty topsy-turvey in the world just now, why wouldn't it be good clean fun to have Prof. Piccard go down into the depths of the sea and study fish while Prof. Beebe took a flight into the stratosphere and reported on air currents and cosmic rays?

FRAZZLED FINANCE.

There is much talk of cheap money, and Elmer Twitchell says that he can't remember a time when his looked so shoddy.

INDUSTRY'S NEED.

Wage cutting is become so general that it may become necessary to establish dressing stations throughout American industry.

Add similes: as frightened as if Japan had assured him of her friendliest intentions.

Doctor Sentenced To 2-Year Term

Smart, Convicted of Performing Illegal Operation, Loses License.

Dr. Benjamin H. Smart, convicted last week of performing an illegal operation, yesterday was penalized in District Supreme Court when Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue first revoked his license to practice medicine and then sentenced him to serve two years in the penitentiary.

The license was revoked under the authority of the recently enacted licensure act, which makes the step discretionary with the court. It is the first time such a procedure has been adopted in the District Supreme Court.

Dr. Smart, an elderly man, immediately began serving his sentence. He will have to serve at least one-fifth of his term before he will become eligible for parole. William H. Collins, assistant United States attorney, prosecuted Dr. Smart, whose home was on Rhode Island avenue northwest.

Arkansas Ball Tonight.

The reception and dance of the Arkansas State Society will be held at the Willard Hotel tonight at 8:45 o'clock. All members of the society and their friends are invited to attend. The senators and representatives from Arkansas will be present. The annual election of officers will be held.

TRAFFIC TOLL

TO DATE.

A motorist who drives his car without a permit or with an expired permit may be an exceptionally good driver, but in the eyes of the law he is committing a serious offense. The maximum penalty is $500 fine or 180 days in jail, or both.

The driver who is in a collision and has either an expired permit or no permit at all is always wrong.

Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer yesterday warned that there are approximately 10,000 persons driving in Washington with invalid permits. The number of such cases has increased in Police Court.

Deaths	9	6
Injuries	343	331
Accidents	747	813

"Be Careful!"

DRYS' OWN HEARING ON BEER PROPOSALS ATTACKS CONGRESS

Bishop Cannon Calls House and Senate Groups Lawless Lawmakers.

Speaking specifically of the attitude of the Methodist Episcopal Church South with 2,700,000 communicants, Bishop James Cannon, jr., at a "public hearing" held by dry organizations last night at the Washington Hotel, declared: "We highly resolve to enlist our every power to maintain in full force the eighteenth amendment and all laws of State and Nation for its observance and enforcement.

"The House of Representatives and the Judiciary and Finance Committees of the Senate have put themselves on record officially as a band of lawless lawmakers who are willing to nullify openly the Constitution which they have solemnly sworn to support and uphold in order to gratify the hysterical clamor for intoxicating beer, thus allying themselves with the Du Ponts, Sabins, Mr. Rockefeller's so-called best citizens, the lower social element and bootleggers, all of whom ostentatiously boast of their nullification of the Constitution of the United States," Bishop Cannon said.

Wiley Opinion Quoted.

Edward Bunford, attorney for the Antisaloon League, told the audience of 200 that pending beer legislation "constitutes an aggravated assault" to destroy the eighteenth amendment by nullification. He charged that it would be almost impossible to collect $150,000,000 in revenue from the sale of beer.

Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, widow of the food and drug expert and president of the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs, gave medical testimony based on the researches of Dr. Wiley into the effects of alcohol on the human body. Mrs. Wiley quoted Dr. Wiley as saying 2.75 per cent beer is intoxicating. "It may even, as I have seen in my own experience, produce the third stage of intoxication, namely, drunkenness," Mrs. Wiley quoted Dr. Wiley as saying

Canon Chase Speaks.

Speaking on the modification issue from the viewpoint of youths and the churches, Mrs. H. Wellen Fisher, president of the Woman's Council of Washington Federation of Churches, said:

"Let us crusade to give the modern girl a higher motive than to learn how to carry her liquor well and not to measure how much she can 'lap up' and still, as Mulvaney said, 'preserve her formation.'"

Canon William Sheafe Chase, superintendent of the Internal Reform Federation, spoke on "The Beer Blunder." A number of States have tried the sale of beer as a means of promoting temperance, but "in no case did the experiment succeed," he said.

William S. Bennett, secretary of the American Business Men's Prohibition Association, quoting James S. Crutchfield, president of the American Fruit Growers, Inc., said: "Legitimate industry on every line would suffer from the legalization of the beer traffic." He said also that recently there had been a growing opposition in business to the proposed beer legislation.

Like Congress Hearing.

"The public hearing" was arranged by the National Women's Committee for Law Enforcement along the lines of a Congressional committee. Its purpose as given by Mrs. Henry Peabody, chairman of the law enforcement committee, was to permit public presentation of evidence on the beer bill which the Senate Finance Committee declined to take after deciding to hold no hearings on the Blaine-Collier beer bill.

Members of the hearings committee are E. Hilton Jackson, chairman; Col. W. O. Tufts, George Otis Smith, Mrs. William L. Darby, Mrs. Clarence True Wilson and Izora Scott.

E. L. Scott Installed As U. S. Employe Chief

Other officers installed were Joseph Ruffin, first vice president; William A. Perry, second vice president; Richard M. Carter, recording secretary; Rosella B. Thomas, financial secretary; Mamie Tate, assistant financial secretary; the Rev. E. B. Green, treasurer; Charles H. Brow, gunardian; the Rev. Richard M. Blalock, chaplain, and Lawrence J. W. Hayes, publicity director.

SCENE FROM THE "MIKADO"

'THE MIKADO' DRAWS CAPACITY AUDIENCE

Duplicating its signal success of two weeks ago, the Estelle Wentworth Opera Group, under the auspices of the Community Center Department, repeated last night in the auditorium of the Roosevelt High School the ever-popular Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, "The Mikado," before a capacity audience.

Miss Wentworth directed the performance and excellently played the accompaniment for the production, which was fully equal, if not actually superior, to the earlier presentation.

Again Ira Meyer stole the show with his lusty portrayal of the lord high executioner, climaxing a vigorously played part with his singing of "The Flowers That Bloom in the Spring" and "Tit-Willow." The pivotal roles of Nanki-Poo and Yum-Yum, while permitting of a lesser amount of individuality, were commendably sung by Raymond Baine and Betty Thornberry, with the former's "A Wandering Minstrel I" and the latter's "Moon Song," with which the second act opens, eliciting well-merited rounds of applause.

Elliott Burton, as Poo-Bah; Harry Crow, as the mikado; Harry Yeide, as Pish-Tush; Alma Harris, as Pitti-Sing; Ella Neuland, as Peep-Bo, and Helen Mark, as Katisha, collectively and individually contributed well-drawn delineations.

To draw comparisons with all the performances of "The Mikado" that Washington has seen would indeed be futile, yet it can be said without hesitancy that, under the expert tutelage of Miss Wentworth, this group has given the satirical libretto of W. S. Gilbert and the lilting melodies of Sir Arthur Sullivan by far the most intelligent, effective and polished treatment of any amateur company yet to essay this comic opera.

Payment of War Debts Linked With Tariff Cut

Unless this Nation lowers the tariff wall it can not expect foreign nations to pay their war debts, Dr. Isador Lubin, of the Brookings Institution, told members of the Washington Council on International Relations, meeting at the Y. W. C. A. yesterday.

Speaking on "War Debts and World Recovery," Dr. Lubin explained that the war debts were accumulated through the large shipments of merchandise and not through shipments of gold. With our present policy of high tariffs, and subsidizing of exports and shipping, he asserted, the foreign countries are not able to return goods in payment.

STUDENTS TO SWELL AUTO SHOW CROWDS

Working Models Expected to Be Popular With School Children Today.

Today will be "school day" at the thirteenth annual Automobile Show now entering its final stages at the Washington Auditorium. Exhibitors are confident that the interest of the younger generation in motor cars will see the day set a new attendance record for this year's show. They base their expectation upon the fact that the final Saturday always is the occasion of the largest attendance on the part of children.

A factor in the steadily gaining momentum of the show as it approaches its end, according to Washington Automotive Trade Association officials, is the increasing attendance during the afternoon hours. The matinee admission fee of 25 cents, they say, is drawing hundreds to the display. Yesterday afternoon's crowd was the largest of the week, exceeding even that of Thursday which set a new record for matinee attendance.

The student audience expected this afternoon and tonight is counted upon to raise the interest in working model exhibits to its highest point for the week. These educational features, including not only mechanical displays showing the actual construction of the cars but also a working model of a modern motor car factory, are more in evidence in this year's show than ever before.

No detail of design or construction fails to attain clear and concise delineation in the cut-away chassis exhibits and youthful Washington will be brought thoroughly up to date on motor cars, is the pledge of exhibitors.

The annual dinner of the Washington Automotive Trade Association, which was slated last night at Harvey's restaurant in honor of the Baltimore association, was canceled because of the illness of several expected guests. No definite date has been set for the dinner.

Willys Addresses Capital Salesmen

Auto Magnate Predicts 1933 Sales Will Show 300 Per Cent Gain.

John N. Willys, chairman of the board of the Willys-Overland Automobile Co., yesterday addressed Willys-Overland dealers in Washington and surrounding States at a sales campaign meeting held at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Predicting leadership for the Willys-Overland car in the low-priced field, Mr. Willys told the dealers that the volume of sales and orders are far ahead of last year, and he expressed belief that 1933 will be more than 300 per cent ahead of 1932.

Little Girl Flies 800 Miles to Visit Friends

An 800-mile airplane flight held no fears for Martha Ann Moore, 4 years old, of Paterson, N. J., who stopped at Washington Hoover Airport yesterday on a Ludington liner bound for Knoxville, Tenn.

Accompanied only by her doll, also named Martha Ann, the little traveler made the long flight to visit relatives in the Southern city. Leaving Newark early yesterday morning, she flew here in one of the company's high-speed transports and took off again at 10:30 a. m. in a trimotored transport for Knoxville, where she arrived at 3:40 p. m.

FIRE AT MAYFLOWER OVER CURTIS' SUITE DRAWS HUGE THRONG

Traffic Tied Up Nearly Hour; Damage Estimated at More Than $600.

Flames sweeping across the roof of the Mayflower Hotel last night attracted hundreds of persons, who lined the streets for blocks around, disrupted traffic for nearly an hour and caused damage estimated at more than $600.

Fanned by a high wind, the blaze raged out of control for more than fifteen minutes. Flaring into the air eleven stories above the street, the flames could be seen for blocks in all directions. The first fire companies to arrive were faced with the problem of hoisting hose to the roof, and before water could be obtained the fire had gained great headway.

Originating in a laundry vent atop the hotel, the blaze swept across the roof and for a time threatened to spread to machinery lofts and other equipment.

Damaged by Water.

After bringing the flames under control firemen centered their attentions toward preventing damage to the apartment of Vice President Curtis, directly beneath the blazing area. Salvage sheets were spread over furniture in the apartment and only a small amount of water damage was done. The Vice President was not at home.

Street car and automobile traffic along Connecticut avenue from L street to Dupont Circle was at a standstill for almost an hour. Trestles were erected over street car tracks, hoisting the hose so the cars might pass, but all other traffic was rerouted for nearly two hours.

Discovered by Motorman.

The blaze was first seen by an unidentified street car motorman, who stopped his car at K street and sounded an alarm. The glare in the sky attracted motorists from all sections and adjacent streets were soon thronged wtih curious onlookers.

Firemen faced the hazard of plunging eleven floors to the basement. The top of the laundry vent was burned away and one misstep would have sent firemen hurtling down the air shaft.

Guests in the hotel were unaware the fire was in progress until it was brought under control. W. A. Dupar, chief engineer of the hotel, said a motor operating the laundry exhaust apparently caused the fire. R. L. Pollio, manager, viewed the wreckage and estimated damage.

Redrafted Airport Measure Referred

Provides for Development by District's Funds or Private Capital.

The redrafted McMillan bill, authorizing acquisition of Washington-Hoover Field as a municipal airport for the District, was referred to the House District Committee yesterday, on recommendation of the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Representative McMillan (Democrat), South Carolina, revised the bill after the Public Buildings and Grounds Committee had ordered an unfavorable report on the measure in its original form.

As redrafted, the bill provides for development of the airport exclusively out of District funds or by private capital, under the supervision of the Office of Public Buildings and Public Parks. In this form, members of the Public Buildings and Grounds Committee said, it should more properly be considered by the District Committee.

Police Go to Accomac To Quiz Death Suspect

Detective Sergts. John C. Dalglish and Jerry Flaherty, who went to Accomac, Va., yesterday morning to question a colored man believed to be Joseph Goodman, under indictment here for the murder of William Simms, 65, colored night watchman at Dickey Bros. feed store, Kenilworth avenue and Benning road northeast, will not return to Washington until late today, due to some hitch in their plans, it was learned last night.

The detectives said they are sure the colored man, arrested last Saturday in Accomac for housebreaking, is the one they want.

Near-Rioting Results At $1 Bargain Sale

Yesterday morning a sale of $1 dresses almost resulted in a riot when hundreds of women tried to crowd into a store at 937 F street northwest.

Extra details of policemen from the First Precinct and the Traffic Bureau had to be rushed to the scene. Policeman Raymond V. Sinclair, of the Traffic Bureau, rode his motorcycle slowly down the middle of the sidewalk and released some oily smoke from his motor exhaust which sent the crowd scattering in all directions. After this the bargain hunters were formed into lines and everything went along smoothly.

Police Guard Is Still Kept at McGill Home

The police guard was still being maintained last night at the home of Senator George McGill, 3009 Thirty-fourth street northwest, while detectives continued their efforts to ascertain the identity of the armed prowler who was seen at the window Wednesday night.

The only clews discovered by the detectives were footprints in the soft earth near the house. Senator McGill, who saw the prowler, could offer no reason for the incident.

Two Men Are Hunted In Counterfeiting Case

Following the alleged attempt of a man to pass a counterfeit $10 bill at a store in Harrisonburg, Va., yesterday, Washington police were asked by Department of Justice agents to look out for two men, believed to be members of a counterfeiting ring.

During recent weeks several reports have been received of spurious $10 bills being passed on unsuspecting merchants in nearby Virginia and Maryland.

PEPCO AGAIN DELAYS FILING P. U. C. DATA

Report on Reduction of Rates Now Is Promised Tuesday or Wednesday.

The Public Utilities Commission was still waiting at closing time yesterday to hear from S. R. Bowen, counsel of the Potomac Electric Power Co., regarding the utility's decision in the long-drawn-out negotiations over electric rates. In fact, that's what the commission has been doing for more than a week now.

It was reported yesterday that the power company does not expect to make an answer to the commission on the proposed withdrawal of litigation until next Tuesday or Wednesday. Gen. Patrick said he had had no word, however, although Mr. Bowen earlier in the week promised a reply no later than Friday.

Meanwhile, the commission will take no further steps in the matter, according to Gen. Patrick, although it was predicted some time ago that rates would be reduced by February 1.

While the commission announced last week that all parties to previous negotiations were "in accord" on Thursday afternoon, January 26, Mr. Bowen has four times set up the time when his company would make a formal reply. First, it was last Saturday, then Monday, then Wednesday, then Thursday or Friday, and now some time next week.

All of which gives the impression to District officials that the power company does not intend to agree to the condition proscribed for an amicable termination of litigation over the proposed sliding scale, viz., that all parties recognize the authority of the commission to fix electric rates independently as stated in Justice Luhring's opinion sustaining the commission's order in District Supreme Court.

Bob White Goes to Ohio To Bring Family Here

He plans to return Monday, bringing with him Mrs. Bob White, his daughter, Victoria, and his son, Norman. They will make their home at the Willard, where Mr. White has been living during his stay in the Capital.

SENATE UNIT BACKS DISTRICT LOAN PLAN

Amendment of the Wagner unemployment relief bill to allow the District the same right to borrow from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation as the States are given, was agreed to yesterday by a subcommittee of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee.

Senator Brookhart (Republican), of Iowa, chairman of the subcommittee, announced that amendments sponsored by Corporation Counsel W. W. Bride and other local officials will be written into the measure, which broadens the power of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to make loans for relief purposes.

Bills Are Pending.

The committee's action has no connection with the Commissioner's request for authority to borrow up to $2,500,000 from the corporation under present laws. Bills to permit the latter loan are now pending before House and Senate District Committees.

Several local civic and relief workers appeared before the Banking and Currency Subcommittee yesterday to seek provision for the District of Columbia in the Wagner bill. All testified to the need for increased local relief appropriations over and above the $625,000 provided in the first deficiency bill.

Final action on the bill will be taken by the subcommittee in executive session Monday, and the measure then will go before the full committee and reach the Senate by the end of the week, Chairman Brookhart said. He expects congressional action on the measure before the end of the present session.

Father Ryan Witness.

Witnesses yesterday included Father John A. Ryan, of the National Catholic Welfare Council; Leifur Magnuson, president of the Monday Evening Club; Mrs. Louis McGuire, of the National Catholic School of Social Service; Hattie Anderson, general secretary of the Y. W. C. A., and Charles Spencer, of the Washington Unemployed Council.

Mr. Magnuson testified the present District allowance of $3.60 a week for unemployed families scarcely provides food for them, while Dr. Ryan favored a standard allowance of from $8 to $10 a week, maintained by the Federal Government.

Mr. Spencer said the District should be allowed to borrow $6,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and unemployed workers here be given a dole of at least $5 a week. Homeless unemployed should be permitted to occupy unoccupied public buildings without police supervision, he said.

PRESIDENT SCORES TAX DUPLICATION AS ADDING TO BURDENS

Relief from tax burdens must be given to the people, President Hoover yesterday told the American Legislators Association, meeting at the Shoreham Hotel to devise means of simplifying the tax procedure in the country and eliminate the overlapping of levies by Federal and State governments.

The evolution of governmental functions of municipalities, townships, counties and States had led to a haphazard development of tax sources to support the various functions, the Chief Executive pointed out.

"If your conference can help to make a scientific division of tax sources amongst the various governmental authorities," he said, "you will have made a distinct contribution to the efficiency, as well as to the economy of our whole governmental system."

Roosevelt Presents Views.

President-elect Roosevelt, in a letter, said:

"In the past the Federal Government has passed revenue legislation with too little consideration for State taxing systems and on the other hand the States have legislated with little reference to the Federal plan and with almost no considearation for the tax programs of the States."

The President-elect added: "I have given considerable thought to this problem and it is my hope to make at least a small contribution to a better synchronized Federal, State and local taxing systems." He said the problem of double taxation is one of the most urgent questions of the moment.

The conferees, made up of State legislators and tax experts, who hope to create an agency to collaborate with the Federal agency in a tax simplification program, were told last night by members of the double taxation subcommittee of the ways and means committee that cooperation is needed.

Gasoline Tax Assailed.

Representative Fred M. Vinson (Democrat), of Kentucky, head of the double taxation subcommittee, told the conferees that the gasoline tax was a "monstrosity" as levied by the States and Federal Government, and urged real cooperation between the States and Federal Government to effect tax reductions.

The way to economy, Representative Carl R. Chindblom (Republican), of Illinois, declared is the elimination of activities and services which are not within essential governmental functions. Some of these useless and burdensome activities, he listed as public health, agriculture and commerce promotion.

"If we have gone beyond the governmental functions," he said, it is because the folks back home have constantly importuned us to do so. The State legislators can assist the Federal Government if they will take less interest in Federal "hand-outs."

"In order to effect economy," he concluded, "there must be an aroused public sentiment against expenditures."

A salient reason for the existence of the taxation problem, said Representative David J. Lewis (Democrat), of Maryland, is the failure of the middle classes to face their duties of citizenship, and he charged there is a "deliberate" exemption of the middle classes from income tax.

Among the remedies for tax duplication, proposed yesterday were: A segregation plan whereby the Federal Government would select certain tax sources and the States others; a crediting device, by which the present system of Federal collection of inheritance taxes, with rebate of portions to the States, would be extended to other sources, and the expansion of the use of the Federal Government as a tax-collecting agency, with apportionment of collections to States on varying bases, such as population, number of automobiles, &c.

Man Slightly Burned Trying to Put Out Fire

A. Kenneth Armstrong, foreman of an upholstery establishment at 907 N street northwest, was slightly burned yesterday in attempting to put out a blaze there. Firemen extinguished the fire after it had damaged the premises to the extent of $5,000.

The building housing the shop is of three stories. Only the first was damaged. Mrs. Ruth Volland, owner of the building, said the loss was partially covered by insurance. Cause of the blaze was not determined.

Man Pleads His Guilt In $500 Chest Theft

Pleading guilty to a charge of the larceny of $500 from the Community Chest, John A. Scruggs, 29, yesterday was held for the District grand jury. His bond was set at $1,000 after Judge Gus A. Schuldt had heard the preliminary statements of the prosecution.

Scruggs was brought to Washington from Absecon, N. J., on Wednesday. The $500 he admitted taking was covered by insurance, Elwood Street, director of the Chest, stated. It was made up of proceeds of a dance at Wardman Park Hotel.
